'Farm Cooperator' Chosen At Juniata Banquet

MIFFLINTOWN (Juniata Co.) — From the first year that Raymond Kauffman managed the Bellard Farm, he was aware of the need for conservation practices. He asked permission of the owner, Ruth L. Oliphant, to close erosion ditches, cut back fence rows, and implement other conservation practices.

The Oliphant family, which purchased the farm in 1942 (though it was in the family line since 1885), agreed. Through the support of the Juniata County Conservation District, Kauffman was able to improve the conservation efforts of the farm and was so honored by the district as "1992 Cooperator of the Year" at the district's recent banquet.

Raymond's son, Marlin, was graduated from Lancaster Mennonite High School in 1975. Soon after, Marlin began helping with the farm.

S. Parker Oliphant, Ruth's son, purchased the former John Musser-Bashore farm, consisting of 230 acres in 1984. In the spring of 1985, Marlin moved into their home on the Oliphant property. In the 31 years he has lived there, Raymond and son have made conservation an important part of farming practices, according to the district. Kauffman became a cooperator with the district on September 10, 1965.

At Bellard Farms (the named acquired from E. Southard Parker, Mrs. Oliphant's grandfather, and derived from SouthARD and wife's name IsaBEL), there are a total of 387 acres on three different tracts of land. Various practices have been employed on the farm, including 340 acres in conservation cropping, 387 in conservation tillage, 370 in crop residue use, 350 acres on controur stripcropping, 10 acres in grassed waterways, 3,000 feet of subsurface

'Ideal' Rather Than Perfect Environment Possible For Layers

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — There may be no such thing as a "perfect" environment, even for layers, but there may be something close.

A layer house environment with a temperature of between 70-80 degrees Fahrenheit, relative humidity about 40-60 percent, ammonia levels under 25 parts per million, and minimum ventilation of two cubic feet per meter per bird may be some of the most ideal conditions for keeping the hens happy, according to John Schwartz.

Schwartz, Lancaster extension director and poultry agent, spoke to about 45 broiler and layer house managers and industry representatives at the poultry management and health seminar Monday.

Schwarz emphasized the importance of keeping the environment well ventilated and well sealed so the ventilation, cooling, and heating of the environment is sufficient to layer health during the winter months.

"We need to look for air leaks and water leaks if we're going to have successful ventilation," he said. He said layer managers must do the utmost to control air leaks. "We've got a lot of air leaks in chicken houses which we're just ignoring."

Schwartz said there are several steps the manager can employ to check and correct leaks, including sealing the doors in the pit, sealing around load-out doors, caulking around fans, tightening fan louvers, and looking for other leaks in the building.

Schwartz said that air leaks rob the birds of fresh air. Also, more energy is required and less critical circulation takes place. For instance, a ½ inch crack in a 10-foot door equals about 60 square inches of air inlet, or about 250 cubic feet per minute of fan capacity.

Also, controlling moisture is critical to keep the ventilation system working optimally. Other things the manager can correct to keep moisture and humidity down would be to cull layers, watch the salt intake in diet, increase the fiber content of diet, remove dead birds daily, prevent broken eggs in pit, and to catch loose birds.

Gramling Is New Manager At Mid-East

HAGERSTOWN, MD — George E. Gramling of Columbus, Ohio, has been hired as the new manager of the Mid-East Dairy Herd Improvement Corporation, headquartered near Funkstown, Washington County in Maryland. He began work on Oct. 19.

Dr. Gramling had been director of field services for the National Dairy Herd Improvement Association, based at Columbus, for eight years. Before that, he was a dairy cattle genetics Extension specialist and researcher at Clemson University. During that time, he also supervised the DHI program in South Carolina for 12 years.

Gramling succeeds Robert F. Hope, Jr., of Libertytown, who had been interim manager since the retirement of another Frederick County resident, Eugene L. Long of Lewistown, on July 1. Hope had been manager of a companion organization, Mid-East Milk Lab Services, since its inception in 1984.

Hope is now manager of Mid-East DHIC Field Services, a new position created at the Mid-East DHIC board of directors meetings in early October. Stanley Stull of Thurmont has succeeded Hope as manager of Mid-East Milk Lab Services. Stull is a former Frederick County DHI testing supervisor.

In his new position, Hope will work closely with DHI supervisors and be responsible for training sessions to help the supervisors better meet changing demands of dairy farmers participating in the DHI program. He also is charged with acting as a liaison between DHI management and dairy farmers to help resolve problems in a satisfactory manner.

Stull's responsibilities will

Chester County Extension Honors Volunteers

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

GUTHRIESVILLE (Chester Co.) — Chester County Extension honored its volunteers and added two new awards for annual recognition during its banquet-meeting held Thursday night at the Easter Brandywine Fire Hall in Guthriesville.

Trudy Dougherty, county extension director said that 4-H leaders and extension program volunteers for programs such as the master gardeners, dairy clubs, youth development program, tractor safety, horse, livestock, textiles and clothing clubs were responsible for the success of the land-grant university program in the rural-urban county.

The annual banquet-meeting is held to review programs, honor outstanding achievements, elect directors to the extension board and to build fellowship.

Two awards were added to the list of annual recognition honors, one is for outstanding effort by a new 4-H leader and the other for continued service.

Ellen Hofler, of Glenmore, was the recipient of the first new leader appreciation award for her effort to improve the extension program. Two years ago, Hofler and her husband John and their children moved to Chester from northern Illinois.

In the time that she has been here, Hofler has founded a 4-H club called the Glenmore Go-Getters, which is a community club and covers topics ranging from computers to cooking. She is also a member of the 4-H board of directors.

Receiving the award for continued service was Ruth Ann Holmes, who during the past seven of her almost 20 years volunteering for 4-H, has been a leader with the county 4-H small animal program and has helped lead numerous programs involving dogs.

She co-initiated expanded 4-H activities for youth and adults who participate in the Pennsylvania 4-H Dog Program. She has been involved in at least eight different 4-H groups or programs ranging from basic heel and sit dog obedience to training for seeing eye

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer Market

Tuesday, November 10, 1992

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was about moderate. Seller offerings were fully adequate, particularly on the lighter weight sizes, and for late week delivery. Live supplies were light to moderate. Weights were light to heavy, mostly light to desirable. Slaughter schedules were reduced, but remained heavy. Some plants have planned cutbacks in operations next week. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 53 to 62 cents. Trade sentiment was steady to barely steady. In the parts complex, wings were short of an active call. Other items were adequate to fully adequate for the light and selective buying interest.

ESTIMATED SLAUGHTER OF BROILER/FRYERS IN DELMARVA (000)

New York Phila. Frozen Eggs

NOVEMBER 10, 1992

NEW YORK FROZEN EGGS, NOVEMBER 10, 1992. FEDERAL-STATE

Prices were unchanged to higher on whole, and the majority of sales of whites were higher, while other prices were generally unchanged. Trade sentiment was steady to instances firm, strongest on whites. Demand was mixed, mostly moderate, and usually fill-in for immediate needs. Finished product floor stocks were balanced. Shell egg supplies were also adequate, but the price levels induced most plants to limit purchases to immediate needs only in an attempt to minimize high priced inventories.

National Egg Market

Tuesday, November 10, 1992

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE: Prices were unchanged to higher on the large sizes in the Northeast, unchanged elsewhere. The market tone was steady to firm. Demand was fair to instances very good, best where features were in progress or planned for Thanksgiving. Supplies were adequate to occasionally ample, but expected holiday needs contributed to a confident attitude. Breaking stock supplies were adequate, and additional purchases were limited to cover immediate needs only. Live hen markets remained at least steady, and offerings were short to adequate of the moderate to good demand.

Oklahoma City Feeder Cattle

Oklahoma City, Okla.
Thursday, November 12, 1992

WEEKLY CATTLE SUMMARY: Compared to last week: Yearling steers and heifers firm to $2.00 higher. Yearling demand very good following last weeks substantial movement from feedlots. Calves steady to $2.00 lower than last weeks major advance. Demand good for thin calves, fair for fleshy unweaned calves. Quality of calves and yearlings improved with many average through attractive cattle offered. Calf consist changed from past two weeks with much larger percentage of unweaned calves in this weeks supply. Weigh-ups improved from buyers standpoint, mostly average. Central and Eastern Oklahoma receiving substantial rainfall. Western Oklahoma wheat pastures still in dire need of moisture but chances good later this week for storms. Slaughter cows steady to $.50 higher. Slaughter bulls steady. Slaughter cattle demand moderate. Large cow run this week with 1,039 head selling. Replacement, stocker, and feeder cow buyers aggressive and taking largest percentage of cows. Receipts this week 11,875; last week 7,992; last year 13,266. Supply consisted of 40% yearlings and calves over 600 lbs.; 51% calves; 9% cows and bulls. Bulk prices follow:

OKLAHOMA CITY 10,850. 44% yearlings. Steers: Medium and Large Frame 1, 300-350 lbs. 104.00-116.75; 350-425 lbs. 102.25-109.75; 425-500 lbs. 93.50-100.00; 500-550 lbs. 88.75-96.00; 550-600 lbs. 83.50-90.00; 600-700 lbs. even mix of calves and yrls 82.25-88.25; 700-800 lbs. 83.00-87.00; 800-850 lbs. 82.00-86.00; 850-900 lbs. 79.50-81.50. HOLSTEINS: 325-500 lbs. 78.75- 84.00; 575-650 lbs. 72.00-76.75; 775-875 lbs. 65.75-68.00. PAYBACK 24TM
A complete feed program for profitable herd replacement from Agway.

Until a heifer freshens and enters the milking string, she's pure expense And every day beyond the optimum 24 months costs you an extra $2 to $3 per day, per head in additional feed costs and lost milk production. At 28 months, for example, that's $10,000 to $15,000 worth of lost income in a 120-cow herd. A lot of money, even in good times.

Yet on many Northeast dairy farms, first-calf heifers don't freshen until 28, 30 or even 32 months!

The Problem?
Inadequate nutrition and poor management practices that result in undernourished, undersized heifers, unable to achieve optimum growth and full potential

The Solution? PAYBACK 24.
Payback 24 is a comprehensive program consisting of eight high-quality Agway feeds, intensive nutrition and cost-effective management practices—all designed to help you raise bigger, healthier heifers faster For fewer dollars. Ready to breed at 13 to 15 months Ready to start paying their own way at 24 months with greater lifetime potential and profitability.

Three brand-new feeds were specially developed by Agway for use in this program. a Calf Pre-Starter that delivers exceptional performance, unlike any other in the Northeast and a calf starter containing highly palatable Ruma Sweet™, preferred by calves more than 4 to 1 in a Land O' Lakes trial of 15 competitive calf starter feeds A selection of heifer feeds containing Bovatec® in several protein levels rounds out the Payback 24 feed program

Start Getting Your Payback Sooner.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

NOVEMBER 16-22, 1992

HOMEMADE BREAD DAY, NOV. 17.

TRAVEL IN TIME

Imagine traveling by rail in the "good old days" Each railroad scheduled arrivals and departures in terms of the particular city and each city set its own time standard (usually based on the sun's position over city hall) A cross country traveler had to adjust his watch 20 times to keep pace with the local variations! On arrival, the traveler wouldn t know if he was "on time" or not, since the time could vary by 30 minutes or more at different rail stations All this changed on November 18 1883 when the railroads adopted Standard Time Charles Ferdinand Dowd labored for 13 years to convince the American Railroad Association to try his time plan and although the railroads and the American people benefited greatly Professor Dowd is largely unremembered

In time take time while time doth last, for time Is no time when time is past.— Anonymous

TIP OF THE WEEK

Tip. Your crystal will sparkle when washed in a solution of 3 parts water to 1 part vinegar.

EARTHWISE

Are your shelves crammed with books, but you've got "nothing" to read? Why not try recycled reading Many communities now have second-hand bookstores that not only sell used paperbacks but also accept them for cash or credit toward your next purchase This has all the advantages of a yard sale without the work You can feel good about cleaning out your shelves, knowing that someone else will be reading the books And you can purchase "new" reading for yourself at less cost and lower environmental impact

POTATO BREAD

1 package yeast
1½ cups lukewarm water
½ cup sugar
1¼ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
¼ cup soft butter
1 cup warm mashed potatoes
7 to 7½ cups whole wheat flour

Dissolve yeast in water. Add next 5 ingredients Stir in flour to make pliable dough Knead 5 to 10 minutes Cover loosely and let rise until doubled Form into 2 loaves and place in greased 9x5-inch pans Let rise until doubled Bake at 350° F for 30 to 40 minutes

Makes 2 loaves

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

NORTHEAST: Seasonable and rainy, then sunny and pleasant, snowstorm west

SOUTHEAST: Rainy and seasonable then clearing and cold frosty

MIDWEST: Rainy and cool then cold and cloudy, snow north and east, sunny central

NORTHWEST: Clear and warm, rainy coast, then sunny and mild

OPINION

They Talked About That Big Calf

Terry D. Rector's column in the Vicksburg, Mississippi, Sunday Post of October 20, 1991, should give us all a lift! Rector is a county extension agent in Mississippi.

By Terry D. Rector, County Agent

Like most offices, we get lots of newsletters in the mail. Every imaginable subject related to agriculture generates one or more newsletters. I get newsletters that reveal everything from the latest research on pulpwood to some expert's opinion on this year's rice harvest in Thailand.

Recently, I've been intrigued by a fairly new periodical called "Breaking New Ground." Now country folks and former country folks know breaking new ground means clearing off trees or brush and plowing the ground for the first time. It's hard work. It may take years to grub out all the stumps and chunks and smooth out the rough spots. So "Breaking New Ground" is a good name for this newsletter for farmers with physical disabilities.

Reading the newsletter, I'm impressed with the efforts around the country to ensure physical impairments don't end the career of people with the brains and hearts to be farmers. I read about conferences, workshops and research projects to help disabled farmers adjust so they can keep on farming.

Much of the work centers on altering tractors and other farm machinery to accommodate the disabilities. A lot of the effort to overcome disabilities, however, isn't accomplished with tools, nuts and bolts or welding machines. A lot is accomplished by farmers and farm families sharing their stories. Fears and triumphs. Lifestyle changes necessitated and vows to change as little as possible.

Farming is among the occupations with the highest rates of disabling injuries. Plus, farmers as a group suffer about the same rate of disabling diseases as the rest of the population. So, each year there are farmers and their families who face the decision on whether they can carry on with an unexpected, permanent disability.

I well remember one day, still fresh on my first job as assistant county agent, getting a call from an elderly man about this extremely big calf one of his cows had delivered. It was the biggest newborn calf he and his neighbors had ever seen. The calf was 12 days old by now, but he would like to get it weighed.

I drove out to his place with a set of portable scales in tow. As I pulled up in his driveway, I was impressed by his modest, but very neat farm. The Yorkshire hogs, the large crossbred cattle and a very neat, green, one-acre garden.

Mr. Bill pulled up on his tractor and dismounted. That's when I noticed both his legs ended at the knees.

We weighed the calf. A whopping 203 pounds. I agreed as how I'd never seen anything like it.

I visited Mr. Bill other times over the years. Sometimes we'd walk through hog lots to select replacement gilts. Other times, I'd get there when he was hoeing in the garden. And many times I'd chat with him at the local livestock auction barn.

I never knew how he lost his legs. Never asked and nobody ever said. He was just one hardworking farmer in a whole community of hardworking farmers who helped one another when needed, they were friends and neighbors.

Nope, Mr. Bill's neighbors never mentioned any disability. But for years to come, they talked about that big calf.

NOW IS THE TIME

By John Schwartz
Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Look At Degradation Of Protein

Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, said "in addition to being concerned about the amount of protein in a cow's ration, a dairy farmer must be concerned about its quality (amino acid makeup) and its degradation in the rumen."

Cows need some soluble protein which may be degraded in the rumen where it is used to support good microbial activity and good digestion. This soluble protein may be in the form of nonprotein nitrogen (NPN).

Excess levels of soluble protein are wasted. They are unavailable and may even be toxic to the cow.

Cows need more protein than what is digested in the rumen in order to support high levels of milk production. This may be supplied via bypass protein. Bypass protein is not degraded in the rumen. It is digested in the intestinal tract and becomes available for meeting the cow's needs.

NPN feeds, such as urea and ammonia, may help meet the cow's needs for soluble protein. However, these products must be fed carefully so they do not exceed tolerable levels for NPN and the cow's need for soluble protein.

To Prepare For Winter Ventilation

With the beginning of cold weather, we are switching our ventilation systems to winter time operation.

The objective of winter ventilation is moisture removal while obtaining desirable temperatures. This is achieved by moving less air. To maintain acceptable air quality in the house, we need to control moisture and air leaks.

The key to successful ventilation is location of inlets. This allows you to bring in the air where you want it. Air leaks around doors (especially pit doors) and fan housings and fan lovers allows air to enter where it does not reach the housed animals.

Some tips to improve winter ventilation:. 1. Caulk around fan housings. 2. Make sure louvers close tightly. 3. Fix pit doors and make sure they close tightly. 4. Fix water leaks immediately. 5. Keep broken eggs out of the manure pit.

Air quality goals include keeping ammonia levels below 25 parts per million and relative humidity between 40 and 60 percent.

By controlling moisture and air leaks, you will improve the air quality in your barns.

To Establish Swine Biosecurity

With the concern over the spread of pseudorabies, swine producers need to discuss with their veterinarian how to establish procedures to minimize the risk of disease transmission from neighboring pork production units, herd additions, and people.

Attention also needs to be given to reducing the likelihood of transmission of disease organisms from one group of pigs to another within the same farm.

When animals are acquired, check on the health status of pigs to be purchased. Pigs of unknown and multiple origins should be handled with special precautions. The physical separation of newly received animals from those already in the facility is very important until the health of the new arrivals has been evaluated and found acceptable.

Segregating pig groups by age helps decrease disease transmission within herds. It also allows for complete cleaning and disinfection of facilities.

When pigs are transported to market, precautions should be taken to prevent any disease transmission from loading and unloading chutes or pens. All trucks entering the farm should be clean before coming on the farm, including the ones you own.

Limit people movement. Provide disinfectant footbaths between pens. Change these footbaths regularly. Avoid contact with other people's pigs.

If you must visit other people's pigs, shower and change clothes before returning to your pigs. Every producer should provide clothing and footwear to farm visitors. This way you know where the clothes and boots have been and their cleanliness.

By practising biosecurity, we reduce the risk of spreading diseases.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

"GETTING REAL" ABOUT LOVE
November 15, 1992

Background Scripture:
Hosea 1:1-3; 3:1-2; 6:4-6; 11:1-4.

Devotional Reading:
Hosea 3:1-5.

"Get real!" is not phrase I've ever used until this moment. I have some very real prejudices against the use of slang, but this expression is widely used today as a way of saying "be realistic, use your head!"

So, having gotten your attention, I want to challenge you to be realistic about love. Actually, I know of no other experience about which people are likely to be less realistic. A couple came to me for counseling. He was hurt and angry because she had deceived him several times. He was ready to call it quits, feeling that he could no longer trust her. But, his conscience bothered him because it seemed that the Gospel admonished him to go on forgiving her indefinitely. "I don't know that I can give her unconditional love," he said. "I can will it, but I can't feel it."

UNCONDITIONAL LOVE

What these people are seeking is a realistic understanding of love—not a lofty ideal that doesn't work, but a pragmatic one that does. Is the Christian concept of love "for real," or is it simply another great idea that flunks the reality test?

In Hosea we get a very realistic view of love, even though at first glance it may not seem realistic at all. This is what we call "unconditional love." God tells Hosea to take as his wife a woman who is a prostitute. His purpose: to call attention to the fact that "the land commits great harlotry by forsaking the Lord" 1:2). Hosea's marriage to this fallen woman is a symbol of God's concern for his fallen people. Later, when his wife has forsaken him in adultery, God comes to Hosea again and says: "Go again, love a woman who is beloved of a paramour and is an adultress; even as the Lord loves the people of Israel, though they turn to other gods..."(3:1).

So real love is active rather than passive. It does not wait for the sinner to come to his or her senses, but takes the initiative in trying to effect redemption. No one is beyond our love, no matter how faithless they have been. Futhermore, our efforts may be neither appreciated nor successful, but that should not keep us from giving our love. At that rate, God could never bestow his love on us, for often we are unappreciative and unresponding.

REALISTIC?

But doesn't this unconditional love fail the reality test? Isn't it fruitless to continue to love and help someone who doesn't appreciate it and takes advantage of us? The answer is an unequivocal "no" and "yes". No, we must not stop loving if our love is unappreciated and abused, but "yes," we may need to stop saying "yes" when saying "no" is what they really need. Love is not weak, but strong enough to do what must be done for the other's sake.

Although Hosea treats his wife with love, he is realistic. He doesn't deny her prostitution and adultery. His love does not mean he approves what she has done, nor does it save her from all the consequences. Sin is not cheap; it costs both the sinner and the forgiver. And this is also the message that God brings to Israel through Hosea; your sins have brought suffering to you and heartache to God, but, if you will turn to him, he will welcome you back. Like a loving father or mother, his arms are open, but it is in the power of the child to accept or reject that love.

Don't worry if you can only will love and not feel it. Real love and not feel it. Real love is much more of the will than of feelings. So, "get real" and give love, for it alone passes the reality test.

Shuttle-Stroke Cleaner

This completely-different type of cleaner is ideal for cattle yards, hog lots, and barns with single or odd-number gutters. Used in conjunction with the chain type cleaner, it provides complete versatility of layout arrangement.

The drive unit moves a steel bar in the corner of the gutter back and forth in eight-foot strokes.

Malleable iron paddles attached to the bar open across the gutter to move manure toward the spreader on the forward stroke.

On the reverse stroke, the paddles fold back against the bar to bypass and mix the manure they will carry forward on the next stroke. The push-pull action is illustrated below.

HOW IT WORKS

The rotating chain of the drive unit is shown at right. A short pitman bar attached to the drive chain transforms circular motion into straight-line motion, moving the gutter bar back and forth. The simplicity of design has made this cleaner famous for its long trouble-free years of service.

STILL NUMBER O

Big Dutchman.®

If You Are Looking at Another Cage System, Take A Moment t S

No matter what you have heard from our competition, Big Dutchman is still Number One, with the best cage system by far. Locally some Big Dutchman systems are approaching their twentieth year of service, and still going strong.

Our feeder delivers feed to the birds uniformly, amply, and with great reliability.
The design of the system helps to keep eggs cleaner, and the superior suspension method makes the entire cage row stronger.

WHOSE FEEDER IS BETTER?

DESIGN... Our chain feeder allows easy access to feed, but keeps feed levels further below the lip of the trough compared to the grinding auger feeder. The chain feeder has a steep sidewall, discouraging feed build-up. The auger feeder trough has a slope that allows build-up, inviting mold and disease. Our trough is ribbed, for strength. Theirs is built for price alone.

FEEDING SPACE... Actual feeding space with the auger feeder is skimpy. In fact, our chain feeder has 2½ times more feeding space per bird. This allows the chain feeder to run as few as three times per day, while the auger must run eight or more times per day. Chain carries the feed and supplies a uniform ration with no waste.

FEED CONTROL... The chain feeding system does not dictate a feeding program. You are in control, feeding exactly what is needed, as little or as much as you want, when you want. The auger's frequent running times, with stops and starts, can interrupt birds during peak laying periods.

EGG SIZE and QUALITY... Birds that eat properly lay larger eggs. The price on large vs. medium makes a world of difference. The chain feeder allows an early feeding, then ample time for the hen to lay before the next feeding. With an auger feeder, hens fight for feeding space, spend much more time than necessary at the feeder, and create unwanted activity in the cage. The results are smaller eggs and more crax and chex. Profits go down. Put a pencil on it.

REPAIR and MAINTENANCE... The hardest thing about repairing a chain feeder is remembering where you left the hammer and chain breaker tool some months back. With an auger system the need for a welder, torch and grinder is almost routine. Downtime is up, and repair hours and expenses rise with it.

THE TEST of TIME... The chain feeder seems never to wear out. Some thirty year old units are still performing every day. On the other hand, the auger system is "short term," with time as it's enemy. Our goal is to help you make a profit, and chain feeding plays a leading role.

WHOSE CAGE I

STRENGTH... The wrap-around single piece construction of our heavy duty front, top and back makes our cage stronger.

GALVANIZING METHOD... The formed bottom and back are completely double galvanized. In addition, we double galvanize every cage partition completely, from top to bottom for the ultimate in protection from rust and for longer service life. Double galvanizing actually provides more than three times as much zinc, compared to single galvanizing.

CONTROL... Our cage is designed and constructed to control egg roll, significantly reducing crax and chex and providing cleaner eggs.

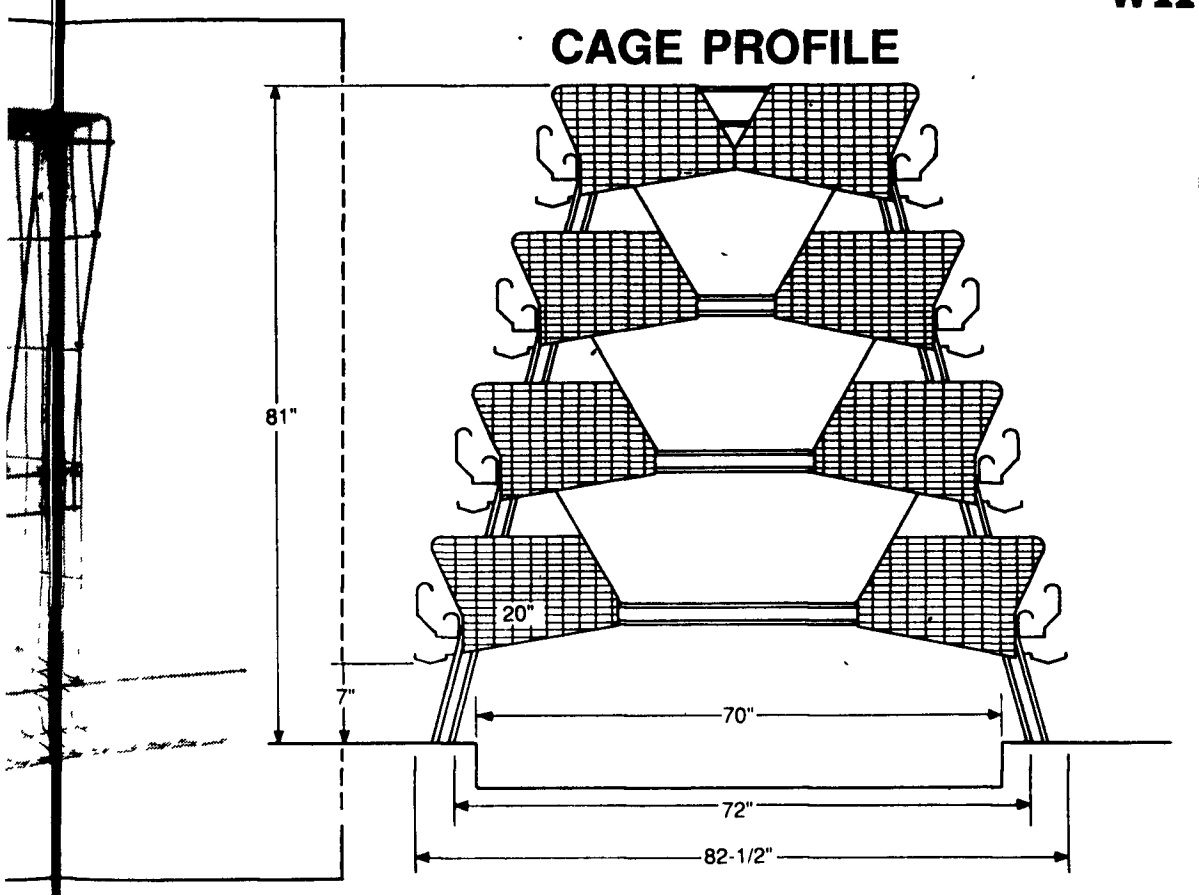
Couple the Big Dutchman cages with a Hershey-designed building and equipment installation and you have an unbeatable combination for service and efficiency.
A Hershey system is better ventilated, and has been proven to use less electricity.

A Hershey building includes more lumber and heavier metal in its construction, and therefore is stronger by design.
And, there is a real bonus in it, because a Hershey built system provides a bigger percentage of larger eggs for a longer period of time.

AGE IS BETTER?



CAGE DOORS... Our sliding door is easy for the operator to open and close, but impossible for a bird to open. Once closed, the door stays closed.

ALIGNMENT... Our rows stay aligned, enhancing top performance from the feeders and egg collectors.

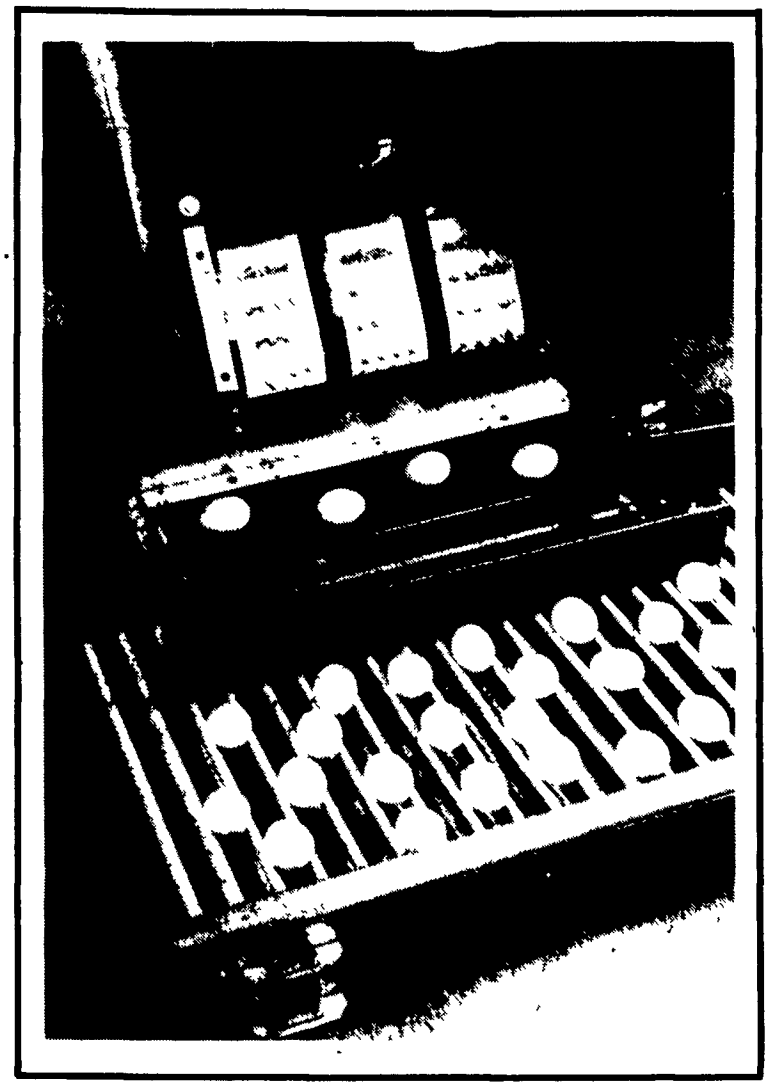
A PROPER FIT... Our feed trough fits snugly on the cage. This provides strength, and protects eggs as they move to the egg belt. The straight inner side of the trough also acts as a manure shield.

WHOSE COLLECTOR IS BETTER?

FINGERBELT TRANSFER... The Big Dutchman fingerbelt collector utilizes a series of rubber fingers mounted in a durable belt to hold eggs in a safe position on the incline, going down from cage belts to cross-conveyor.

DUAL DRIVE... Each collector has two drive motors, one for each side. This provides better control with fewer moving parts. Shafts and bearings are all heavy duty material.

PROVEN ROD CONVEYOR... The rod conveyor moves eggs from the collector to the packer with no rolling or colliding. It can move up and down inclines, and is ideal for moving eggs between several houses and the packing room in multi-building farms.



QUALITY EGG BELT... We offer our standard 3¾ inch woven fabric belts. A shallow "V" shape in the wire egg tray keeps eggs in the center.

UNIQUE DESIGN... The Big Dutchman collector does not protrude or hang over the cross conveyor. The full width of the conveyor is used to handle more eggs with less contact between eggs. Dirt, feathers and soft-shells drop through the rod conveyor and are not carried to the packer.

Almquist Research Awards Presented

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science has chosen three young scholars to receive the first John O. Almquist Graduate Student Research Awards. Harry Roth of Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, the sponsor of the awards, made the presentations to Lisa Holden, Kanthasamy Karunanandaa, and Muhammed Shahab at a luncheon ceremony. All three are Ph.D. candidates in Animal Science.

Department Head Stanley Curtis said, "This is an event we've been looking forward to, a coming together of University and industrial interests to enchance fruitful, applicable animal science research in the future. It is indeed a special day in the life of this department."

The purposes of the Almquist Awards are to assist graduate students in conducting quality research, to encourage the development of quality research proposals, and to provide experience in writing competitive research proposals.

Lisa Holden's research topic is Effects of corn silage and grain versus grain supplementation of high-producing dairy cows grazing grass pastures. Her advisor is Professor Lawarence Muller.

Kanthasamy "Karu" Karunanandaa's topic is Fungal pretreatment of rice straw: Effects on the biodegradability of cell walls in situ and on nutrient digestibility and microbial protein synthesis during continuous culture. Professor Gabriella Varga is Karu's advisor.

Muhammad Shahab, whose faculty advisor is Professor Daniel Deaver, has chosen The role of neuro-excitatory amino acids in central regulation of growth hormone secretion in cattle for his topic.

All three awardess will present their findings in the department's Colloquium series during the semester their thesis is completed. Each awardee received $3,000 to support research in pursuit of a graduate degree.

John O. Almquist, for whom the awards are named, was on hand at the presentation to congratulate winners. Almquist, who served on the Penn State faculty for nearly 40 years, retired in 1983. He joined the research faculty in 1944, six years before his creation of the Dairy Breeding Research Center. He received the 1981 Wolf Prize in Agriculture—an award referred to as the equivalent of the Nobel Prize—for his work in artificial insemination for livestock improvement. Many techniques Almquist developed for cattle have been applied to other species, including humans.

Farmers Tell How They Use DHI To Follow Genetic Improvement

In December 1990, the DHI herd summary sheets took on a new look that is by now familiar to most folks who use DHI records regularly. Among the changes introduced were several items that can be used to evaluate a herd breeding program and the progress that is being made through sire selection. The Genetic Profile of Service Sires (Example 1) on the herd summary sheet shows what percent of cows carrying service are bred to proven bulls, young sires in AI, and all other sires. The summary also shows how many bulls were used, the average PTA$ or parent average, and the average percentile rank of service sires. Genetic merit of milking cows, their sires, and percent of cows identified by sire and dam are also included. (Example 2)

During herdbook clinic visits, extension specialists will look over these items drawing attention to strengths and weaknesses that appear. A question that has always been in the back of my mind was just how useful dairy producers found this information to be on the days when the extension agent wasn't on the farm. In other words, do these items really serve a purpose in the minds of dairy producers?

During the 1991 Virginia Dairy Herd Survey, we decided to try to find out. We listed several of the above items and asked farmers to indicate if they used the information every month, less than once a month, or never. The results are shown below.

Item	Use monthly	Use less than once a month	Never use
% of herd bred to proven bulls	44%	26%	30%
Avg. rank of proven bulls	39%	38%	23%
% of herd bred to AI young sires	29%	36%	35%
% of herd bred to all other sires	30%	35%	35%
PTA$ of sires of cows	53%	33%	14%
% cows identified by sire	55%	25%	20%

Most DHI members look at genetic information in their records, at least periodically. The genetic side of herd management has never been the number one reason why most producers are on test, so 100% participation is an unrealistic expectation. On the other hand, it is good to see frequent use of some of the genetic figures on the DHI sheets. Records used are records appreciated. They're also the only ones that do any real good. The survey showed that farmers were more interested in the genetic merit of sires they used in the past (sires of cows currently in milk) than in service sires being used in the herd today. For years, Virginia producers have had one of the highest rates of sire identification in the United States. The survey shows that this number is still important.

Percent of herd bred to AI young sires and all other sires was less important than percent bred to proven bulls. This makes sense because so many users of young sires in Virginia do so through a cooperative agreement with a stud that eliminates many of the decisions about how much to use young bulls or which ones to use. The proven bulls are where people feel they have the most control, so that's where they look when the DHI records arrive each month.

As far as paying the mortgage next month, the genetic ability of the cows in the herd is the most important genetic factor listed on DHI sheets. Producer response to the survey indicates that many agree. However, producers really can't do much to correct a problem with genetic merit of sires of cows currently in the herd. The most effective way a manager can change genetic merit of milking cows takes time and good service sire selection. I always look first at the rank of proven bulls, but of equal importance is the percent of the herd bred to proven bulls. Targets for these two figures would be to breed around 75 to 80% of the herd to proven bulls averaging above the 80th percentile for production. The rest of the herd should be bred to AI young sires.

The percentage of producers never using the information on genetic merit of service sires is bothersome. I can accept lack of interest by producers as a personal choice they have the right to make. However, failure to use the information could be because the herd summary sheet doesn't reflect what is really going on in the herd. In order for the genetic profile of service sires to be accurate, service sires must be recorded properly by the field service technician on test day. This always requires cooperation between the producer and the technician, and if problems exist, they will only be solved by cooperation. Service sires must be entered by NAAB code number or registration number to be accurately cross-referenced to current proofs by the computer. Errors can easily be made, since service sire ID requires at least 5 digits of information. When lots of breedings are occurring - like right now - chances for mistakes increase.

I feel it is the producer's responsibility to look over details like service sire that depend on records kept on the farm between test days. If mistakes are found, the technician has the responsibility to correct the problems at the next test. If this procedure is followed - complete entry of data on test day, checking by someone else when records arrive, and correction of errors the following test - the entire record system will be much more useful to the person paying the bills. Neither the farmer nor the technician can do the job alone, however.

Extra detail on merit of service sires has made correct entry of service sire ID more important than in the past, but the importance of good sire ID goes beyond the herd summary sheet. Only records correctly identified by sire, with valid birth and calving dates, are acceptable for genetic evaluation by USDA. Sire ID of a milking cow starts with correct service sire ID on her dam. The Raleigh DRPC heifer management option uses service sire ID as sire identification for milking cows three years down the road. When a cow has a heifer calf in a herd on heifer management, a new record is started in the heifer herd for that calf. The cow's fresh date becomes the date of birth, and the cow's last service sire becomes the sire of the calf (if the gestation interval is acceptable). If an error was made when the cow was originally bred, that error will carry on to the heifer calf's ID. On the other hand, if the service sire is entered correctly, all the farmer needs to do to keep good sire ID in the herd is to be able to say which heifer from the heifer herd freshened each time a new two year old enters the milking string. The computer in Raleigh keeps track of the details.

Genetic Improvement

The survey results from last year have really been helpful to me in understanding how farmers use genetic information. The results suggest a need for those of us involved in DHI to make sure that the records are accurate. There is an educational challenge to make sure farmers realize that sire selection is the action point where genetic merit of the herd can be changed. It is gratifying to know that a substantial percentage of DHI members do look at their genetic situation each and every month. Genetic improvement pays dividends and dairy farmers know it.

20 years ago, CFS introduced waxy hybrids. Today, 20 years later, CFS waxy hybrids equal ... or better ... your favorite dent in bushels per acre, standability and overall performance.

But users realize the real benefits of CFS waxy ... 100% amylopectin starch.
While dent corn is composed of 25% amylose ... the less digestible starch, CFS waxy is 100% amylopectin, and zero amylose. Starch intake is what produces milk and weight gain in livestock. It stands to reason that CFS waxy will produce more milk for dairy producers and faster weight gain for livestock producers, on less grain fed.

Hoffman Seeds Offers Savings With Pak Programs

LANDISVILLE, Pa. — Hoffman Seeds now offers two Pak programs to meet the growing needs of northeastern farmers.

The 48-unit Performance Pak® is designed for larger acreage farmers. It contains 24 units each of two performance-proven Funk's G® brand hybrids, while offering farmers $330 in savings.

The 12-unit Trial Pak® contains six units each of two Funk's G brand hybrids with savings of $50. It is best suited to farmers who have fewer acres or who have never tried Funk's G brand hybrids.

Available hybrid pairings include 4070/4023, 4070/4160, 4160/4260, 4260/4385, 4385/4472, 4393/4472, 4472/4530, 4530/4671, 4530/4624, 4624/4671 and 4671/4820.

poultry science at Penn State, spoke about ventilation with broilers and turkeys and the importance of keeping the house heated in the winter in a manner most efficient with fuel usage.

Also, growout managers must stem ammonia buildup, because it kills profits.

USDA projected the corn crop this year at a little under 9 billion bushels, which means that there will be more corn available for storage next year, according to Dr. Milt Madison, ag economist at Penn State.

Madison provided an outlook on the poultry industry through the upcoming year.

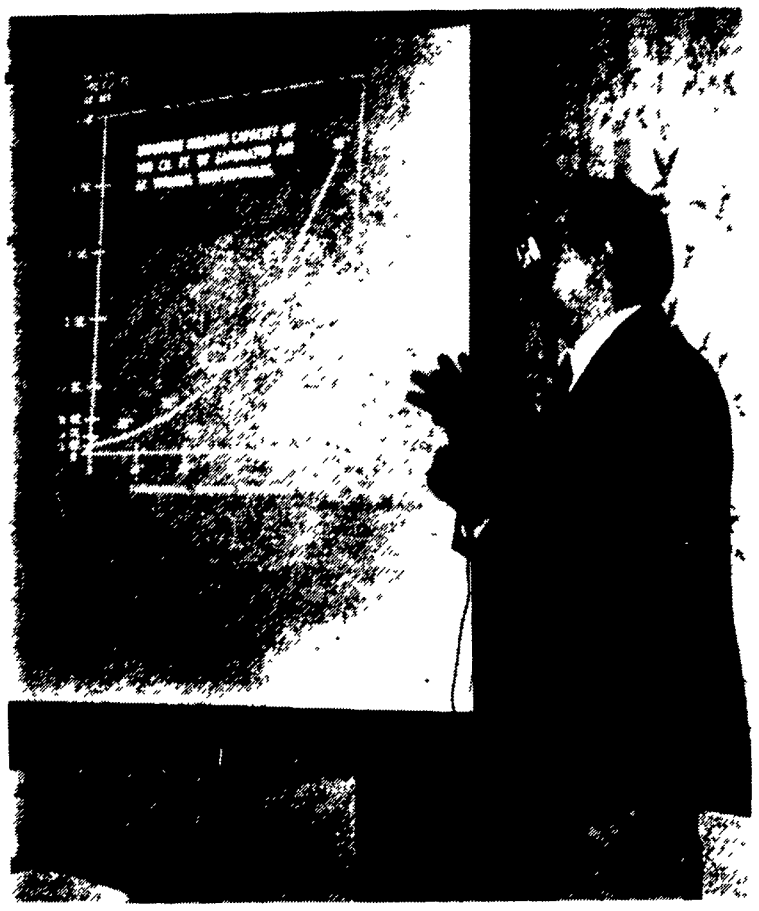
USDA may have to revise the corn harvest figures in light of the quick onslaught of winter weather, especially in the Midwest, where, according to Madison, in places there is 6 to 7 inches of snow in fields with 30 percent moisture corn.

Soybean production is up 6 percent from last year. And more red meat products are on the store shelves, competing with poultry products. Hog production is up 15 percent this year than last, which means there will be "a lot of hogs that people are going to try to move through the stores," said Madison.

Altogether, the poultry industry should remain profitable, and Madison predicted that there will be a 5 percent per pound profit on the wholesale price of broilers to producers. Also, exports continue to climb — next year, 6 percent of the total broiler product will be exported.

But large feed supplies should keep production costs down overall.

For layers, there is a range of 10-15 percent lower price available as demand and consumption continue to drop. But the lower feed costs should provide slightly positive egg returns.



Bill Weaver, department of poultry science at Penn State, spoke about ventilation with broilers and turkeys and the importance of keeping the house heated in the winter in a manner most efficient with fuel usage.

Lebanon 4-H Dairy Youth Honored

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

IONA (Lebanon Co.) — There is a national trend of fewer and fewer young couples with children having dairy farms, and consequently fewer youth getting started in 4-H dairy programs.

But not in Lebanon County.

Last Friday evening, the county held its 4-H dairy awards banquet at Iona United Methodist Church to recognize the achievements of its youth involved in the four county clubs.

According to Kenneth Winebark, extension agent, the filled-to-capacity church auditorium represented perhaps the largest turnout in recent history to honor the 98 members.

Winebark also said that, although a few members will be leaving the group because of age restrictions, he looks foward to new members who are expected to join one of the four county clubs.

The four clubs in the county are Cedar Crest, Elco (Eastern Lebanon County), Norlebco (Northern Lebanon County), and NoSoAnn (North, South Annville).

Winebark praised not only the outstanding achievements of club members and the individual achievements of some, but he also praised the leaders who volunteered to help their and others' children develop and learn.

The dairy project book — a record kept by the youth with data concerning their animal's growth, registration, costs and medical history — is one of the cornerstones of the whole 4-H program.

The project book teaches the value of records in being able to be accurate and in making decisions about the animal. It also helps calculate the cost of production, and the return.

There are basically two levels of project books, more sophisticated and demanding. However, there are two higher levels pending.

According to Winebark, Kevin Bomgardner, son of John and Margaret, completed an independeent study which is a proposed level IV dairy record book project. The higher levels of project books are expected to officially become available next year.

Bomgardner did the special project, an independent study on the fungal disease ringworm, with the help of an Annville-based veterinarian, Dr. George Keck.

Winebark said that he expects to see some good use of the higher level record book projects when they become available.

Turning to recognizing leaders, he said that without the leaders to help answer questions, to show how to groom and care for certain animals, to help and advise the youth make decisions, educate and direct to sources of information, and to act as guardian and chaparones, the 4-H programs would not exist.

"I want to recognize all the great leaders we have," Winebark said. "You all have been doing an outstanding job and are setting good examples."

As an example of the county's adult volunteer support and dedication, Winebark said that a 4-H leader training workshop was offered to help volunteers be better leaders, and 27 people from the Lebanon area attended.

"At the regional leader training there were fewer attending and that was supposed to cover the whole southeast (region of Pennsylvania)," he said. "I think that says something about the quality of people in our volunteer program and their desire and commitment to our youth."

Kenneth Winebark, county extension agent presents the Susan Heilinger Werner Memorial Award to Karen Lentz.

From the left, the top scorer in the Hoard's Dairyman contest is Alisha Myers, Kraig Sellers receives a plaque as Lebanon County outstanding dairy judge, and the outstanding dairy bowl member is Kathy Habecker.

In addition to distributing a black nylon-rope halter to each member, several awards were presented.

The Lebanon County outstanding dairy judge was Kraig Sellers. The top scorer in the Hoard's Dairyman contest was Alisha Myers. The outstanding dairy bowl member was Kathy Habecker.

The Susan Heilinger Werner Memorial Award was presented to Karen Lentz, daughter of Robert and Sandy Lentz, along with the $100 scholarship money. Her name is to be engraved on a plaque which is kept in the extension office.

The 10-year-old award is presented annually to the top dairy member in the county, based on 4-H record, scholastic achievement, career goals, community service, etc.

Outstanding rookie of the year was Hannah Bomgardner, while Andy Martin had the top level I record book and sister Allison Martin had the top level II record book.

Per club, the outstanding level I record books were compiled by Rachael Krall, Cedar Crest; Justin Troutman, Elco; Ryan Miller, Norlebco; and Andy Martin, NoSoAnn.

The level II record book winners were Jennifer Reist, Cedar Crest; Stephanie Wagner, Elco; Jay Bomgardner, Norlebco; and Allison Martin, NoSoAnn.

Also recognized were the different club's rookie of the year. Christopher Bennetch was the top rookie for Elco; Hannah Bomgardner for NoSoAnn; and Sarah Krall for Cedar Crest. Norlebco didn't have a rookie this past year.

There were 38 sponsors recognized for their support and Lebanon Agway was given special thanks for its sponsorship of the 4-H dairy bred and owned project award.

This special award is based on a 50-point program, with 20 points for record book, 10 points for fit-out score, 10 points for showmanship score, and 10 points for the animal's type classification.

There were three winners selected with Stephanie Wagner winning the top place and receiving a $200 savings bond. Also receiving $100 savings bonds were Allison Martin and Jay Bomgardner.

Door prizes were sponsored by Lynn Krissinger, with Select Sires, Umbergers of Fontana, and the NoSoAnn Dairy Club.

Other sponsors included Miracle Feeds Inc.; Lancaster Dairy Farm Automation Inc.; Justa Farm; FM Brown's Sons Inc.; Atlantic Breeders Co-op; Avon Animal Clinic Inc.; Loving Meadows Holsteins; Harry H. Bachman; Shirksville Farm Supply; Keller Bros.; Sire Power; Oakenbound Holsteins; Shuey's Sales Service; Keystone Farm Credit; JuVindale Holsteins; Star Silos; Scott Balsbaugh; Mark C. dogs, raising more than six certified seeing eye dogs. She has also been host to international visitor from Japan.

Also recognized was Mildred Seeds, who was honored for her unselfish openness with her farm to the county's youth. It is well known of how she has helped youth show Jersey cattle and provided a start for interest in livestock.

Claudette Tharp, project manager of the Youth Educational Programs of Chester County, which is part of the extension program, made the presentation to Seeds citing specifically the help that Seeds had provided in allowing youth to come to her farm and make buttery and touch and pet the cows, etc.

According to Tharp, her mission in part is to "teach that milk does not come from a grocery store." She said Seeds help has been very important to getting that knowledge across.

Guest speaker for the evening was Gary Greers, with KYW-TV3, former host of Farm, Home and Garden program which he hosted for 39 years, 3 months.

Greers was critical of the management and control of the television and radio industries, citing a bottom-line-only approach with little regard to viewer wants. He said that programing is more syndicated and not local, if relevant at all.

He said that ratings aren't even as important as they once were. He said that now the most important thing to media managers is what can be sold to advertisers for the most profit.

The last bastion of local television is public access cable, he said. He said that he firmly believes that

Banquet Raises Funds For Trust

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

WILLOW STREET (Lancaster Co.) — "We are opposing the development south of New Holland," said Alan Musselman, executive director of the Lancaster Farmland Trust.

Musselman, speaking to more than 350 supporters at the annual banquet at Willow Valley Restaurant last week, said the trust is not opposed to development per se, but that the proposed retirement community in Earl Township should be relocated "to a more appropriate place and allow growth to occur in the way that it should."

Musselman spoke about the "anchoring" effect that trust holdings has had on stabilizing and maintaining the rich agricultural heritage that is Lancaster County. He also spoke about an Amish farm near Bird In Hand that recently joined the trust, and how the trust tries to preserve not only solid farm land, but the house and other historical tracts precious to the heritage of the county.

Several awards were also presented at the banquet. Among those recognized include a Land Benefactor Award, presented to the Manheim Township commissioners and the Hogan Development Co.; Ken and Sandy Messner, for preserving their Rapho Township farm; the Fundraising Award to William Hoffman, who road bike across the country and raised $3,000 for the trust; a Distinguished Service Award to Robert Coughlin, for several studies about ag zoning in Lancaster; and Marci Harnish, first prize in an essay contest which stressed the importance of preserving agriculture.

About $2,500 was raised at the benefit auction conducted by Eric Probst, and about $22,390 (from a $7,500 total pledge and additional matching funds) were raised by the trust at the banquet.

Also, new board of trustee members were elected. They are Lois Herr, Richard and Penny Armstrong, John H. Saeger, and Charles Hoober.

Dairy 4-H'ers Honored At Banquet

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster County 4-H dairy champions were honored at the annual awards celebration last week at the Farm and Home Center.

Fran Kennel, Mount Joy, was honored as best owner/breeder, Holstein category, at the banquet. She was profiled in the November 7 issue of Lancaster Farming.

Other owner/breeder honors for the colored breeds include Heather Becker, Narvon, Ayrshire; Elizabeth Smith, Denver, Brown Swiss; Brian Smith, Denver, Guernsey; and Karen Shaub, Quarryville, Jersey.

Champion showman honors went to: 8-10 Year Div. Champ: Nathan Kennel, Mount Joy. Reserve: Laura Blank, Gap. 11-13 Year Div. Champ: Sarah Kennel, Mount Joy. Reserve: Zachary Meck, Denver. 14-18 Year Div. Champ: Matthew Welk, Peach Bottom. Reserve: Sherri Coleman, Ronks.

Record book champions included: Champion 8-10 Year Old: Jill Hoover, Gap. Reserve: Amy Kreider, Quarryville. Champion 11-13 Year Old: Gerald Boyd, Ephrata. Reserve: Joe Best, Holtwood. Champion 14-18 Year Old: Jesslyn Oberholtzer, Elizabethtown. Reserve: Dan Geissinger, Gordonville.

Breed champions included: Junior: Ayrshire: Elizabeth Spickler, Mount Joy. Brown Swiss: Gerald Boyd, Ephrata. Guernsey: Brian Smith, Denver. Holstein: Sarah Kennel, Mount Joy. Senior: Ayrshire: Heather Becker, Narvon. Brown Swiss: Scott Wagner, Quarryville. Guernsey: Brian Smith, Denver. Holstein: Matthew Welk, Peach Bottom. Jersey: Karen Shaub, Quarryville.

A new award, honoring members for their excellence in telling their 4-H story, was given to Dana Groff in the junior division, Gerald Boyd in the intermediate division, and Melissa Enck in the senior division. Honorable mention winners were Joe Best, Denise Best, Tom Herr, and Heather Becker.

Dairy picture contest winners were Beth Spickler, Brian Smith, Gerald Boyd, Elizabeth Smith, Brian Smith, Brian Oberholtzer, and Jesslyn Oberholtzer. Winning honorable mentions were Brent Oberholtzer, Delmar Oberholtzer, and Beth Skiles.

Veteran dairy leaders were also recognized, including Dale Smith of Denver, 20-year award, and Robert Kauffman Jr. of Peach Bottom, a 10-year award.

Judy Geissinger of Gordonville designed the winning program cover.

Juniata Banquet

drainage, 12.5 acres of contour farming, and 108 acres of cover crop.

Raymond and wife Wilma are youth ministerial advisors for the Lost Creek Mennonite Church, where Raymond also serves as deacon and Sunday School teacher. He also holds membership in the Lancaster Mennonite Church Historical Society, is a member of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association, Agway, Sire Power, and the Maryland Virginia Milk Producers Association.

Marlin is a member of the Lost Creek Mennonite Church, has served as president of the Juniata County Farmer's Association for two years, and is a co-director of the Juniata Valley Chorus.

Keith Eckel, president of PFA, spoke about the heartland of Pennsylvania which is Juniata County at the banquet, and about agriculture and the environment into the next century. He said that, as president of PFA for 10 years, in the early years "I was told farm families would be out of business, there would be no future. At that time, Pennsylvania had sales of $2.25 billion. This year the total is $4 billion. We have not gone backward, we have gone forward."

Eckel said that farm families continue to grow, and the importance of "maintaining competitiveness and keeping our environment safe."

Also, Dane Lauver, Juniata County Chesapeake Bay nutrient management technician, presented a slide show and narrative on the Chesapeake Bay Educational Trip taken earlier this year.

ABS Names Baker To President's Round Table

DEFOREST, Wis. — American Breeders Service (ABS) recently honored Douglas Baker for his outstanding contributions to ABS. He joins an elite group of 13 field staff selected to the President's Round Table.

The President's Round Table is an annual event designed to recognize employees who have made outstanding contributions to the company.

This year, the top 10 U.S. district sales managers (DSM's), the top U.S. Regional Sales Manger (RSM) and the top international DSM and RSM were recognized.

Selection was based on a point system incorporating each individual's goals, contributions toward growth and overall performance. The President's Round Table conference was held August 21-23, at Cheyenne Mountain in Colorado.

Baker is currently a district sales manager for Maryland and central Pennsylvania, and supervises 13 independent representatives.

As a DSM, Baker is responsible for the company's sales activities, marketing distribution and representative coaching within his district. Baker began his career with ABS six years ago as a representative in northern Michigan and shortly thereafter, became a genetic management service (GMS) evaluator with the company.

Baker received his bachelor of science degree in dairy science from Michigan State University. Currently, he is a member of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association and the National Holstein Association. Baker and his wife, Beth, reside in Lewisburg. In his spare time, Baker enjoys showing and judging cows.

MORE PROTEIN POWER with TYPE AND RELIABILITY from ABS®

ENDEAVOR

+68 lbs. Protein +2.21 PTAT +2.65 Dairy Composite
76% Rel.

ENDEAVOR is a type and protein specialist. He sires tall, strong, deep-bodied cows with a good rib and thurl width. ENDEAVOR daughters also have high, wide rear udders with good center support. Use him on cows with correct teat length and placement, as well as slope to the rump. ENDEAVOR will soon have sons entering the ABS Progeny Test program.

Maternal Grandsire: S-W-D Valiant 1650414 EX-95 GM

MELWOOD

+64 lbs. Protein +1.85 PTAT +2.62 Dairy Composite
99% Rel.

At a time when many popular bulls have negative foot and leg composite, MELWOOD is an exceptional alternative. No other bull in the breed's history has ever combined such remarkable genetic attributes...superb foot and leg conformation, incredible fat and protein yield, along with a positive udder composite. His daughters are also tall, strong and have an open dairy frame.

Sire: Arlinda Rotate 1697572 EX-92 GM
Maternal Grandsire: Paclamar Combination 1531866 EX-90 GM

+91 Lbs. Protein +1.07 PTAT +1.72 Dairy Composite
88% Rel.

CUBBY is the number one protein bull in the U.S. regardless of breed. His daughters are tall, exceptional strong, deep-bodied cattle with excellent feet and legs and good width of rump. CUBBY works best on cows with high, wide rear udders, deep udder cleft and correct teat placement. You can also count on ABS as your source for the best selection of CUBBY sons.

Sire: Rockalli Son of Bova *TD 1665634 VG-88 GM

Herd Management Awards Provide New Incentives

DIXIE BURRIS
Manager, Membership Development

The previous article explained some changes in your reports and new information made available to Pa. DHIA members.

Earlier this year, the Pa. DHIA board adopted a revision to the member recognition program that was initiated last year for the first time. Suggestions were made to include, in the member recognition award program, those with herds that have increased and maintained production levels over the years.

The program changes were effective with the current cow year ending Sept. 30.

This improved/sustained production award focuses on herd production improvement in three major herd management areas and sustained production for herds that have been producing at levels above breed averages.

The four management areas included are production improvement in milk, fat and protein; sustained production in milk, fat and protein; mastisis management improvement; and reproductive management improvement.

(Turn to Page A33)

Within these areas, points are assigned to each one, based on how well members did with each factor. Points for each factor will be added.

The higher the point total, the better the performance and the greater the chance of winning recognition.

Herd Qualifications

There are some basic qualifications to participate.

For instance, you must have a minimum of 10 cow years and 20

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's this week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania. Remember these are averages so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

HERD MANAGEMENT AWARDS

BASIC QUALIFICATIONS TO EARN POINTS

1. All data used will be as of the end of cow testing year, which occurs on or about September 30 each year.
2. To qualify, herds must be on an official records program and have at least 10 cow years and 10 tests for the most recent cow year.
3. The top three herds in each breed that has 20 or more official herds enrolled will be recognized.
4. All information from the start of the cow testing year (October 1) to the end (September 30) will be used including verification tests.

CATEGORIES, CALCULATION PROCEDURES AND POINT ASSIGNMENTS

I. PRODUCTION IMPROVEMENT

A. Milk Production Increase Per Cow
Calculation Procedure: Subtract last year's Rolling Herd from this year's.

Assignment of Points: Gain (#)	Points
3,000 or more	40
2,000-2,999	30
1,000-1,999	20

B. Protein Production Increase Per Cow
Calculation Procedure: Same as above. (I.A.)

Assignment of Points: Gain (#)	Points
150 or more	20
100-149	15
50-99	10
1-49	5

C. Fat Production Increase Per Cow
Calculation Procedures: Same as I.A.
Assignments of Points: Same as I.B.

D. Pounds of Peak Milk Production
Calculation Procedures: Using only the cows that freshened in the herd, average the highest individual month of production for each cow. Divide the average by 10 and apply this raw result as the points earned.

E. Average Days to Peak Milk Production
Calculation Procedures: Calculate the average number of days from freshening until peak milk production is reached for all cows calving in the herd.

Assignment of Points: Average	Points
46-52 Days (Ideal Range)	5
40-45 or 52-57	4
34-39 or 58-63	3
28-33 or 64-69	2
less than 28 or more than 69	1

II. SUSTAINED PRODUCTION

A. Milk Production
Calculation Procedures: Subtract this year's breed average for milk production from the herd's RHA for milk production this year and give 2 points for every 1,000 pounds above the breed average. Add the points earned for the last three years.
Example: 21,000 # 1992 RHA for Milk
-18,187 # 1992 Breed Average for Milk
2,813 X 2.0 pts/1,000 = 5.626 pts. rounded to 6 points
6 points in 1992
+8 points in 1991
+4 points in 1990
18 total points in this category for 1992

Assignment of Points: Milk Pounds Above Breed Average	Points Earned
1-999	2
1,000-1,999	4
2,000-2,999	6
3 000-3,999	8
4,000-4,999	10
5,000-5,999	12

B. Protein Production
Calculation Procedures: Same as for Milk Production. Assign one point for every 50 pounds above breed average and add the last three year's points.

1-49	1
50-99	2
100-149	3
150-199	4
200-249	5
250-299	6
300 +	7

C. Butterfat Production
Same as for Protein Production on previous page.

The 1992 PaDHIA Herd Management Awards will be based on the following criteria. The information on the front of this page shows each criterion and the points your herd received for each. The reverse side of this page shows your herd in comparison to state and county averages.

I. A. Milk Production Increase Per Cow — Points Received: +10
Based on a production increase over 1991 of +857 lbs of Milk.

B. Fat Production Increase Per Cow — Points Received: +10
Based on a production increase over 1991 of +51 lbs of Fat.

C. Protein Production Increase Per Cow — Points Received: +5
Based on a production increase over 1991 of +25 lbs of Protein.

D. Pounds of Peak Milk Production — Points Received: +8
Based on an average of 81.6 lbs of Peak Milk production.

E. Average Days to Peak Milk Production — Points Received: +1
Based on an average of 71 days to Peak production.

II. A. Sustained Milk Production — Points Received: +30
Based on +5184 lbs over breed average for 1992 (+12 Points)
Based on +4562 lbs over breed average for 1991 (+10 Points)
Based on +3117 lbs over breed average for 1990 (+8 Points)

B. Sustained Fat Production — Points Received: +12
Based on +228 lbs over breed average for 1992 (+5 Points)
Based on +183 lbs over breed average for 1991 (+4 Points)
Based on +116 lbs over breed average for 1990 (+3 Points)

C. Sustained Protein Production — Points Received: +9
Based on +142 lbs over breed average for 1992 (+3 Points)
Based on +122 lbs over breed average for 1991 (+3 Points)
Based on +107 lbs over breed average for 1990 (+3 Points)

III. A. Percent Improvement of Mean Rolling Somatic Cell Linear Score: — Points Received: +0
Based on a +0.0 improvement over 1991.

B. Overall Somatic Cell Linear Score: — Points Received: +0
Based on a Mean Rolling Somatic Cell Linear Score of 4.9 for 1992.

IV. A. Average Days Open Using All Cows Bred (including Pregnant Cows) and All Cows Over 60 Days: — Points Received: +0
Based on an average Days Open of 132 Days.

B. Avearage Services Per Pregnancy (for All Pregnant Cows) — Points Received: +2
Based on an average of 1.8 Services per Pregnancy.

C. Average Age at First Calving: — Points Received: +4
Based on an average Age at First Calving of 24 months.

Benchmark Breeder Award Presented To Penn State.

Donald Nichols, left, Penn State's beef herd manager and Professor Erskine Cash, review qualifications required by the American Polled Hereford Association for the Lifetime Benchmark Breeder award. The Department of Dairy and Animal Science was recently recognized for a lifetime total of eleven dams that have attained the status of Benchmark Dam.

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The American Polled Hereford Association has presented Penn State with a Lifetime Benchmark Breeder award for a lifetime total of eleven dams that have attained the status of Benchmark Dam.

Benchmark Dams are recognized for the consistent, superior productivity essential to efficient beef production. Lifetime Benchmark Dam Breeders are long-time breeders of these superior females. Presented to breeders of at least 10 Benchmark Dams since the program's inception in 1982, this is the first year the award has been given.

To achieve the Benchmark designation, a cow must have: (1) produced at least three calves; (2) been no more than 30 months old when she had her first calf; (3) maintained a 365-day calving interval; (4) rank in the top 25 percent of her herd, based on the average 205-day weight ratio of her dam's progeny; (5) produced a calf between January 1, 1991 and March 1, 1992. Also, the herd owner must have submitted weaning data to the Guidelines Program for the animal.

To qualify as Benchmark Dams, cows must calve for the first time by 26 months of age. Three Penn State cows received Benchmark Breeder Certificates in the silver category: PS Empress 529 702, PS Victoria 1106 707, and PS Victoria 514.

Penn State joined the Polled Hereford Association in 1955 and currently maintains 25 producing cows.

NDB Hires Research Leader

ARLINGTON, Va. — To guide and manage its extensive activities in market research, the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board recently announced the hire of George Harmon to the position of senior vice president, market research.

Harmon will be responsible for leading and supervising work done by the market and economic research department both in studying the marketplace to check the demands of different consumers and to evaluate National Dairy Board programs.

To fulfill these responsibilities, Harmon will rely on his more than 20 years of experience in marketing and research. Over the years, he has provided consulting services for companies including AT&T, Frito-Lay, Tyson Foods and Heinz.

Harmon has held several research and management positions and most recently served as president of The Harmon Group, a marketing and research consulting company in McLean, Va.

Harmon joined the Marketing and Research Counselors (M/A/R/C) in 1977 as an account executive and later became president and chief operating officer of an $8 million marketing services division with the company. Before joining M/A/R/C, he conducted public opinion, marketing and media research studies for Hamilton & Staff.

Harmon is a member of the American Marketing Association, American Association of Public Opinion Research and the European Society for Opinion and Marketing Research.

He holds a B.S. in industrial relations from the University of North Carolina.

The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board, comprised of 36 dairy farmers from across the country, develops and executes a coordinated plan of promotion, research and nutrition communications to strengthen the dairy industry's position in the marketplace. The effort is financed by America's dairy farmers.

include general laboratory activities, making sure that milk samples are processed properly and quickly. He has been trained to make minor repairs on laboratory equipment. Additional employees have been hired, and the lab will operate 16 hours a day on a split shift basis to insure prompt handling of milk test samples.

The new Mid-East DHIC management team was developed both to enhance services to longtime dairy farmer participants and to handle an influx of milk samples that nearly doubled when the DHI organization in neighboring Lancaster County, Pa., voted to begin sending its members' samples to the Mid-East laboratory. The DHI organization in Franklin County, Pa., began spending its samples to Maryland about a year ago.

Established in 1988, the Mid-East DHIC has been serving dairy producers in West Virginia, Maryland and Delaware.

Under the new arrangement, data from the Mid-East laboratory in Maryland is being transmitted to DHI data-processing centers in Provo, Utah; Raleigh, N.C.; or Ithaca, N.Y., depending on desires of the participating associations.

"These are exciting times for the Dairy Herd Improvement system," notes J. Lee Majeskie, dairy herd management specialist for the Cooperative Extension Service, Maryland Institute for Agriculture and Natural Resources. Dr. Majeskie is an Animal Sciences faculty member at the University of Maryland at College Park. He also oversees the Maryland DHI educational program.

"It is important that all dairy producers be given good service and receive the benefits of a high-quality DHI program, Majeskie declared. "Decisions recently made by the Mid-East DHIC board of directors will help to insure that this goal is met."

Dairy Producers, Butter Makers Join Forces

ARLINGTON, Va. — For the second year in a row, industry promotion groups and butter manufacturers will join forces in a holiday butter promotion.

"Last year's promotion proved that dairy producers and butter processors can work together so that both will benefit," said Steve Hoffman, California dairyman and member of the Butter Task Force representing the National Dairy Board. "With butter being such a good value, the industry is taking advantage of price incentives to sell more butter."

Members of the Butter Task Force — National Dairy Promotion and Research Board, Wisconsin Milk Marketing Board, Washington Dairy Products Commission, and butter processors and marketers Land O'Lakes, Keller's Creamery and Challenge Dairy — are working with UDIA to tell consumers they can "bake it better with butter" during the holiday season.

The campaign includes a special offer for a cookbook authored by noted baking authority and butter advocate Rose Levy Beranbaum; print, TV and in-store advertising; product discounts and public relations support. The cookbook, Rose's Celebrations, can be purchased for $12.95 when consumers send in a mail-order blank and two UPC symbols from one-pound butter packages. Cover price of the cookbook is $24.95.

The National Dairy Board produced a 15-second commercial "Pass the Cookies" highlighting the need to use butter to make foods taste better for special occasions. The commercial began airing on Nov. 2 and will continue through the end of December.

NFU Predicts

DENVER, Colo. — National Farmers Union President Leland Swenson said he sees better days ahead for American farmers and ranchers following Gov. Bill Clinton's victory.

"The incoming Clinton administration will be farmer friendly," Swenson said. "The most significant immediate change will be in the manner that agricultural policy is administered."

The Farmers Union leader said he predicted that the new administration will be much more responsive to the needs of family farm and ranch producers.

He said a major target will be elimination of red tape and streamlining of farm programs so that producers can be "freed from the shackles of excessive bureaucracy."

Swenson said farmers and ranchers should also anticipate a more responsive administration on international trade issues.

"The Clinton administration will move forward on the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) and the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), but there will be a much greater emphasis on creating a level playing field for all producers," he said.

Compost Details At Field Day

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Making and maintaining compost piles will be featured at the On-Farm Composting Field Day on the farm of Robert and Lois Keller on Wednesday, December 2.

Bob Keller became interested in evaluating composting as an alternative method for handling manure. He is interested in developing a market to sell the compost wholesale to people in the landscape buisness. This would provide an outlet for some of the manure from the 68,000 layers and more than 100 head of beef that are part of his farm. In addition to the livestock, Keller grows corn, small grains, and soybeans.

During the past year, Keller built several compost piles with different mixes. He has mixed poultry manure with steer manure and wood shavings, poultry manure with wood shavings, and poultry manure with straw. He also receives leaves through the Lancaster County Solid Waste Management Authority to compost with the poultry manure. Keller is one of the farmers - cooperators working with the Rodale Institute on the utilization of leaves and grass on farms.

Keller is using existing farm equipment to compost the manure. The materials were layered in a manure spreader and mixed as the spreader unloaded the materials into a pile. The piles were turned periodically with a skid loader.

The field day will provide farmers with an opportunity to see how the piles are formed and tunred with Keller's equipment, and hear how Keller is managing the piles. Leon Pessler from Penn State Cooperative Extension will discuss the composting process, and the mix of materials and management needed to maximize the biological processes occurring as the manure is converted into compost.

For more information, contact Leon Wiber at the Rodale Institute, (215) 683-6383.

tests during the last year. Your herd must have been enrolled on the somatic cell option for all tests during the past two years to earn any points for mastisis management improvement and/or for the sustained production. Finally, five heifers must have freshened in the herd during the year.

The state award will be given to the first, second and third place herds in each breed. The top herd in each breed will be recognized at the annual meeting dinner banquet, to be held March 19, 1993, at the Radisson, in Monroeville.

Only those breeds with 20 or more official herds enrolled will be recognized. The points will be assigned for each factor in each category as shown in the charts.

To highlight the changes specifically made to the herd management award, they are:

- Catagory, reproductive management reduces the minimum number of heifers freshening in a herd from 10 to five which will result in more members qualifying for points in this category.
- The sustained area was added so that herds that have reached higher production levels and have maintained a level over the state breed average, looking at the last three years and assigning points, can be officially recognized.

III. MASTITIS MANAGEMENT

Additional Qualifications to Earn Points
The herd must have been enrolled on the somatic cell test option for all tests for the past two years
Mean (Average) Rolling Somatic Cell linear scores as of September 30 each year will be used in calculations.

A. % Improvement of the Mean Rolling Somatic Cell Linear Score
Calculation Procedures: Divide This year's mean rolling SCC linear score by last year's.
Then subtract the result above from 1.0 and multiply it by 100.
Example: 1990 mean rolling linear score / 1989 mean rolling linear score = 36 / 39 = 923

Assignment of Points:	% Improvement	Point Earned
	1-20	5
	21-40	10
	41-60	15
	Over 60	20

B. Overall Somatic Cell Linear Score
Calculation Procedures: Use the mean rolling SCC linear score as of September 30.

Assignment of Points:	Mean SCC L.S.	Points Earned
	1.0-1.9	15
	2.0-2 9	10
	3 0-3 9	5
	4 0 or More	0

IV. REPRODUCTIVE MANAGEMENT

Your Farm Credit Banker.
Nobody Knows The Field Better.

You'll find Farm Credit Bankers buttoned up, ready to talk short- or long-term loans, mortgages and sophisticated lines of credit.

Underneath the shirt and tie, you'll find the one thing the other banks don't offer. A fellow farmer.

Most Farm Credit loan officers were born and raised on farms and got their college degrees from ag schools.

And, if that's not enough, every single one of our loan officers goes through the toughest ag lending training program in America.

That means when you talk to a Farm Credit loan officer about any kind of ag loan, you won't have to waste your time translating to someone who's book smart but farm foolish.

What's more, because Farm Credit loan officers understand farming as well as they understand finances, they're not only smarter, they're faster. After all, they have the same loan closing authority as many local bank presidents.

So when you need competitive rates or creative options, see your local Farm Credit banker. Because nobody knows the field better.

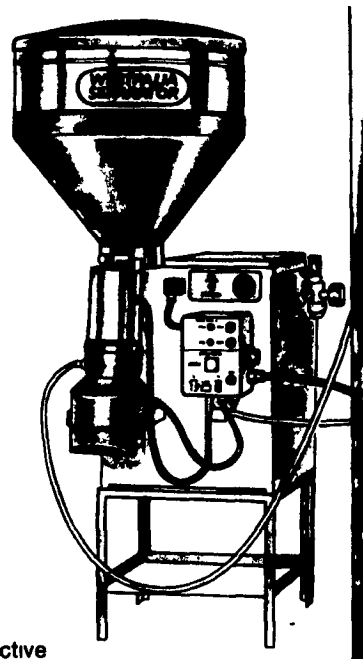
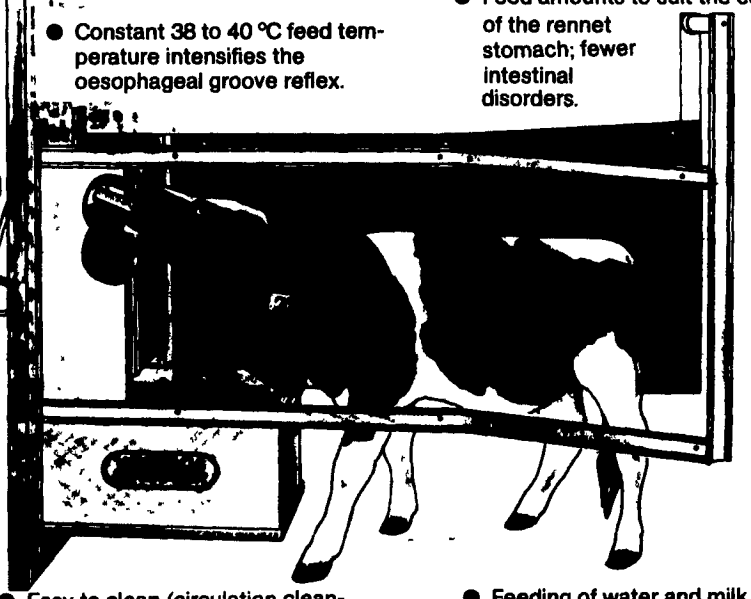
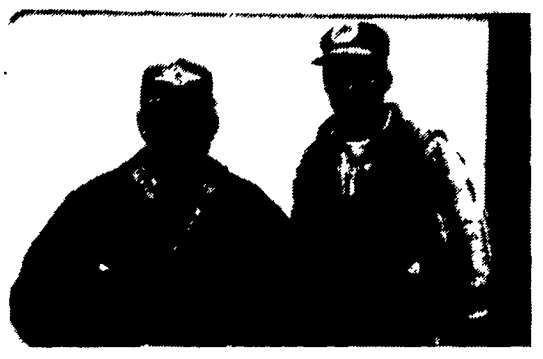
HIGH TECH DAIRYING

AUTOMATIC CALF FEEDER





- Portions are always freshly stirred at a constant temperature; particularly important during the first weeks of life.
- Constant 38 to 40 °C feed temperature intensifies the oesophageal groove reflex.
- Physiologically correct feeding in 500 ml portions corresponds to the mother's feeding.
- Feed amounts to suit the capacity of the rennet stomach; fewer intestinal disorders.
- Cost-effective cubicle housing tailored to the animals' needs.
- Greatly reduced workload per calf; less than 1 man hour/calf for each calf feeding period
- The amount of feed called off can be checked at any time for concrete information on the health of the animals. Early countermeasures can be taken against illnesses.
- Operationally reliable, user- and maintenance-friendly technology.
- Easy to clean (circulation cleaning with automatic switch-off of the design with liquid milk feeding).
- Two designs:
  - Fresh milk feeding only (also beestings).
  - Fresh milk feeding with milk powder additive (automatically switchable to water and milk-powder feeding).
- Feeding of water and milk powder (for beef production also).
- Limited amounts of milk replacer lead to earlier basic feed and concentrates intake; prestomach system develops more rapidly.
- Consequently, quicker weaning off calf feed (after 7 to 8 weeks); feeding costs are considerably reduced to only 30 to 40 kg of milk replacer per calf



Jay Good Dennis Stoner

"We're very excited about our Westfalia Automatic Calf Feeder. The biggest advantage of this system is the time and labor we save in caring for our calves. And maintaining calf health is easier than with hutches. Our calves are much more content and that's a big plus. We think it makes a lot of sense to duplicate the feeding patterns of nature, and this system does the work for us."

Held Captive On Lancaster Farm, Austrian Says He Never Forgot Kindness Shown To Him

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Few people remember that prisoners of war were brought to Lebanon and Lancaster counties during World War II.

But Fritz Overmeier will never forget it.

As a skinny 17-year-old prisoner, Fritz vowed that someday he would have muscles as strong as Wade Groff on whose farm he worked under the watchful eyes of armed guards.

Groff was only 15 years old at the time, but he never forgot the sympathy he felt for the young Austrian lad who was consigned into the German army, wounded, captured, and shipped thousands of miles from his homeland.

Groff, a director for Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, and his wife Evelyn were pleasantly surprised when Fritz phoned a few weeks ago to arrange a visit.

When united, the two laughed together as Fritz told him that the memory of Groff still causes him to concentrate on developing his muscles.

The two forged a deep friendship during the October visit — a friendship that was discouraged when Fritz was a prisoner of war.

"Although Fritz worked on our farm, we were told not to fraternize. The POW's were not allowed to enter the house or cross predetermined boundry lines," Groff said.

But that did not prevent a bit of camaraderie from developing as the two worked side by side harvesting hay, tomatoes, and tobacco.

Although it is 47 years later, Fritz's fond memories of the Groff family caused him to return to Lancaster and spend many hours discussing the ensuing years.

Groff's father, Earl, is no longer living, and the family does not know why their farm and several neighboring farms were chosen as work sites for Fritz and several other prisoners. They do know that labor was scare because local young men were drafted into the army.

And Groff remembers that his dad and several others took turns daily transporting a busload of prisoners held at Indiantown Gap, Lebanon County. Rifle guards always accompanied the prisoners.

Groff recalls that one day a ring-necked pheasant was sighted in the orchard where the prisoners were working. Groff's dad told the guard to shoot the pheasant.

"He (the guard) blew its head right off," Groff said. "I pitied the prisoners for being under such guard. I remember shuddering at the thought of trying to escape from such marksmen."

Groff's mother, Helen, who is now 88 years old, also joined in the visit. She remembers cooking the pheasant in soup and handing the steaming kettle to Fritz over the barnyard fence — a boundry the prisoners were not allowed to cross. Fritz remembers eating the steaming stew while standing in back of the barn.

Fritz and another POW, a 65-year-old school teacher, could speak some English, which made it possible for Groffs and the POWS to communicate while working. It was in the hay mow that Fritz vowed that he would someday have muscles as big as Groff's.

"The POW's were good, hard workers, but they weren't used to lifting hay bales as we were," Groff said. "I remember the sweat pouring down their faces as they worked."

It wasn't until Fritz's recent visit that Groff learned of the POW's perspective on national events.

When the Germans had captured Austria, they took Fritz, who was then 16 years old, and ordered him to the front lines of battle. He was told to run an anti-tank gun. When he convinced them that he did not know anything about operating such equipment, he was given a rifle and placed as a lookout man to spot the enemy's location. One night in 1944, American armies surrounded them. When Fritz crawled to his post to take up command, he was shot in the throat, two times in the neck area, and once in the knee.

The Germans managed to pull Fritz back and bandage him. Although severely injured, Fritz had no choice but to try to escape with his German captives. It was on Christmas Eve when Fritz and his accomplices were captured while trying to cross the Rhine River.

Fritz was taken to the hospital where he said he was treated as respectfully as the American soilders on either side of him. When he recuperated from his wounds, Fritz was shipped to America. He landed in Virginia on April 12, 1945. It was the day President Roosevelt died.

During a recent dinner, the Groffs and their Austrian friend exchange details and emotions about World War II, which they were not allowed to communicate during the war. From left: Wade Groff, Fritz Obermeier, Earl (brother of Wade) and his wife Ellen Groff.

It's been 47 years since Fritz Obermeier worked as a prisoner of war on the farm for Helen and her late husband Earl Groff, but Fritz still remembered the good pheasant stew that Helen cooked for him and other POWS.

Fritz said that the POWs had a difficult time suppressing the joy they felt. They believed that Americans would lose interest in the war since their President had died. Fritz was sent to a camp near Pittsburgh and later to Indiantown Gap where he was given the opportunity to work on the farm.

While working at the Groff farm, the war ended and Fritz was shipped back to his homeland. Although he wanted to return home, he remembers crying when the ship left New York Harbor. He and the other POWs feared that their families and homeland were completely destroyed. They also greatly feared the Russians who set up a provisional government in their country.

Although his brother, only one year old than Fritz, had been killed, Fritz was able to locate his immediate family. It was necessary for Fritz to find a job immediately. He was advised to find a job on a farm where a son had been killed and a daughter remained so that he could marry into the family and inherit the farm.

During his visit with the Groffs, Fritz jokedly remarked that he was like Jacob in the Bible who worked for seven years to receive a wife but then was not given her in marriage.

During that time, Fritz told the Groffs that he had a spiritual experience and felt he should give his life to Christian ministry. Fritz attended Bible School for five years and then became a missionary for 20 years in Austria. Later he was a hospital chaplain for 10 years and then a prison chaplain for 10 years before his retirement.

Fritz married when he was 35 years old. He and his wife, Krystal, have three daughters, one son, and three grandchildren.

Fritz said that he often told people that he would like to revisit the American farm when he had worked. His friends often laughed and told him that after 47 years that would not be possible. When he saw an advertisement for a tour of Washington D.C., Philadelphia, New York City, and Lancaster County, Fritz told them, "I said, 'I must go. I cannot afford it, but I must go.'"

There was only one seat left when Fritz called the tour guide.

"It is the Lord's will," he said again and again of that coincidence and of the ability to track down the Groffs among the many Groffs listed in the telephone directory. It was more difficult since Groff's father had died and his number was no longer listed.

Fritz and two German farmers visited with the Groffs and admire the 175-acre farm with its 70 milking cows. Groff now farms in partnership with his son John Harvey. The Groffs have three other sons, James, Herbert, and Richard.

As a 17-year-old POW, Fritz, left, vowed to someday have muscles as big as Wade Groff, right, who then was only 15 years old, but strong and muscular for his age. Recently Fritz visited Groff, who is now a director for ADC, and his wife Evelyn.

Lancaster Farm Women Observe 75th Anniversary Of Brightening Corners

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — "Yes, we had a good year," Joyce Slaymaker told the more than 260 women attending the annual convention of the Lancaster County Society of Farm Women. "We have 'brightened corners' in our communities with smiles, tears, good times, sharing, giving, caring, and just being there."

In keeping with the Society's theme song "Brighten the Corner," members presented checks for $2,868.50 each to the Bret Hershey Fund and to Habitat for Humanity.

Bret, the grandson of Farm Women member Dorothy Johnson, is diagnosed with leukemia and needs a bone marrow transplant.

Because each test costs $75, members donated $2,868.50 toward the cost of hundreds of tests taken. So far, no match has been found but, through the drive, several matches have been found for other patients.

Bret was president and valedictorian of Solanco High School in 1982. He then graduated with highest honors from Lebanon Valley College and Texas Christian University. Now, Bret is an instructor with Peabody School of Music.

The other recipient of the Farm Women's generosity, Habitat for Humanity Solanco project, has a goal to provide affordable housing for those who otherwise could not afford to purchase their own home. Typically Habitat builds a house with donated materials and labor and sold without profit. Those who qualify must also donate $500 of sweat equity.

In a memorial service, Farm Women paid tribute to 13 members who had died during the past year. Diane Book of Society 33, Edna Groff of Society 17, and Linda Bell of Society 3, read scriptures and placed a white rose in a vase as the name of each deceased member was read.

During the business session, members elected Elizabeth Robinson of Society 4 as secretary and Betty Geib of Society 6 as treasurer. These women will serve a two-year term with Corinne Nissley, president; Joyce Slaymaker, first vice president; and Kathryn Fry, second vice president.

Members reviewed activities of the past year. It was reported that the county has 29 active societies with 776 paid members.

In addition to the $5,737 donated to the Bret Hershey Fund and Habitat For Humanity, individual societies gave $15,000 to needy

More than 260 members gathered at the Farm and Home Center to celebrate Lancaster County's Farm Women's 75th Diamond Convention.

Wheat-Free Recipes

Wheat intolerance is one of the most perplexing of food allergies. Again and again, we receive requests for ideas for a wheat-free diet. In the past, we have printed numerous recipes, but this is the first time that a whole page is dedicated to help those facing wheat allergies.

The best help often comes from someone who has the same problem and has learned to deal with it. Betty Light from Lebanon is one such person. She has sent in numerous suggestions and highly recomends purchasing the Allergy Self-help Cookbook, written by Marjorie Hurt Jones, R.N., and published by Rodale Press, Emmaus, Pa.

The American diet relies heavily on wheat-based bread and baked goods that other flours are practically unheard of. According to the cookbook, substituting rye, barley, oats, and millet are not necessarily the answer as many people who are allergic to wheat are also allergic to related grains. Of the four, only oats seem to be relatively non-allergenic.

One of the best ways to overcome the allergy is to grind legumes such as rice, chick-peas, lentils, potatoes, tapioca, and arrowroot to produce flours, meals or starchy bases. Amarath, a newly available grainlike flour and buckwheat can be tolerated by most people.

If you're sensitive to wheat but no other gluten grains, you can substitute barley, oat, potato, rice, rye, soy, and tapioca flour. If you are sensitive to all glutens, stick to potato, rice, soy or tapioca flours.

Baked goods made with these substitues tend to be heavier and more crumbly than those made with wheat flour. Potato and soy flours are best used in combination with other flours such as rice or tapioca. Rice flour gives a certain graininess to baked goods. Rye flour has a more distinct flavor.

You can take any baked goods recipe made with wheat flour and replace it with other grains, but the amount needs to be adapted as follows:

Flour	Amount to replace 1 cup of wheat flour
Barley	1¼ cups
Oat	1⅓ cups
Potato*	¾ cup
Rice	¾ cup
Rye	1⅓ cups
Soy	1⅓ cups
Tapioca‡	1 cup

Each flour has certain strengths and weaknesses. Some are not suitable for substitution in sauces or breading. Here is a quick synopsis of the best choices.

Best choices for breading: amaranth, arrowroot, buckwheat, oat, potato starch, soya powder, and tapioca starch flour.

Poor results in breading: brown rice flour, garbanzo, legume, potato, nut, peanut and seed flours.

Best choices for thickening sauces: arrowroot, brown rice flour, buckwheat, garbanzo, oat flour, and tapioca-starch powder.

For baking:

• Amaranth is excellent for 25 to 75 percent of total flour when used with brown rice, oat, arrowroot, tapioca-starch flour or potato starch for the remainder.

• Arrowroot will lighten baked goods. Use only 25 to 50 percent total flour.

• Brown rice flour excellent for cookies and pie crust. Cakes tend to be dry unless mixed with other flours or ground nuts.

• Buckwheat is satisfactory but less desirable than some others.

• Garbanzo is excellent. Use 25 percent with other flours for high protein baked goods.

• Legume is excellent.

• Nut, peanut, and seed flours produce excellent results in baking, but best if only 25 percent of flour as some tastes may be overpowering in large amounts. Reduce oil in recipe to compensate for high oil content of flour.

• Oat flour excels in cookies and pancakes. May use for 80 to 100 percent of flour called for, but it is too heavy for cakes. Use 50-50 with rice flour, arrowroot, or tapioca starch flour or white buckwheat.

• Potato flour substitute ½ to ⅔ cup potato flour for each cup of wheat flour. Combines well with brown rice flour to add body to cookie dough. Let batter stand a few minutes before baking to allow flour to absorb liquid.

• Potato starch is suitable for cakes but not breads. Needs eggs, baking powder and other leavening.

• Soya powder should be used for only 25 percent of the total flour. It mixes successfully with amaranth, buckwheat, ground nuts, and starches.

• Tapioca-starch will lighten baked goods. Use only 25 percent of flour total.

PUMPKIN MUFFINS

1 cup sifted oat flour
⅔ cup sifted brown rice flour
1½ teaspoons ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
½ teaspoon grated nutmeg
¼ teaspoon powdered ginger
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
1 large egg
¼ cup honey
2 tablespoons molasses
2 tablespoons cooking oil
½ cup mashed cooked pumpkin
¼ cup chopped pecans, optional

Sift together all dry ingredients and set aside in a large bowl.

Beat egg until light and foamy; add honey and molasses slowly in thin stream.

Beat in oil, pumpkin and mix well. Transfer mixture into bowl of dry ingredients, stir quickly to blend. Fold in pecans.

Oil muffin tins or line them with cupcake papers. Divide mixture into 12 cups. Bake at 400 degrees for 18 to 20 minutes.

RICE FLOUR PIE CRUSTS

⅓ cup whole almonds
¾ cup brown rice flour
¼ teaspoon cinnamon, optional
Pinch cloves, optional
3 tablespoons water
2 tablespoons cooking oil
2 tablespoons honey

Grind almonds to a powder in blender. Transfer the powder to a 9-inch pie plate. Add flour and spices, stir with fork to mix well.

Combine water, oil, and honey in a small saucepan. Heat gently until honey dissolves. Pour into flour mixture in plate; stir with a fork until well blended. Let stand a few minutes for rice flour to absorb liquid.

Shape the crust by pressing mixture firmly over bottom and sides with fingers.

For unfilled crust: bake empty shell at 350 degrees for 18 minutes. For filled crust: bake empty shell for 5 minutes, add filling and finish baking as recipe directs. Makes one crust.

RICE FLOUR STREUSEL CRUMBS

1 cup plus 2 tablespoons brown rice flour
¾ cup ground almonds
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cloves
3 tablespoons cooking oil
3 tablespoons honey

In a medium bowl, mix flour, cinnamon, cloves, and almonds. Drizzle oil and honey over drying ingredients and toss until evenly distributed.

Note: tops 19x13-inch or 2 8- or 9-inch square cakes, fruit crisps or two pies.

Sprinkle crumbs over top for last 15 minutes of baking time.

Unbaked crumbs may be frozen to use later.

Pennsylvania's agricultural commodity organizations recently held "Pennsylvania's Finest Tailgate," prior to the Penn State/Boston College football game. With tailgating season in high gear, the event offered samples of several foods for snacking tables and stressed the wide variety of agricultural products available in Pennsylvania.

Foods sampled at the large feast included: "Vegetable Pizza," "Pork Italiano," and "Nutty Maple Surprise Bars." A recipe brochure developed for the special event also included recipes for mushroom "Puffed Pastry," "Zucchini Cheese Rounds," and "Ham and Cheese Roll-Ups." In addition, the brochure also included information about Christmas tree selection, landscaping, and Pennsylvania agriculture.

A complete copy of the brochure is available to consumers who send a self-addressed and stamped business-sized envelope to: "Tailgate V" Recipes, Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, 2301 N. Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA. 17110.

A sampling of the recipes contained in the brochure follows:

ZUCCHINI CHEESE ROUNDS

2-3 zucchini, 1½ -inch diameter
½ cup Swiss cheese
1 cup Feta cheese
1 tablespoon basil
2 eggs
White pepper

Slice zucchini into ¾ -inch thick rounds. Scoop out interior of zucchini to form small bowl shapes. Mix all other ingredients together and fill zucchini. Bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees or microwave until cheese bubbles. Yield: 15-20 servings.

PUFFED PASTRY

5 pounds chopped mushrooms
2 red peppers
2 green peppers
1 onion
Chopped chives
2 cups heavy cream
½ cup white wine
¼ cup parmesan cheese
puffed pastry

Saute chopped mushrooms, red peppers, green peppers, and onion in 1 ounce of butter until onions are transparent. Add chives, heavy cream, and white wine. Lightly simmer until thick, then add cheese. Cut puff pastry in 2-inch squares. Place one tablespoon of mixture in middle and fold in triangle — bake in 400 degree oven until lightly browned.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

You'd think by now I'd know better.

You'd think, after all these years, I'd have thought first — or at least taken some precautions.

At least thrown a little salt over my shoulder. Stroked a rabbit's foot. Rubbed a shiny penny. Not to even mention avoiding all those black cats at the barn.

But, as usual, I went ahead anyway. Plunged in. Didn't give a single thought to how teasingly I had tempted fate — writing just a few days before about farm safety.

All the above played through my mind like a repeating video. Played through my mind while I lay there in the hospital emergency room.

Played through my mind as I lay there on a gurney, while a clean, white sheet was being pulled over my head. (You KNOW you've got problems when they do THAT.)

Played through my mind as a pleasant, young intern attacked the gash on my head with a toothbrush.

"You did what?" the admitting clerk had asked, with raised eyebrows, adding with a chuckle, "That's a new one."

Even hospital emergency folks — who've heard it all — have a hard time believing someone could smack herself in the forehead with a manure-covered, four-feet-long, three-quarter-inch-square steel bar.

But I had the jagged gash, dripping-blood, slicing through my left eyebrow as evidence.

It was not the first time I'd tangled with a loose bar in the steel grates over the dairy barn manure gutters. Daily scraping with a small garden tractor and blade occasionally loosens a bar in the grates, which are welded in sections for easy removal.

Several times in the past half-dozen or so year's I'd had a foot slip through a gap where a bar was loose and plunged through the grate right up to my knee. (Only my feet are small enough to go through these gaps.) The result had been a couple of nasty, large bruises.

This time, as I stepped behind a cow to prep her for milking, my foot found the very end of a loose bar. The foot and the bar both plunged through the gap in the grate, while the other end of the bar flew up, smacking me squarely in the forehead.

Just like something from a cartoon.

After the second or two it took for the "stars" to clear, the blood on the hand that instinctively flew to my head became apparent. Comilker John took over the whole job while I assessed damages in the bathroom mirror.

It was beyond mere Band-Aid help. But we were extremly short-handed that evening. Though The Farmer immediately offered a ride to the hospital, I instead suggested he finish the barnwork while I went for medical attention. Save a slight headache and occasional drip of blood, I felt fine.

Driving to the hospital, however, I did think about potential cracked-head side effects and slowed to a safe 55 mph.

After a brief period of waiting, a welcome, smiling face strode through the door. Good friend and neighbor, Ann, arriving to keep me company.

(After three times in little more than a year of mutual support through each other's hospital emergencies, we have the technique down pat. My gashes, however, are nothing compared to her young son's leukemia diagnosis.)

"Cow manure?" sighed the intern, shaking his head and heading for a toothbrush. "And when was your last tetanus shot?"

Six stitches, one injection, and a rapidly-discoloring eye later, we offered to grant the intern honorary membership with The Quilter's Guild.

Quick healing was a testimony to his skill, my hard head and frequent hot compresses on the eye. Only lingering effect is a small area left with no feeling, hopefully temporary, due to probable slight nerve damage.

Promptly allowing the youngest to dub this mother "Numbskull." I think I'd be safer if I qualified for a different nickname. Something like "Bigfoot."

Gift Fair To Solve Holiday Shopping Dilemma

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — It's an annual problem. What do you buy for the person who has everything? Have you considered buying a cow this Christmas?

A wide selection of living gifts will be on hand at a unique Living Gift Fair at the Lititz Church of the Brethren, November 23 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Fairgoers will choose from a variety of Heifer Project International animals. Big spenders might prefer to buy cows, pigs, water buffalo, or yaks. Thinking smaller? How about rabbits, chickens, ducks, or honeybees.

Here's how it works: Fairgoers purchase animals or shares of animals in the name of a friend. The friend receives an attractive HPI gift card. A family in need receives the HPI animal. Decorated tables provide information about how the HPI animals benefit hungry families in the US and abroad.

In addition to animals, shoppers can choose from homemade baked goods, arts and crafts items, and Self-Help Handcrafts from Third World countries. Children will enjoy the petting zoo, and lunch is available for the whole family.

The Lititz Church of the Brethren is located at 300 W. Orange St., Lititz, across from Warwick High School. For more information call Dan Fitzkee at (717) 665-5743.

Wreath Making Workshop

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Chester County Cooperative Extension is sponsoring a wreath-making workshop on Friday, December 4, from 10:00 a.m. to noon at the Extension office, 235 West Market Street, West Chester, PA 19382. The instructor, Halyna Church, is a Penn State Master Gardener. The fee of $15 is due before the registration deadline of November 23. Materials will be provided or, if you wish, you can bring special decorations from home to add to your wreath. These will be green wreaths so you may want to bring pruners and/or gardening gloves. Class size is limited! Mail your check, payable to Chester County Extension, with your name, address and daytime telephone number to the Extension office to reserve your spot.

QUESTION — Sue Pardo, Jarrettsville, MD, would like a recipe similar to the Nature Valley Granola Bars.

ANSWER — Ginny Atkinson, Bridgeton, N.J., wanted to know how to preserve ginger root and how it can be used. Thanks to Nancy Shukaitis, E. Stroudsburg, for writing that individual pieces of ginger root can be tightly wrapped in plastic wrap and foil and then frozen. When you need ginger, take a piece out of the freezer, grate, and return the unused portion to the freezer. For Ginger Cheesecake add 1 tablespoon grated ginger and 2 teaspoons lemon juice to your recipe. Use about 2 teaspoons freshly grated ginger in 6 cups of onion, potato, or mushroom soups.

Another way to store fresh ginger root is to store the unused part in a small jar of white wine or dry sherry. Keep refrigerated or tightly closed.

ANSWER — A diabetic reader requested diabetic dessert recipes. She can not use artificial sweeteners due to the after taste so she would like recipes using natural ingredients. Thanks to S.Stoltzfus, Myerstown, who wrote that there is a vegetable glycerin that can be used in place of sugar. It can be purchased by the pint or gallon. She will be happy to help interested persons if you write to her at Frystown Rd. Apt.3, Myerstown, PA 17067-1919. Thanks to Sarah Histand, Wycombe, who sent recipes that she said are wonderful. She suggests that people request the cookbook called Desserts to Lower Your Fat Thermostat by Barbara Higa R.N. Order by calling toll free 1-800-637-0708.

Pumpkin Apple Cake

⅓ cup vegetable oil
2 large egg whites
1 cup canned pumpkin
1½ cups frozen unsweetened apple juice concentrate, thawed
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup unsweetened applesauce
3 cups whole wheat flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
⅓ cup pecans, chopped
1 apple, peeled and finely diced

Cream oil and egg whites until fluffy. Beat in pumpkin, apple juice concentrate, vanilla, and applesauce. Add flour, cinnamon, baking powder and baking soda. Fold in pecans and diced apple. Spoon batter into 9x13-inch pan sprayed with nonstick coating. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes.

Strawberry Spread

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1 cup frozen unsweetened apple juice concentrate, thawed
2 quarts fresh strawberries, washed, hulled, and mashed
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Sprinkle gelatin over apple juice; set aside

Combine remaining apple juice, berries, and lemon juice in heavy saucepan. Cook over medium heat 10 to 15 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add gelatin. Stir until gelatin dissolves. Cool and store in refrigerator or freeze for later use.

ANSWER — Nancy Martin, Newburg, wanted several varieties of fudge recipes instead of the usual chocolate or peanut varieties. Thanks to Pat Yale, Delta, for sending several recipes.

Butterscotch Fudge

Combine 5- to 10-ounce jar marshmallow creme
⅔ cup evaporated milk
¼ cup butter
1½ cups sugar
¼ teaspoon salt

Bring to a full boil, stirring constantly. Boil 5 minutes over moderate heat, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Stir in 2 packages butterscotch bits. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup nuts. Pour into greased 8-inch pan. Cool and cut.

Caramel Fudge

2 cups sugar
6-ounce can evaporated milk
2 tablespoons light corn syrup
10-ounce jar vanilla caramel sauce
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon maple flavoring
½ cup chopped nuts

Butter sides of heavy 2-quart saucepan. Combine sugar, milk, corn syrup, and caramel sauce. Heat and stir over medium heat until sugar dissolves and mixture comes to a boil. Cook to soft ball stage, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Stir in flavorings. Beat until mixture begins to lose its gloss. Stir in nuts. Pour into buttered 8x8x2-inch pan. Score while warm. Cut when firm.

Carole's Cream Candy

3½ cups sugar
1 cup light cream
¼ cup light corn syrup
½ cup chopped nuts
½ cup mixed candied fruits and peels

Combine sugar, cream, and corn syrup. Cook slowly to soft ball stage, stirring often. Cool at room temperature, without stirring until lukewarm. Beat until mixture loses its gloss. Stir in nuts and candied fruit peels. Spread in buttered 8x8x2-inch pan. Cool. When firm, cut in squares.

½ cup Arrowroot
¼ cup cocoa
1 teaspoon baking soda
¼ cup warm water
⅓ cup cooking oil
⅓ cup honey
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup chopped nuts, optional

Sift dry ingredients into large bowl. In a small bowl, whisk the remaining ingredients except nuts and pour into flour mixture and mix quickly. Fold in nuts.

Spread thinly into oiled 7x11 or 8x12-inch baking dish. Bake 350 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes. Do not overbake.

Zinc Needed In Diet

Although zinc was recognized as a dietary essential in rats in 1934, it was not until 1961 that a zinc deficiency in humans was recognized. At that time, retarded growth and delayed sexual maturity were identified as symptoms clearly associated with a lack of dietary zinc. Other symptoms identified since then include delayed wound healing, loss of appetite, and decreased taste acuity. These symptoms can be reversed by the addition of zinc to the diet. Many other roles for zinc in human nutrition have also been identified but in only a few instances has the mechanism of action been clarified. The human body contains from 2 to 2.5 grams of zinc, with three fourths of this amount concentrated in the skeleton. Zinc is removed only very slowly from the skeleton. There is also a high concentration of zinc in the skin, hair, and testes, all of which seem particularly affected by a lack of zinc. In the blood, most of the zinc occurs in the red blood cells; a small amount is found in the white blood cells, platelets, and the blood serum.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — Lori Spigelmyer, McClure, wanted a recipe for Chicken Parmesan. Thanks to A.M. and to Alice R. Steere, Chepachet, R.I., for sending a "delicious" recipe from an old Italian family in Massachusetts.

Parmesan Chicken Medallions

Place 3 split, boned, and skinned whole chicken breasts between sheets of waxed paper and pound thin with rolling pin or sides of cleaver. Cut each piece in half crosswise, making 12 chicken scallops or medallions. Season with salt and pepper. Dust lightly with all-purpose flour. Remove crusts from 4 slices firm white bread. Crumble 2 slices at a time into blender and whizz to make fine soft crumbs. Mix with ½ cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese. Dip floured scallops into 2 beaten eggs, then in the crumb mixture. Press to coat chicken evenly, then let dry 30 minutes. Heat ¼ cup clarified butter in heavy skillet. Cook scallops over moderate heat until golden on both sides, adding more butter as needed. Serve hot with lemon wedges. Makes 6 servings.

Chicken Parmesan

Pound boneless chicken between sheets of wax paper to as thin as possible. Dip in flour. Dip in slightly beaten egg. Dip into Italian bread crumbs. Fry 2 minutes on each side in butter. Place in casserole dish. Cover with tomato sauce or spaghetti sauce and sprinkle with parmesan cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

Remove and cover completely with slices of mozzarella cheese and continue baking until brown (approximately 15 minutes).

ANSWER — Eppie Eberly, Arbovale, W.V., wanted a recipe for sweet gherkin pickles. Thanks to Priscilla King and to Mrs. Marlin Nolt, both from Myerstown, for sending recipes.

Sweet Gherkin Pickles

8 pounds cucumbers
8 sticks cinnamon
½ teaspoon turmeric
2 tablespoons mixed pickling spice

First day: cover cucumbers with boiling water in the morning. In the afternoon, drain off water and cover with fresh boiling water.

Second day: Drain off water and cover with fresh boiling water. In the afternoon, drain off water and cover with boiling water with ½ cup salt dissolved in it.

Third day: In the morning, prick pickles. Cover with mixture of 3 cups sugar and 3 cups vinegar and spices. In the afternoon, add 2 cups sugar and 2 cups vinegar.

Fourth day: Drain and add cinnamon, turmeric, and mixed pickling spices to make syrup. Pour on top of pickles. In the afternoon, drain syrup and reboil. Pack pickles in jars and pour syrup over them. Process in water for 5 minutes.

ANSWER — Jill Alleman, Lititz, wanted some easy and tasty recipes for making stews and baked beans using dried beans such as Maine Yellow Eyes, Jacob's Cattle, and Soldier Dry Beans. Thanks to a reader who signed her initials A.M., for sending a recipe. If readers have more recipes for the beans specified, please send the recipes.

New England Baked Beans

2 cups dried yellow-eye or pea beans
6 cups water
¼ pound lean salt pork
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup light molasses
½ teaspoon dry mustard
1 tablespoon brown sugar

Cover beans with water, bring to a boil; and boil for 2 minutes. Cover and let stand one hour; then cook until tender. Drain, reserving liquid. Put beans in pot. Cut through pork every half inch, making cuts 1 inch deep. Bury the salt pork in the beans, leaving rind exposed. Mix 1 cup liquid and remaining ingredients; pour over beans. Add enough liquid to cover beans. Cover; bake in preheated 300 degree oven for 6 to 8 hours. Uncover pot last hour. Makes 6 servings.

Spiders Are Good Guys

RUTGERS, N.J. — Hate spiders? You may be with a majority in how people feel about these extremely beneficial and generally safe creatures. Unfortunately, the spider's undeserved bad reputation is reinforced from early childhood (e.g. "Little Miss Muffet") through its creepy-crawly Halloween associations to popular entertainments like the horror movie "Arachnophobia."

Spiders are very important insect predators, feeding on houseflies, mosquitoes, millipedes, and cockroaches among the many pests they help control. There are over 1,000 species of spiders in the United States (35,000 world wide) of which very few are a potential problem for humans. In New Jersey, the black widow is our only poisonous species and the low likelihood of being bitten plus the rarity of severe reactions makes it a minimal hazard. The black widow, as any spider, bites only as a last, protective, resort. The black widow is known to be unable to bite through cloth and can only bite through human skin where it is very thin.

The huge diversity among spider species — their appearance, size, and hunting habits — is intriguing. There are jumping spiders, fishing spiders, camouflage spiders and spiders that use their web making capability to weave elaborate insect traps, line their nests, construct egg sacs and build devices for transportation. Spider silk is, for its size, stronger than steel!

But it's the webs that also make spiders a nuisance around the house. The best way to deal with nuisance spiders indoors is to thoroughly vacuum webs, spiders, egg cases and empty or dispose of the vacuum bag immediately. Spiders may wander in from outdoors, especially at this time of year. Checking caulking, screening, etc. may help. Limited use of pesticides outdoors to prevent spiders from coming in may be considered with heavy infestations, but keep in mind - spiders are the "good guys" not the "bad guys."

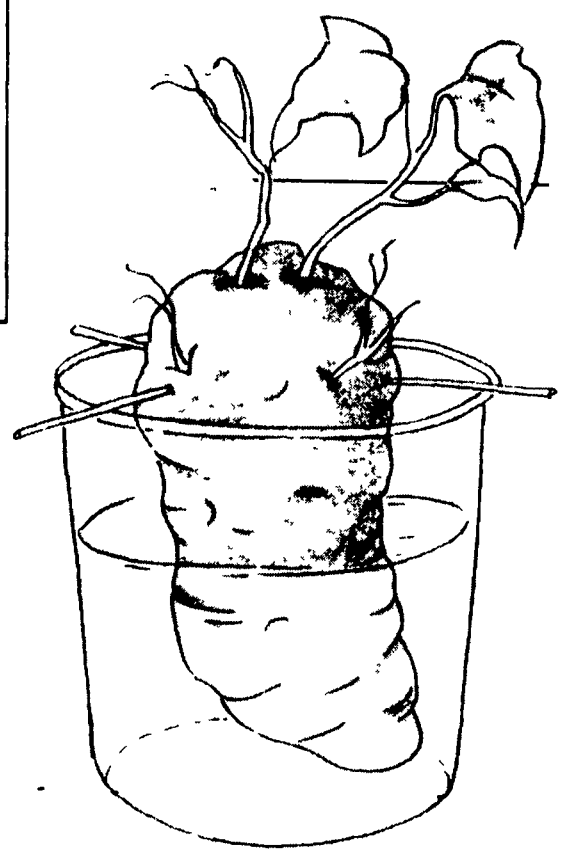
Grow A Sweet Potato Vine



Grow a Sweet Potato Vine

A sweet potato can make a graceful plant that is fun to grow.

Find a glass jar, milk bottle, or bowl. Fill it with water up to about an inch from the top. Choose a sweet potato that has little, purplish buds near the top. Set the potato in the jar so that at least a third is in the water. (Hold with toothpicks if necessary.) Place jar in the light. Add a little fresh lukewarm water as needed.

After a month or so, when roots and leaves are nicely grown, plant in a pot filled with topsoil.

Farm Women Societies

Berks Executive Board

The Berks County Society of Farm Women executive board meeting was held on November 2, at the Ag. center on a rainy, cold evening with 17 members present. Fern Phillipy, county president had devotions and each member answered roll call by naming a flower or plant that starts with the same letter as their name.

Remarks were made of the nice program, entertaining as well as educational, and the lovely day spent at the county convention at Haag's Hotel in Shartlesville on October 3. There was discussion on the convention for 1993, which will be October 2, 1993. Groups 2, 5, 7, 8, 10, 11 will be in charge.

A fruit basket was donated as a door prize for the farm-city banquet on November 5.

Berks Heim has asked for clothes in larger sizes. A motion was made to give a donation to the Heim for patients for Santa's Corner on December 15.

State convention at Harrisburg is January 11, 1993 with registration from 9 - 9:30 A.M. at the forum building. Three representatives from Berks county for registration are Doris Brown, Marie Gettel and Wendy Lingle. Tickets to the banquet at the Penn Harris Hotel are $16 payable to Dorothy Stricker, 331 N. Church St., Robesonia, PA 19551. Deadline for reservations is January 3, 1993.

President Phillipy encouraged members to become more aware and learn more about the local government by having programs with a tax collector, district, justice, township supervisors, and planning committee persons.

A bus trip was discussed for the spring rally at Hagerstown, Maryland on May 26.

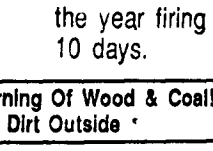
Next executive board meeting will be at the Ag building in the conference room on January 4.

Berks Society 3

Group 3 of the Berks County Society of Farm Women held its October meeting at the home of Mayetta Shane, Valley Road, Boyertown. Members were required to come in costume or pay a fine. President Sonya Moyer conducted the business meeting with 10 members present. A scavenger hunt was also held.

Berks Heim bingo will be held at the Annex on Thursday, November 12. The State Convention will be held on Monday, January 11, 1993, in Harrisburg.

Sweet potatoes were distributed and should be dressed up and brought to the next meeting to be judged. That meeting will be held on November 24 at the home of Regina Moyer, Boyertown R.D.



Belsnickel Craft Show

Eileen Blazic and son show off some of the baskets and pottery that will be available at the Belsnickel Craft Show.

BOYERTOWN (Berks Co.) — Members of the Boyertown Area Historical Society are preparing the 21st annual Belsnickel Craft Show. This premier event will be held Friday, November 27, noon to 8 p.m., and Saturday, November 28, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Boyertown Elementary School and Junior High School, West, both located at Second and Madison Streets, Boyertown.

More than 150 local and regional artisans will participate in the Show. Among the items on display will be woodworking, and woodcarving, pottery, baskets, pine cone art, wood, tin, and papier-mache folk art, woven rugs, dolls and doll clothing, children's clothing, stenciling, embroidery, jewelry, soft sculpture, and Christmas items. Also, dried flowers, quilted items, bread dough art, tole, weaving, scherenschette (paper-cutting) clay sculpture, fraktur, furniture, handknitted clothing, stained glass, corn husk dolls, punched-tin art, and wooden toys.

Free bus transportation will be provided from major parking areas to show locations. Refreshments will be available at the Junior High School. Donation to the Craft Show is $3, children under twelve admitted free if accompanied by an adult. Providing an opportunity to see and learn more about quality crafts, Society members hope that even more people will join them for their holiday Craft Show, which has become a Boyertown tradition.

Safe Turkey Handling Tips

Low in fat and cholesterol, turkey is a healthful food choice. But if improperly handled, it can become the home of bacteria that cause food poisoning.

Salmonella bacteria sometimes are present in small numbers in all raw animal products, such as poultry, eggs, meat and dairy products. If properly handled, these foods are safe to eat.

Illness due to Salmonella and other microorganisms found on raw poultry usually is avoidable since the bacteria can be killed easily by heat. To prepare turkey safely, follow a few common-sense procedures.

Never thaw a frozen turkey on the countertop. Harmful bacteria can grow once the exterior of the bird reaches 45 degrees F.

Plan ahead to thaw the turkey in the refrigerator, allowing about 24 hours for each five pounts. For example, a 10-pound bird will take about two days.

If you need to prepare stuffing the night before, cook it and store it in a separate dish in the refrigerator. Stuff the turkey immediately before cooking. If you put warm stuffing inside the turkey, then put the bird back into the refrigerator, you give bacteria a chance to grow.

Never partially cook a turkey. Plan to cook it in one continuous stretch until the meat is done. Cookbooks and labels only can estimate how long the bird will take to cook. The best way to tell when the turkey is done is to insert an accurate meat thermometer into the center of the breast. The temperature should reach a minimum of 165 degrees F.

Cooks should wash their hands with soap and water immediately after handling raw turkey. Cutting boards, utensils or dishes used to prepare the raw bird should be thoroughly cleaned before they come into contact with the cooked turkey or other foods.

After the turkey is served, leftovers should be promptly and properly stored. Place leftover meat in shallow pans and refrigerate it immediately. Rapid, even cooling will help avoid bacterial growth.

Leftovers should be eaten or frozen within three to four days. Gravy and stuffing should be eaten within one to two days. Heat all leftovers to at least 65 degrees F before serving.

The effects of Salmonella foodborne illness may appear within six hours after eating contaminated food. Symptoms include diarrhea, abdominal cramps, fever, nausea, vomiting, chills and headache.

In healthy adults, the symptoms may last up to three days. For children, the elderly and those whose immune systems aren't working properly, Salmonella can spread to vital organs and sometimes result in death.

For more information on safe handling of meat and poultry, contact USDA's Meat and Poultry Hotline at 1-800-535-4555. Hours for November are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. (Eastern Standard Time) Monday through Friday; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, November 23 and 24; and 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Thanksgiving day, November 28.

York Farm Women Feed Hungry

Joyce Bupp
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Farm Women of York County have harvested a bounty of food to share with hungry neighbors.

Tables overflowing with non-perishable food and household supplies marked the York County Society of Farm Women's annual convention, held November 5 at Wisehaven Hall.

The outpouring of giving was in keeping with the convention's theme, "Bountiful Harvest," and was donated to a trio of county food banks for the hungry. Recipients of the harvest of canned and packaged foodstuffs were the Dillsburg New Hope Ministry, the Southern York County Food Pantry, and the Mason-Dixon Community Services.

"Rather than have door prizes, we decided to have everyone bring non-perishable items for sharing," related county president Barbara Malehorn, Seven Valleys. "Each group did something to participate."

The in-gathering was also in keeping with the year's state project, "Collect Food and Share It." A state project is selected annually by the president, a position currently held by Lancaster County Farm Women member Arlene Witman.

York Farm Women gathered a second bounty of contributions through a quilt fund-raiser, generating more than $3000 for support of community programs.

Contributions, in the amount of $950 each, were presented to the York County Food Bank, the York County 4-H Center and the American Red Cross.

An annual convention tradition, the honoring of 80 and 90-year-old members, saluted 14 county Farm Women. Recipients of 90-year pins were Estella Prowell, Group 1; Estel Stump, Group 2; Edna Brenneman, Group 4; Helina Stover, Group 12; Melba Dummer, Group 13; Irene Sheffer, Group 18; Lena Bubb, Group 20; and Annetta Grove, Group 21.

Honored for 80-year status were Romaine Brenneman, Group 6; Dorothy Schwartz, Group 8; Virginia Halbach, Group 14; Margarie Bentzel, Group 15; Ethel Maul, Group 15; and Clara Sheffer, Group 20.

A candlelight memorial service paid tribute to 13 county members deceased since the previous annual county convention. Memorialized in the ceremony were Mary M. Decker and Francis Klinefelter, Group 1; Agnes Snyder, Group 2; Alice Bollinger, Group 4; Charlotte G. Perry, Group 9; Carolyn T. Schriver and Ida B. Sell, Group 13; Edna Miller, Group 15; Fairy Eyster, Group 16; Linnie Stine, Group 25, Ethel A. Wilt and Bertel Reitz, Group 26; and past county president Janet I. Miller Kohler, Group 12.

Treva Stiles, Group 18, was elected treasurer during the group's business meeting. Continuing in their second year as officers are president Barbara Malehorn, first vice-president Carolyn Neal, second vice-president Shirley Kauffman and secretary Pat Palmer.

In her president's report, Barbara Malehorn noted traveling more than 2000 miles during the past year to attend meetings of 24 of the county's societies.

State president Arlene Witman announced a $9000 goal for the 1993 state peoject, support for Heifer Project International. HPI helps provide food-producing animals to impoverished families around the world and enables them to "pass the gift" by sharing the first female offspring with another family in need.

Old, New, Traditions Too...Lots Of Things You Can Do

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

PRESCOTT (Lebanon Co.) — If you enjoy traditional Christmas celebrations with a touch of something new, then the Lebanon County Extension Holiday Program was the place to be last week.

The more than 1,100 participants had a choice of attending one of three full-day workshops or the two-part evening version.

Everything one needs to know to make Christmas a meaningful, memorable occasion was presented from how to's for decorating, gift giving, preparing festive foods, helping the less fortunate to incorporating children in preparations.

Although pictures and written instructions can not compare with the visual hands-on demonstrations at the workshops, here are some ideas you might want to try.

Starting off the program with do-able decorating ideas and humor was Karl Bohr, a floral decorator.

"Christmas does not need to be red and green. Match it into your colors," Bohr said as he deftly combined clusters of foxtails and rose hips with pines and a bow.

He taught participants to make paper twist poinsettias and angels (directions with pictures) interspersed with greens for wreath and mantle designs.

Paper Twist poinsettias are make by eight-inch lengths of loose wide Paper Twist. Fold in half lengthwise, and fold in half again. Make four petals by cutting a V at both ends, but let the middle intact. Pinch in middle and gather together. Wire middle tightly. Form petals by pulling them into desired shape. Take 3 to 4 pieces of curly ribbon cut in 5-inch lengths. Dab hot glue in middle of flower and press curly ribbon against it for center of flowers. Crumble irridescent fiber ribbon in loose ball and dab it against center of flower for shimmering effect. Ends of petals made be shaded with acrylic paint.

Hetty Wengert, from "Just for Sew," showed how denim garments and plain sweatshirts can be recycled into wearable works of art. She demonstrated seminole piecing to insert in articles for a whole new "artsy" look.

Seminole piecing is as follows: materials needed: ¼ yard each of three or four colors. Using rotary cutter, cut two strips 2½ -inches wide. Cut one strip 1½ inches wide.

Sew strips together lengthwise with the most narrow strip in the center. You will now have a 5½ -inch wide strip. Press.

Cut the 5½ -inch strip into 1½ -inch cuts. To make straight cuts, keep the short grid lines of the ruler parallel to the seam lines of the strip set.

You're ready to sew the 1½ -inch cuts together; however, you must remember to drop each piece down one color. Keep adding to your piece until it is long enough to reach from shoulder to waistand or to the bottom of the shirt. When the patchwork band is completed, it will have slanted ends at top and bottom. Trim edges even.

You will have a completed seminole band to insert in your sweatshirt or other garment.

Measure the finished width of your band and mark your sweatshirt with a chalk marker before cutting. Cut out carefully 1-inch less than your band width (this will allow for the seam allowance). Now insert your seminole piece. Your sweatshirt is ready to wear.

Christenna Stamm demonstrated how to make weld-wire country baskets. That idea looked a bit difficult, but an easy-to-do project for a group is recycling tins by thoroughly cleaning tin cans. Coat tins with Gesso, using a sponge brush. Let dry completely. If not thoroughly covered, apply another coat of Gesso.

Paint tins with a base color; let dry.

Decorate to your liking by stenciling, painting or sponging on designs.

Another idea from Christenna is making a waxed jar lid topper. Cut a circle of cotton fabric 2¼ -inches larger on all sides than jar lid. Using tongs, dip fabric into melted wax and allow excess to drip off. Working quickly, center fabric over lid and smooth down. Dip string into wax, remove and tie into a bow around fabric and lid.

Pauline Gundrum, a cake decorator, showed the crowd how to make ginger bread houses from graham crackers.

Lillian Morales, director of the Lebanon Food Bank, reported on the need to donate food for the many needy families in the area. Participants were to bring food items to donate to the food bank.

Herbal ideas for gifts were demonstrated by Debbie Hartman and Barbara Binner.

Lilly Hershy gave ideas for spicing up the holidays.

Berks County Extension Home Economist Fay Strickler demonstrated a tasteful collection of make-ahead recipes with tips and hints for preparing safe, wholesome meals that quickly transfer from freezer to oven to table.

CRANBERRY SLUSH

2 cups hot water
½ cup sugar
12-ounce can frozen lemonade concentrate
2½ cups cranberry juice cocktail
1½ cups apple juice
6 to 8 cups lemon-lime flavored carbonated beverage

In 2½ to 3-quart freezer container, combine hot water and sugar; stir until sugar is dissolved. Stir in lemonade concentrate, cranberry juice cocktail, and rum. Freeze several hours or overnight, stirring once or twice as it freezes. Cover when frozen.

Remove from freezer 15 to 30 minutes before serving. To serve, spoon about ⅔ cup of slush into each glass; fill with carbonated beverage. Serve with straws. Makes 15 (1 cup) servings).

These expensive looking plates are actually inexpensive clear glass plates with fabric adhered to the back with Modge Podge. Cut a square of fabric slightly larger than the outside dimension of the plate. Using a sponge brush, cover the back side of a glass plate with Modge Podge. Place the fabric square right side down onto the back of the plate. Smooth fabric over the plate. Apply a coat of Modge Podge over the fabric. Allow to dry 15 to 20 minutes or hasten drying with a hair dryer. Trim away the excess fabric from the edge of the plate. Apply an additional coat of Modge Podge. Allow to dry overnight. Seal with polyurethane spray.

Top-Notch Wool Contest Makes Long Day For Judges

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — The state Make It Yourself With Wool contest, held Saturday at the Ramada Inn, was said by several persons to have produced some of the best entries in recent years. It must have been an accurate assessment according to time spent by the judges who examined entries from the 10 state districts.

In fact, a mini-fashion show, sort of a grand finale, was late getting underway and as a result, created some anxiety for those district directors who had three to five hours of night driving ahead of them for the return journey home.

Peggy Black, Boswell, won the adult division with her 100 percent wool crepe, navy-blue, fully lined and tailored trousers and jacket. She took a gold lame' ribbon and couched it down on the jacket fabric with invisible thread for a stunning effect, then added her own creation of a liquid gold blouse under it.

Black based her design idea on Sashiko embroidery, a traditional Japanese hand-stitch done most often using white on denim. For national competition, a professional photo of her wearing the outfit will be submitted to officials.

First adult runner-up was Harlynne Goldstein from Pittsburgh who made a fashion statement with her two-piece, black skirt and snug-fitting white jacket on which she incorporated hand-painting and embroidery.

Other names in the adult competition were Jackie Gummo, Denise Higgenbatham, Joan Klein, and Francis Yuhas, who was unable to attend the event.

Deanna Barthlow's expertise was unquestioned when her wool coat and quilted jacket worn over her dress, earned her first place in the senior division. Barthlow incorporated visible black zippers for closing all the pertinent openings in the coat and hand-quilted the waist-length jacket for a professional looking effect.

The 19-year-old, currently enrolled in Lycoming College, Williamsport, will enter national competition in Texas next January.

Senior first runner-up went to Jodell Rhoads, 18, also a student at the Institute of Computer Management, located in Pittsburgh. Rhoads looked magnificent in a two-piece outfit of teal green and fuchsia, with appliques on the jacket, pleats in the plaid skirt and matching accent pieces.

Other senior entrants were Amanda Baum and Lori Brandt.

Also heading for the nationals will be junior winner Melinda Kovac, 16, Murrysville. A snug trouser-jacket duo nipped in at the waist with staggered points dipping below the waist at the center, was done in a shade of rust burgandy. Kovac also made a tweed, boucle oversized coat.

First junior runner-up was Jennifer Black, Boswell, who constructed a coat and a dress from a mohair wool blend.

Other juniors were Amy Ziegler, Angela Lovell, Sarah Karger, Erin Gummo, and Lee Brandt, the only male in competition. He had made a three-piece pin-striped suit.

Julie Sechler, Meyersdale, made a plaid jumper that earned her a first place in preteen competition. Other girls in preteen were Leah Blinn and Regina Wiener. Meagan VanMetter could not attend the contest.

Judging was done by Debbie Felak, Denver, Susan Mawhinney, Waynesburg, and Marge Sheeter, Somerset.

Coordinating the event were state directors, Janet Mawhinney, Waynesburg, and Marie-France Reyes, Greensburg.

District directors are Donna DiPetrio, Candace Campbell, Mary E. Garrett, Barbara Shaffer, Mary Kay Karger, Florrie McGinnis, Marion Lovell and Peggy Cancelmi.

In the senior division, the young women are Lori Brandt, Amanda Baum, Deanna Barthlow, and Jodell Rhoads.

Fall Leadership Conference

Nearly 600 high school students, teachers, and administrators converged on Penn State's Russell E. Larson Agricultural Reasearch Center at Rock Springs for the seventh annual Pennsylvania FFA Fall Leadership Conference. Participants represented 38 school districts from around the commonwealth.

With more than 400,000 members, the National FFA Organization is one of the largest student groups in the country. Pennsylvania has more than 7,000 members. FFA is offered only in high schools with agricultural programs. Student members share an interest in agriculture and adviseres are agriculture teachers.

"The Fall Leadership Conference accomplishes several things," said Dr. David Hall, one of the conference's organizerrs and assistant professor of agricultural and extension education in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"It provides leadership training both to freshman FFA members and to older members who are chapter officers. It also provides in-service training to agriculture teachers, guidance counselors, and administrations.

"In addition, our undergraduates in agricultural education get valuable teaching experience," Hall said. "Students in Ag Ed 311, a leadership course, create educational displays. More advanced students in Ag Ed 412, a teaching methods class, actually develop and teach the workshops."

This year's conference was chaired by Christine Davidson, a senior in agricultural and extension education. Twelve undergraduates conducted workshops on social and communication skills and opportunities in FFA. Dr. Dennis Scanlon, associate professor of agricultural and extension education, and Hall supervised their efforts.

Upon arrival, participants were greeted by Davidson, who introduced state FFA president Mandy Hilbert of Littlestown and other state officers.

Lee Thurber, national FFA president and a sophomore in agribusiness at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, delivered a rousing speech to the crowd before the educational sessions began.

"I want you to do three things today," Thurber said. "First, have fun. Second, meet at least 10 new people from other schools. Finally, learn something that you can take back and use at home. If you can do these three things, you're going to have a great day!"

Dr. Marianne Houser, coordinator of student recruitment in the College of Agricultural Sciences, conducted the in-service program for the high school counselors. They toured the Pasto Agricultural Musuem at Rock Springs, then traveled to the University Park Campus to learn about Penn State's turfgrass science program and the new wood products major.

Dr. Thomas Bruening and Dr. Tracy Hoover, assistant professors of agricultural and extension education, and instructor George Vahoviak coordinated the teachers' inservice training, which included sessions on agricultural sales, groundwater and water testing, and science, technology and society in agricultural education.

The conference was sponsored by Collegiate FFA and Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Soybean Study Set

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The American Soybean Association (ASA) is seeking soybean farmers and other adventurers interested in visiting the competition during the eighth annual South American Soybean Study Mission, scheduled for January 26-February 7, 1993.

Mission participants will brush elbows with key government officials and visit with local farmers, soybean industry leaders, and researchers in Brazil and Argentina. Participants will also spend time observing the South American crop during critical growing stages in the Pampas, Argentina's prime agricultural region, and in the traditional and newer soybean areas in Brazil.

"Having hosted the previous mission, I found it to be a very exciting trip, as well as a new learning experience for me and for the participants," said ASA Economist David Asbridge. "I would encourage all U.S. soybean farmers to visit Brazil and Argentina, especially this year, because Brazil could raise a record-size crop. U.S. farmers need to see how their largest global competitors farm and market their soybeans."

Reservations for this year's mission must be made by December 1, and participation is strictly limited to 22. If you would like to receive an informational brochure, or have questions about the trip, call ASA at (800) 668-SOYA.

Poultry Conference Set Dec. 8

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

By the middle of November, it surely looks like winter outside. The leaves have all fallen off of our two maple trees and also off the old apple tree in the middle of our driveway. The maples had beautiful foliage and so did the dogwood trees.

Now that the leaves are off the trees I can again see the Conestoga River at the edge of the meadow where we built our log house. Also visible are houses in a nearby development and a busy highway.

My 100 plus houseplants sit on every windowsill and I must water them often as the bay windows get a lot of sunshine. The impatiens and begonias are blooming as are the kalanchoes.

Election Day was a busy one for me as I registered almost 900 people. There was no time for chitchat as we checked records and moved the long line of voters to the voting machines. We had almost 100 absentee ballots to count after the polls closed at 8 p.m. The May election will be here before we realize it.

We are still moving things off the attic in the farmhouse. There are boxes of milk bottles, old hats, financial records, and books. Some things take time to sort while others are just moved to another spot in our basement. There is still so much to do. My parents never moved their things and the folks before them never moved their things. So, there are old wicker baby carriages, twig furniture, Victorian chairs with worn red velvet seats, and lots more. Someday we might finish the job.

NEWARK, Del. — The seventh Mid-Atlantic Cooperative Extension (MACE) regional meeting on practical biosecurity for poultry will be held on Tuesday, Dec. 8, from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., at Clayton Hall on the University of Delaware campus in Newark, Del. The focus of this year's conference will be on managing risks in farm production, food handling, and bronchitis.

Following registration at 8 a.m., the morning session will begin at 9 a.m. with a discussion of on-farm procedures that reduce food-safety risks. At 9:30 a.m., the disease control section chief of Agriculture Canada will report on practical techniques derived from the Canadian salmonella program. A profile of the Voluntary Salmonella Enteriditis Pilot Project based in Lancaster, Pa., will be presented at 10 a.m. Effective rodent control procedures will be discussed at 10:30 a.m.

At 11 a.m., Dr. Edwin M. Odor, University of Delaware poultry pathologist, will report on the status of the Delmarva bronchitis situation. A question-and-answer period will be followed by lunch at noon.

The afternoon session will begin at 1:15 p.m. with a presentation on educational programs for egg handlers. From 2 p.m. to 2:40 p.m., a panel discussion, "Food Safety: Industry's Approach Toward Regulatory Compliance," will be headed by John F. Farquhar, vice president of scientific and technical services for the Food Marketing Institute, and J.C. (Mac) McLaurin, president of Northeast United Egg Producers.

Preregistration before Nov. 25 costs $30 per person and includes a copy of the proceedings and lunch. After November 26, registration increases to $40 per person. Make checks payable to Delmarva Poultry Industry (DPI) and mail to Dan Palmer, extension poultry specialist, University of Delaware Research and Education Center, R.D. #2, Box 48, Georgetown, DE 19947.

DEUTZ-ALLIS

9100 SERIES TRACTORS

POWER FOR THE LONG PULL

UNBEATABLE 4-YEAR 4 000-HOUR WARRANTY

Deutz-Allis 9100 Series Tractors deliver reliable, fuel-efficient horsepower, with operator comfort. Great for long tractor life and long days in the field.

Proven Air-Cooled Powerplants.

The four hard-working 9100 Series Tractors range in horsepower from 135 to 193 PTO hp. All are powered by a unique fuel-efficient, air-cooled diesel engine. Because it is air-cooled, you don't have to worry about overheating radiators, leaking water pumps and all other water-cooled engine-related problems.

Delivering More Power to the Drawbar.

Deutz-Allis tractors consistently deliver a larger percentage of available PTO hp at the drawbar, thanks to the powerful, field-proven transmission. Six gears, each with three "clutchless" shifts, offers you 18 speeds — including nine in the working range of 3.0 to 7.5 mph.

Enjoy a Powerful Difference in Comfort.

For all of their raw power, each 9100 Series Tractor is nearly as comfortable as your family car. Each model has a quiet, spacious cab with great visibility and easy-to-read instrumentation.

More Power to You.

To find out what a Deutz-Allis 9100 Series Tractor can do for you, stop by or call today to arrange a test drive.

INDUSTRIAL-GRADE HEAVY-DUTY PUMPS

There are many so-called air compressor builders, but E.L Smith is one of the few cast iron compressor pumps manufactured in the U S A In fact, other companies use our pumps in their compressors and products and they are ideal replacement components for most 2 cylinder wheelbarrow compressors

E.L Smith compressor pumps are designed and built to stand up to a long life of rigorous use. A large cylinder bore enables the compressor to run at lower rpm; this reduces heat build-up, lessens wear and greatly extends operating life

E.L. SMITH PUMP MODEL 28
1/3 to 1/2 HP, 1 cylinder, 2x1 3/4 bore & stroke, splash lubricated, 100 psi

'93s ARE HERE!

The '93 lineup of Suzuki QuadRunner® ATVs is ready, willing and waiting for you to put one to work! You'll find all the muscle you need in the new Suzuki King Quad. Whether you use it for hunting, fishing, yardwork or farmwork, this 4-stroke, 4-wheel-drive workhorse will help you get the job done. After all, it has 35 forward-drive combinations!

Come in and see the '93 Suzuki King Quad and the full line of QuadRunner ATV models today. They're yours for The Great Outdoors!

The Suzuki QuadSport® 80 may be used only by those 12 and older. Adults must always supervise riders under the age of 16. All other Suzuki ATVs may be used by those aged 16 and older. Suzuki highly recommends that all ATV riders take a training course. We'll even pay for it. For safety and training course information, see your dealer or call the SVIA at 1-800-852-5344. ATVs can be hazardous to operate. For your safety, always wear a helmet, eye protection and protective clothing. Never ride on paved surfaces or public roads. Never carry passengers or engage in stunt riding. Riding and alcohol or other drugs don't mix. Avoid excessive speeds. Be extra careful on difficult terrain. Along with concerned conservationists everywhere, Suzuki urges you to "TREAD LIGHTLY!" on public and private land. Preserve your future riding opportunities by showing respect for the environment, local laws and the rights of others when you ride.

Erie County 4-H'er National Winner

Robin Laniewski of Edinboro has been named as one of six national winners in the horse category of the 4-H Awards Program.

Laniewski, daughter of Robert and Debbie Laniewski, is a member of the Cloverleaf Riders 4-H Club and is a senior at General McLane High School.

As a national winner, she will receive a $1,000 scholarship to the college of her choice and an all-expense paid trip to the 1992 National 4-H Congress, scheduled to be held in Chicago in early December. These awards are sponsored by the American Quarter Horse Association.

National 4-H Congress is a five-day activity honoring approximately 1,500 outstanding 4-H members from throughout the country. Laniewski will be part of a 41-member Pennsylvania delegation attending the event, which will feature recognition activities, educational workshops and field trips, and entertainment.

Laniewski was named a national winner following the recent judging of 4-H White Forms in Washington, D.C. She represented Pennsylvania in the national competition, and she recently was recognized as the state winner. In ceremonies held during the State 4-H Horse Show in Harrisburg,

Robin Laniewski

Laniewski received a saddle provided by Smuckers Harness Shop in Narvon.

Laniewski's achievements in 4-H are many. She won the senior grooming and showmanship class at the recent State 4-H Horse Show, she won the state's individual horse presentation contest at last August's State 4-H Achievement Days, and she won a recent national-level competition with the same presentation, entitled "Showmanship: Strutting Your Stuff".

She represented the state in the individual horse presentation contest at the Eastern National 4-H Horse Roundup in Louisville, Ky. In 1991, Laniewski and her partner, Heather Bennett of Waterford, won the state's team horse presentation competition and went on to finish second in that competition in the national contest. In addition, Laniewski has been held a variety of offices in her local 4-H club, has served as a 4-H camp counselor, and has been actively involved in efforts to market the 4-H program to other youth in Erie County.

Laniewski is Erie County's first national winner in the 4-H Awards Program. She will be recognized for her many accomplishments at the Erie County 4-H Achievement Night on Saturday, November 21 at Seneca High School.

Bob Mang, volunteer leader of the Cloverleaf Riders 4-H Club of which Laniewski is a member, will accompany her to National 4-H Congress is an official chaperone and representative of the Pennsylvania 4-H program. He was selected for this honor because of his active involvement in 4-H at the county, regional, and state levels. In recent years Mang has provided leadership to the county and district 4-H horse program, has initiated a 4-H shooting sports program in Erie County, and has served as a member of both the Erie County Cooperative Extension Association Board of Directors and the 4-H/Youth Development Program Advisory Committee. He was named one of the county's Outstanding 4-H Leaders in 1991.

According to Carolyn L. Belczyk, extension agent - 4-H/youth with the Erie County Cooperative Extension Office, there is fierce competition for state and national 4-H awards. State winners are able to attend the prestigious National 4-H Congress, and national winners of sponsored awards receive scholarship monies and recognition.

Cumberland County 4-H'er Recognized

At a recent competition at Penn State, Stacy Suffel of Carlisle has been selected as the leading 4-H member in Pennsylvania in the Beef National Awards program.

Suffel is the daughter of Shirley and John Suffel, and is a member of the Cumberland County 4-H Beef Club and the Conodoguinet 4-H Sheep Club.

In recognition of this accomplishment, Stacy will be attending the five-day National 4-H Congress at the Chicago Hilton and Towers in December as a delegate representing Pennsylvania 4-H. This program, attended by more than 1,500 4-H members from across the country, is filled with recognition events and education tours and programs.

The path to Chicago began more than nine years ago when Stacy became a 4-H member. This spring, Suffel was selected to represent Cumberland County in state competition. Following a review of her 4-H record, and a personal interview at Penn State, she was selected to represent Pennsylvania at the 71st National 4-H Congress.

Two To 4-H Congress

Two Berks County 4-H members have been selected to attend National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Illinois.

Megan Perry, Hamburg, and a member of the Fleetwood 4-H Club and Amy Eshelman, Sinking Spring, Berks County 4-H Sheep and Lamb Club, will represent Berks County and Pennsylvania at the event that hosts the most outstanding 4-H members from across the country.

Four-H members are selected through the National 4-H Awards competition commonly referred to as the Blueform Competition.

Megan is the daughter of George and Barbara Perry and is a senior at Fleetwood High School. A nine year 4-H member, Megan was the state winner in the home management category, which emphasized her accomplishments in clothing and textiles and foods and nutrition projects. She has also been very active in a wide range of county and regional 4-H activities and events as well as president of her 4-H club. Megan has also been an active member of the Berks County Sheep and Lamb Club.

Amy is the daughter of Larry and Susan Eshelman and is a freshman at Penn State University. For the past 11 years, Amy has been an active and accomplished member of the Berks County 4-H Sheep and Lamb Club. As a result, Amy will represent Berks County and Pennsylvania in the sheep category at National Congress. An 11-year member, Amy has also been a member of the Berks County Beef club and has taken other 4-H projects ranging from beekeeping to clothing and textiles. She has held a variety of leadership roles in her clubs and has served as president of the 4-H Sheep and Lamb Club.

National 4-H Congress is held at the Chicago Hilton and attended by more than 1,500 4-H members from across the country. The events is filled with recognition events, educational tours, seminars, and leadership programs.

4-H Training Sessions

One-day training sessions for the 4-H Learn and Earn for Fun and Profit Program will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Berks County Agricultural Center on Wednesday, December 16. Anyone interested in becoming an adult volunteer is encouraged to attend.

The first of its kind in Pennsylvania, the program takes youth ages 12 through 18 through each step of starting and running a business. It covers choosing a business, writing a business plan, starting operations, making financial decisions, advertising, monitoring growth, and speaking at public meetings.

Learn and Earn for Fun and Profit is compatible with many extension and 4-H programs, including family living, community development, urban gardening, small business, agriculture, and farm and livestock management.

Since the program began in 1990, youths in 10 counties have participated. "These young people have developed leadership and organizational skills that will be tremendous assets when they begin seeking jobs," said Dr. Alan Snider, professor of agricultural and extension education in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "Now we would like to make the program available in all counties."

The training sessions will provide an overview of the program and explain how it addresses young people's needs. Sessions will include information on getting a group started, establishing and leading an advisory committee, and recruiting and training adult leaders. Also covered will be resources for agents and volunteers and examples of what some of the youth groups have accomplished.

There is no charge for the workshop, and volunteers' lunches will be paid for by a grant from the Pennsylvania Friends of 4-H. For more information, contact Penn State Cooperative Extension/Chester County at (215) 696-3500 or contact Alan Snider, Agricultural and Extension Education, 323 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 863-2695.

BALEAGE VS. SILAGE FOR BACKGROUNDING FEEDER CALVES

The question has come up recently about the economics of corn silage compared to large round bale silage for backgrounding feeder cattle.

One would at first consider corn silage to be more economical because of the amount of feed (primarily energy) that can be produced on an acre of land. However, with a little pushing of the pencil, the answer may not be as easy as all that.

The development of equipment to produce round bale silage through either wrapping of the bales or with bale bags has made the comparison with a silage system reasonable. Some of the more apparent advantages of the bale system include less production cost, greater recovery of feed value from the field, flexibility in the use of the land for a season (grazing for part of the year), less harvesting, storage, and feeding equipment being necessary, and a product that nutritionally more closely suits the growing steer than corn silage.

I have always had a problem with the use of corn silage for beef cattle, particularly growing steers, because of the "other" costs of silage in a feeding program. These costs include the labor and equipment costs for planting, harvesting, storing, and feeding silage to cattle. In particular, the equipment cost is larger because some of the equipment has no alternative use.

While corn silage will undoubtedly produce more feed energy per acre than any other crop in our region, growing steers in a backgrounding program have a dietary protein requirement that exceeds what can be found in silage. Therefore, protein supplements must be purchased and fed.

A good grass-legume mixture made into baled silage will generally meet the protein requirements of this class of cattle. For wintering cows and heavier feedlot cattle, this protein requirement is not as great and corn silage will more closely meet their requirements.

To help answer the question of the economics for the two systems, I used the references "Round Bale Silage" by Garthe and Hall at Penn State (Agronomy Fact Sheet #9), "Harvesting and Utilizing Silage" by Ishler, et al. (Penn State Extension Circular #396), and the Cornell Beef Gain feedlot simulation program from Cornell University.

I tried to arrive at a cost of gain per acre of land under either a silage or baleage program using wrapped bales (the cost of large round bale silage was found to be cheaper with wrapping compared to bags in these references.) Using those costs, I projected the amount of feed needed and the cost of gain for a set of conventional feeder cattle from 600 to 800 pounds using the simulation program for each of the diets.

Using these references to determine the cost of production, storage costs, feeding losses, feeding costs, and harvesting costs, I found that the cost of corn silage was about $34 per ton by the time it got through the steer, and the cost of round bale silage was about $31 per ton.

This was based on production of 20 tons of corn silage per acre (as fed basis) and 10 tons of 50 percent dry matter per acre in the bale program. The feeding program indicated the cost of gain under the two systems would be 56 cents per pound for the bale program and 68 cents per pound for the silage program.

Since we know there will be more feed production from an acre of silage, where did the added cost for this system come from? The answer was in the cost of protein supplements. If the cost of protein supplementation is converted to acres of silage, it took exactly the same number of acres to produce 200 pounds of gain on the steer for each system.

With a higher cost of feed, this resulted in a higher cost of gain under the silage system. Of course, there are a lot of variables that will change this relationship (crop yield, weather, production costs, protein costs, etc.) The decision about whether a silage or round bale system should be used for backgrounding feeder cattle in a long term perspective depends primarily on the capacity of the land to economically produce silage and the cost of protein supplements when corn silage is fed.

Many times there are products available, particularly by-product feeds, that can help reduce the cost of protein. It also takes fertile land to consistently produce good hay crop silages.

The soil and site limitations to farming that many Pennsylvania farmers experience quickly helps to make the crop decision. The use of new large bale packaging systems to capture feed value in hay crops may be an equally economical method of feeding growing cattle in our region.

Pa. Bull In Program

PLAIN CITY, Ohio — A young sire bred by Plushanski Farms Inc. of Kutztown has been selected as one of 185 Holstein bulls to enter a sire sampling program.

Selected on pedigree, 7H4405 Plushanski Cubby Vermont-Et, is one of the first Cubby sons to be sampled through Select Sire's Program for Genetic Advancement.

His dam is a Good plus 84-point Secret daughter with a first lactation record of 28,499 pounds of milk, 1,106 pounds of fat, and 952 pounds of protein.

Both the grandam and great grandam are Gold Medal dams and Dams of Merit. Also, they were respectively classified Very Good 88, and Excellent 91 with an Excellent mammary. Their lactation records exceeded 27,000 pounds of milk, 1,100 pounds of fat and 960 pounds of protein.

Select Sires is comprised of 12 farmer-owned artificial insemination cooperatives.

WOMEN IN AGRICULTURE

Gabriella Varga
Associate Professor
Animal Scienc

Editor's Note: Dr. Varga is co-advisor to Sigma Alpha, along with Dr. Cathy Bowen, assistant professor of agriculture and extension education.

Last week, three young women returned from Indianapolis, Ind., filled with enthusiasm for their chosen profession — agriculture — and eager to share their experiences with their Sigma Alpha sisters.

They traveled to Indiana to attend the 1992 National Convention of Sigma Alpha, and also brought back with them the 1992 Sigma Alpha National Sorority Scholarship Award.

Marcy Latini and Susan Bove are dairy and animal science majors, and Kathy Appley is a parks and recreation major. They are among 30 members of the Epsilon Chapter of Sigma Alpha, one of Penn State's newer sororities and an up-and-coming organization of women in agriculture. The national Scholarship Award was presented to the Epsilon Chapter for the overall highest grade point average out of 21 universities.

With their annual meeting, Sigma Alpha seeks to increase communication skills among its members and provide an opportunity for networking. The three Penn State women who attended brought back handfuls of business cards from people with similar interests and goals in agricultural science. Many of these people are offering summer internship opportunities for their sisters.

Latini was impressed by the instantaneous community of women she found there. Everyone had so much in common, she said. We learned what it will be like to be professionals in our field after graduation — how to dress, how to talk, how to act. The basic message was that if you behave professionally, youll be perceived as a professional.

The unique aspect of the Epsilon Chapter of Sigma Alpha is that the women are from all of the various majors in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. Women from diverse disciplines thus have a unique opportunity to educate each other.

The sororities conduct barn tours for the local Big Brother/Big Sister program, featuring visits to the Penn State beef and sheep barn as well as the dairy, horse, and swine barns. Not only are the Big Brothers and Big Sisters and their young charges educated about animals and animal care, but also about how agriculture plays such an important role in their daily lives. The sorority gives them information on how food, clothing, medicine, and other products come from agriculture.

Gabriella Varga

In addition to the barn tours, the sisters participate in the Horticulture Show, Little International, Dairy Expo, the Red Meats Spectacular, and many other programs in the college. One of the most important benefits of the sorority is the opportunity for the women to gain experience in leadership roles, communication skills, and enhance their organizational abilities.

Committees are an important part of the sorority structure, providing opportunities for members to practice parliamentary procedure. The sorority plans to put together an agricultural calendar next year, providing a great place to mark the many important activities that happen throughout the agricultural calendar year.

The Epsilon Chapter of Sigma Alpha was organized at Penn State University in January 1989 with the help of Professor Paul Shellenberger. It is a national sorority located on 21 campuses across the United States, and first established at the Ohio State University in 1978. Their objective is to promote women in all facets of agriculture and to strengthen the bonds of friendship among them.

It is the purpose of its members to strive for achievement in scholarship, leadership, and service. The Sigma Alpha mascot is the baby bull, and the sorority's colors are emerald and maize.

If you would like to know more about Sigma Alpha, call Gabriella Varga (814) 863-4195 or Cathy Bowen (814) 863-7869.

Ag Department Offers Youth Grants

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Agricultural Secretary Boyd E. Wolff has announced the availability of grants of up to $15,000 to fund educational projects and activities.

Organizations such as 4-H and FFA may apply between October 19 and December 3 for direct grants of up to $2,500 and matching grants of up to $15,000.

Direct grants may be used to fund educational projects, programs, seminars or field trips, and matching grants may be used to fund capital projects and equipment purchases. The grants will fund efforts to increase the awareness of agricultural and rural issues.

A total of $200,000 is available this year for the grant program, which is funded by the remaining assets of the Pennsylvania Rural Rehabilitation Corp. Trust Fund that was dissolved in 1940.

Applications and additional information about the grant program are available from Christian Herr, Department of Agriculture, 2301 N. Cameron St., Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408, (717) 783-8460.

Applications are also available through the department's seven regional offices: Region I, Meadville, (814) 332-6890; Region II, Williamsport, (717) 327-3550; Region III, Tunkhannock, (717) 836-2181; Region IV, Gibsonia, (412) 443-1585; Region V, Altoona, (814) 946-7315; Region VI, Summerdale, (717) 787-3400; and Region VII, Creamery, (215) 489-1003.

FEEDING BROILER RATIONS FORMULATED BY STOCHASTIC NONLINEAR PROGRAMMING

Dr. William B. Roush
Of Poultry Science

Stochastic nonlinear programming (Lancaster Farming, June 6, 1992, page E5) is a new approach for formulating animal feed.

This approach helps nutritionists accurately and consistently meet nutrient requirements. This is accomplished by accounting for the nutrient variability associated with crop varieties, weather, locality and soil conditions, and errors associated with sampling and feed manufacturing.

A common approach for accounting for nutrient variability using linear programming is to subtract a specified amount from the average nutrient value. This has become known as the margin of safety approach. When the margin of safety method is compared to the stochastic approach with the same constraints, the stochastic feed formulation is always lower in cost.

How does the performance compare for animals fed rations formulated with stochastic nonlinear programming or linear programming with a margin of safety?

To answer that question, a feeding trial was set up to compare the production of broilers fed rations formulated by linear programming, linear programming with a margin of safety, and stochastic nonlinear programming.

The nutrient requirements met at particular confidence levels were methionine, lysine, calcium, and total phosphorus. Treatment rations formulated by six methods were fed to broilers: (1) linear programming with a 50 percent confidence level LP, (2) stochastic programming SP1, and (3) linear programming with a margin of safety with a 69 percent confidence level for the nutrient requirements LPMS1, (4) stochastic programming SP2, and (5) linear programming with a margin of safety with methionine and lysine requirements increased to a confidence level of 90 percent LPMS2. A sixth treatment was included which was like SP2, but the boundary on meat and bone meal was relaxed from 5 percent to 10 percent of the ration SPRB. The costs of the rations were $155.65, $157.62, $159.05, $159.13, $164.86, $157.82 for LP, SP1, LPMS1, SP2, LPMS2, and SPRB, respectively.

Results showed that at six weeks, there were no significant differences in body weight for birds fed the treatment diets. Feed conversion was poorer for the LP fed birds than for any of the other treatments. There were no significant differences between equivalent comparisons of broilers fed rations formulated with stochastic programming or linear programming with a margin of safety treatments (SP1 versus MS1 and SP2 versus LPMS2).

Comparisons of profit estimates, based on the amount received for broiler meat and amount of feed consumed, showed stochastic programming was always more profitable than linear programming with a margin of safety for a given probability level of meeting nutrient requirements. The estimated profit per bird for each treatment was $.818, $.907, $.895, $.824, $.752, and $.876 for broilers fed rations formulated by LP, SP1, LPMS1, SP2, LPMS2, and SPRB, respectively.

Between equivalent stochastic programming and linear programming with a margin of safety methods, the stochastic program formulation was the most profitable. Guaranteeing the nutrient requirements at 69 percent was the most profitable level of guarantee.

The profit associated with SPRB was higher when compared to the estimated profits of SP2 and LPMS2. The significance of this observation is that the SPRB allowed more of a high variability ingredient (meat and bone meal) to enter the ration. Because the variability of this ingredient was accounted for in the formulation process, there was not a compromise in production or profit performance.

Farmers Vote To Appeal Ag Security Decision

MEADVILLE (Crawford Co.) — Farmer landowners whose application to create an agricultural security area (ASA) was denied by Vernon Township supervisors voted recently to appeal the decision of the Crawford County Court of Common Pleas.

The group, made up of members of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, Pennsylvnaia Farmers Union and Pennsylvania State Grange met at the Vernon Grange Hall for more than two hours discussing options for action.

"We're calling ourselves 'Vernon ASA' for purposes of public realtions and fundraising," said Bonnie Krider. "We're committed to fighting what we believe was a misinformed decision, and we're raising funds to help with legal costs."

Krider explanied that the farmer members of Vernon ASA raised nearly $400 from among themselves, but that more will be needed as the case progresses.

The decision to appeal came after participants reviewed the township supervisors' letter to Agriculture Secretary Boyd Wolff, explaining the reasons for the denial. "There are several points raised in the letter that appear to be inconsistent," Krider said. "For example, the letter talks about concerns with wetlands and poor soils, and then it talks about wanting a free hand for development - they can't have it both ways."

ADC Meets Farmers' Needs

More Than $124 Million in Extra Payments

Robert B. McSparran
President

"At Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, our mission is to maximize returns to members. In the past five years, we returned more than $124 million to members in equity payments, over-order premiums and quality bonuses. That's an average of $35,500 per member. And these extra dollars are continuing at the rate of $1.5 million a month.

"When non-members ask me why they should belong to Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, I am happy to report that we are financially healthy, strong in membership and growing in sales. ADC is the region's largest and most fiscally-sound cooperative, with a guaranteed market and outstanding benefits.

"More dairy farmers joined us last year than at any time in the past decade. If you are not an ADC shipper and are worried about your own milk market, then you should talk to the cooperative that is facing the future with confidence."

75 Years of Service to Dairy Farmers

Measure Nitrogen Loss At Harvest

NEWARK, Del. — Harvest is an excellent time for corn farmers to evaluate the effectiveness of their nitrogen management programs.

It takes about two pounds of nitrogen to grow a bushel of corn that contains 0.9 pound of nitrogen. Fertilizer recommendations usually call for 1.0 to 1.2 pounds of nitrogen per bushel of expected yield. The rest of the nitrogen needed to grow the crop comes from the microbial breakdown of organic material in the soil.

"Lost nitrogen not only reduces profitability, it also pollutes surface and ground waters," said Tom Williams, University of Delaware Cooperative Extension specialist in agricultural engineering and water quality. "Since only about half of all applied fertilizers are recovered with the crop, there's a lot of room for improvement."

The nitrogen source can be in the form of urea, ammonia, ammonium, nitrate, or tied up in organic matter. Plants can take up the ammonium and nitrate forms of nitrogen.

As ammonia, some nitrogen can be lost into the air through volatilization. Anaerobic bacteria can convert nitrate into nitrogen gas that also is lost into the air. But the biggest loss occurs from the leaching of nitrates.

"Bacteria in the soil rapidly convert ammonium nitrogen to nitrate nitrogen when the soil is warm and moist," Williams said. In its nitrate form, nitrogen readily leaches out of the soil.

"Nitrate has a negative charge and moves with the soil water instead of attaching to soil particles as ammonium does," the specialist said. One inch of rain or irrigation water can move nitrate down 6 inches in a sandy soil, or 2 to 3 inches in a silt loam soil.

"At that rate, it doesn't take a lot of rain before the nitrogen is moved below the root zone and lost for plant use," Williams said.

Corn growers can estimate their nitrogen efficiency by multiplying their yield in bushels per acre by 0.9 and dividing the result by pounds of nitrogen applied per acre. To translate that into a percentage, multiply the answer by 100.

"Strive for a 90 percent nitrogen efficiency to lower costs while protecting groundwater," Williams said. "This won't be easy to do, but the closer we can get to this goal, the better for our water supplies and the farmer's pocketbook."

Maryland's Largest Farm Organization To Meet

RANDALLSTOWN, Md. — The 77th annual meeting of the Maryland Farm Bureau will be held on December 6-9, at the Colony South Hotel in Clinton, Md.

The purpose of the meeting is to elect officers and adopt policies for the general farm organization which has more than 14,000 member families.

The farm group has been actively gathering policy suggestions from its membership, which will be submitted to the voting delegates for its consideration. Once policies are adopted, they remain in force for one year.

Featured speakers for this year's event include Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Robert Walker, agriculturalist Barb Wingfield, Pennsylvania Farmers' Association President Keith Eckel, and Nationwide Insurance Senior Vice President of Investments Peter Neckermann.

Model 1340 rotary disc mower conditioner has a revolutionary mechanical drive line design on a center-pivot machine. The center-pivot design and 12-foot cutting width give the farmer more productivity and less time in the field.

Mower-Conditioner Has Greater Maneuverability

ATLANTA, Ga. — Hesston has taken a giant step ahead of the industry by introducing a totally new machine, the Model 1340 rotary disc mower conditioner.

The 1340 has a revolutionary mechanical drive line design on a center-pivot machine. The center-pivot design and 12-foot cutting width give the farmer more productivity and less time in the field.

Opening up a field is faster and easier with the 1340's center-pivot operation. The design allows back and forth cutting, offering maximum maneuverability in the field, including cutting those square corners and ease of transport by providing the most narrow width possible and trailing directly behind the tractor. The value and versatility of the 1340 multiply when its big 12-foot cutting width is factored in — a feature especially important to large hay growers.

Versatility also is evident in the size of the windrows the 1340 affords the farmer — from as small as a 2-foot-8-inch windrow all the way to a full crop-dying 8-foot-10-inch swath.

Hesston's proven and popular rubber-over-steel conditioner rolls are another key feature on the 1340. Hesston's conditioning system reduces crop moisture and helps produce better and quicker curing windrows.

Agri-King Names Area Manager

Steve Kauffman

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Agri-King recently named Steve Kauffman area manager of southwestern Lancaster County.

Kauffman was born and raised on a dairy farm. He brings many years of farming experience to the livestock producers in his area.

Ear Tag Responders Remain In Place

OSBORNE, Kan. — The Porcode® ear-tag electronic identification system is available from Osborne Industries, Inc.

According to the company, several commercial ear-tag systems were installed at the beginning of 1992 at new Porcode® Electronic Sow Feeding (ESF) installations. All are performing well.

The compact ear tag system compliments the successful Porcode® collar responder system which Osborne introduced three years ago with the Porcode® Sow Management and Electronic Sow Feeding System. The new ear tags offer an alternative to collar maintenance.

A special application tool is available to install the ear tags, complete with installation instructions. The ear tag responders remain in place for the life of the sow. The responders are reusable with the addition of a new cap and tag blank. Porcode® ear tag responders do not require battery power.

Contact Osborne Customer Service at (800) 255-0316, any Osborne authorized dealer, or write Osborne Industries, Inc., P.O. Box 388, Osborne, KS 67473-2203.

Case Displays 300 HP 30-Inch Row-Crop Tractor

COLUMBUS, Ind. — On display at the Case IH exhibit at the Farm Progress show is a prototype of a 300-horsepower articulated four-wheel-drive tractor capable of 30-inch row-crop work. Equipped with a steerable front axle, this tractor can negotiate turns within a radius as tight as 12.2 feet.

"A tractor with this capability would be usable year round, for row-crop as well as tillage work," said Ron Morishita, Case product manager, four-wheel-drive tractors and implements. "The unique thing about this prototype is that it combines a steerable front axle and an articulated frame design to provide unprecedented maneuverability for a tractor this size. In our testing, we've found that operators can even make in-row corrections without tail wag."

Four-wheel-drive row-crop tractor. This prototype 300-horsepower Case International articulated four-wheel-drive tractor has a turning radius of just 12.2 feet and is capable of 30-inch row-crop work.

Morishita pointed out that front-axle steering has been available in Case International rigid-frame four-wheel-drive models for several years. "We're taking field-proven technology and putting it to work in a new application," he said. "This is the kind of innovation that will keep us in a position of technological leadership."

Morishita indicated that the row-crop tractor is still in testing. "We're working closely with customers to fine-tune its performance so they end up with the optimum benefit from the technological advances represented," he said.

According to Morishita, the four-wheel-drive row-crop tractor is state of the art in several respects. "Among other things, we've incorporated a 12-speed, full powershift transmission with the Case-exclusive Skip-Shift™ which can take it from first to eighth gear in just three seconds," he said. "This allows an operator to get up to speed faster for more accurate chemical application and safer transporting."

Pressure-flow-compensated hydraulics, another feature pioneered on Case International tractors, provides flow to the four standard remotes to ensure the right amount of pressure and flow without wasted horsepower.

The cab of the prototype unit features all-around visibility, low-effort controls, and a fully adjustable air-ride seat like other Case International four-wheel-drive articulated tractors.

"By combine the best of existing technologies with the new advantages gained in this design, we'll be providing customers with both continuity and progress, a clear demonstration of the kind of leadership through technology they expect from Case," said Morishita.

Forage School Locations Announced

ERIE (Erie Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension will be conducting forage schools in northwestern Pennsylvania during the months of November, December, and January.

These two-day schools have been designed to help today's forage grower achieve maximum economic yields on his farm.

Registration fee for the forage schools is $6 per farm. Make checks payable to the Lawrence County Extension Office and return to your local extension office.

GO WITH MAXXUM
THE TRACTOR THAT EVERYONE WANTS, INCLUDING THE COMPETITION.

When the competition started modernizing their mid-sized tractors, they imitated MAXXUM. But even when they complete upgrading all their tractors, they still won't be able to match us. So why wait for an attempted imitation when you can own the original. MAXXUM..the most rugged, reliable tractors from 80 to 112 horsepower available. Why?

REASON #1) OUR ENGINES: These are rugged, field proven MAXXUM engines, designed without compromise. What they're not is lighter, lower-cost versions of 30 year-old technology fed a 1990's diet of weight and cost reductions.

REASON #2) OUR TRANSMISSIONS: MAXXUM transmission housings are made of cast iron - the strongest and most durable available. Unlike some tractors, using light weight housings, MAXXUM is built for difficult farming conditions. With MAXXUM, you can shuttle with your left hand, freeing your right hand for loader control.....for total control.

White-New Idea Offers Truck-Mounted Spreaders

COLDWATER, Ohio — To better serve larger livestock operation's need to transport manure longer distances and the desire of many crop operations to return to natural fertilizer, White-New Idea recently announced the availability of New Idea spreaders for mounting on trucks.

Although all 3600 series spreaders can be adapted for truck applications, the largest model, 3639 (390 bu.) will likely dominate.

The spreaders are mounted by White-New Idea spreader dealers to the customer's chassis. A tandem axle truck is recommended for 3626 (260 bu.) and larger models. The spreader gearbox is powered off the transmission PTO.

All New Idea spreaders feature options allowing the spreader to be customized for your operation. For instance, the upper beater option helps level the load during unloading and shred clumps for a fine blanket. The upper beater has an optional sprocket to speed the upper beater for a wider, thinner layer. Other options include a hydraulic endgate, slurry pan, and a front extension.

Owners can also customize conveyor (application) rates by using one of the two conveyor speeds and one of the three sprockets for a total of six conveyor rates allowing you to customize manure application rates. The standard setup (heavy application rate) unloads at 8.4 feet per minute (4.4 feet per minute in low gear). The 20 percent torque reduction kit slows the conveyor speed to 7.1 feet per minute (3.6 feet per minute in low gear) for medium manure application rates. The 50 percent torque reduction kit slows the conveyor speed down to 4.8 feet per minute (2.4 feet per minute in low gear) for a light manure application rate.

For hauling manure distances, New Idea spreaders can be truck mounted for easy hauling without sacrificing spread pattern or your choice of unloading speeds.

Nutrena Granted Patent For Balanced Feeds

WALKERSVILLE, Md. — Cargill's Nutrena Feed Division has been granted a U.S. patent for its Techni-Cow dairy feeds.

"We sought the patent to protect the unique nature of these products," said Dr. John Foley, Nutrena's dairy information manager who initiated the first research project that eventually led to the Techni-Cow feeds.

"The patent represents a series of research projects over a six-year period to identify the amino acid requirements of dairy cows and then formulate feeds to meet these needs and help optimize dairy production. When we began this work it was generally believed that it was impossible to determine and formulate the correct balance of amino acids for optimum production. Our research indicated otherwise. Our experiments showed an overall improvement of 9.6 percent in milk production with Techni-Cow feeds," he said.

"The success of Techni-Cow has been phenomenal," said Foley. "It has helped improve production on thousands of high-producing cows across the country."

Foley said the patent includes not only the formulation of Techni-Cow feeds, but also the method of formulating dairy feeds to meet amino acid requirements.

Dr. Steve Smith, Nutrena's dairy research nutritionist, said the research showed that dairy cows require a specific set of amino acids, not just a specific amount of protein.

"The protein produced by microorganisms in the cow's rumen comes close to containing the necessary balance of amino acids, but not in the quantity required for genetically superior cows to reach their peak production potential. That's why bypass protein is so important," he said.

"Our work found that the composition of the bypass protein is especially critical. It provides an amino acid balance that complements the microbial amino acids," he said.

The properly balanced bypass protein in Techni-Cow dairy feeds helps increase peak milk production. Equally important, it helps limit the sudden drop in production that occurs when the cow uses up its existing supplies of stored protein, Smith said.

Techni-Cow dairy feeds have been marketed since 1989. They are available in concentrate, blender, and complete feeds.

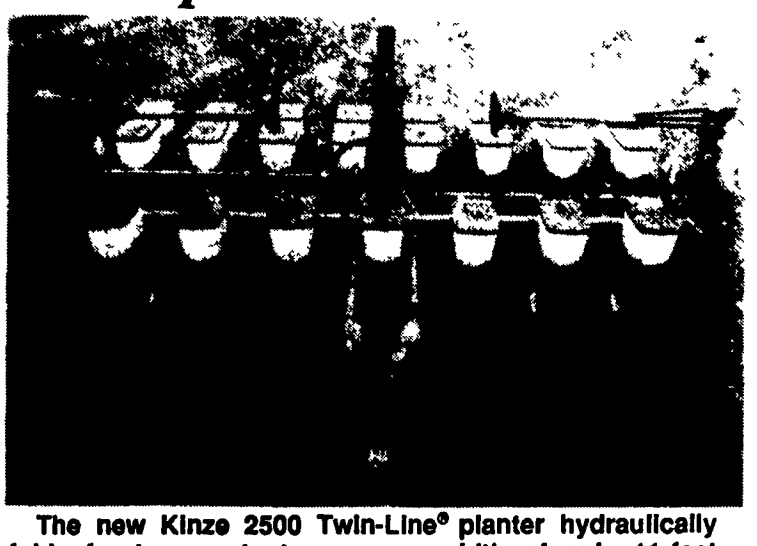
Kinze Planter Folds For Transport

WILLIAMSBURG, Iowa — A new line of hydraulic-folding row crop planters specifically built for today's highly diversified planting practices and the challenges of transport in high-traffic areas (or wherever narrow width transport is required) has recently been introduced by Kinze Manufacturing Inc.

The new Kinze 2500 Twin-Line® planter hydraulically folds for transport at a narrow width of only 11-feet 2-inches. The unit is available in 6-row N and 8-row N sizes that feature a rigid, uncluttered 5-inch x 7-inch double-toolbar frame to efficiently distribute the strength and weight of the planter for superior handling and smooth, balanced folding.

Hydraulic controls allow the operator to rotate and lower the planter from transport to planting position in just a matter of seconds. A 3-inch x 48-inch hydraulic cylinder provides smooth powerful lift.



The new Kinze 2500 Twin-Line® planter hydraulically folds for transport at a narrow width of only 11-feet 2-inches.

The pivoting center guidepost is equipped with UHMW plastic wear pads that ride up and down against machined stainless steel guides. Four 7.50-inch x 20-inch tires provide maximum stability in transport and carry the planter in the field. The 3-position tongue manually telescopes to accommodate single or dual tractor tires.

The 2500 Twin-Line plants at a standard row spacing of 30 inches and can be equipped with Kinze interplant push units for 15-inch narrow rows. Or it can be outfitted with liquid (choice of squeeze or piston pump) or dry fertilizer attachments, single or double disc openers, plus a wide range of residue management tools that make the Kinze 2500 extremely versatile in everything from conventional to no-till fields.

Two 4.10-inch x 6-inch spring-loaded contact tires eliminate the need for mechanical clutches and provide reliable power to smoothly engage and disengage the drive system. All-drive chains are mounted above the toolbar to avoid damage from rocks, trash, or mud.

End-mounted quick-adjust seed transmissions and precision-cut, plated sprockets allow easy seed population rate changes at increments of 3-percent or less. No tools are required. Planter row units equipped with finger pickup corn meters and Kinze's brush-type seed meters provide the operator with pinpoint seed placement and accuracy. Kinze electronic seed monitors are also available as an option.

Double-folding row markers create a low profile during transport, and feature 16-inch concave blades and cast-iron hubs. Dual SCV outlets are required for independent operation of the hydraulic lift system and row markers. A manual hand valve control selects the marker/rotate functions.

INDEPENDENT CONTRACTOR VS. EMPLOYEE STATUS

Alan W. Strock
Farm Management Agent
Chester, Lancaster Counties

The IRS has recently increased efforts in scrutinizing farmers and other small business people who claim they are paying subcontractors.

This also includes partnerships that have numerous partners, many of which may only have one or two percent ownership of the business and make no management decisions.

Penalties

If a taxpayer classifies and pays an employee as an independent contractor without reasonable basis for doing so, the taxpayer will have to pay the employment taxes for that worker.

If the taxpayer doesn't withhold income and social security taxes, the taxpayer may be held personally liable for a penalty of up to 100 percent of the tax, if he or she is the person responsible for the collection and payment of the withholding taxes.

Total tax and penalties could be 35 percent or more of the wages paid.

Definitions

An independent contractor is defined as one who engages to perform services for another according to his own method and manner, free from the direction and control of the contractor in all matters relating to the performance of the work, except as to result or the product of his work.

Remember, the ability to "control" is the key to to the relationship. An employer-employee relationship generally exists when the employer retains the right to direct the manner of performance and result to be accomplished.

Whether the taxpayer is an employee or independent contractor is primarily a question of fact. Thus, a service provider, a trucker, a salesman, or an insurance agent may be an independent contractor under one set of facts and rules and an employee under another.

IRS's 20-Point Test

The IRS uses the following 20 factor test to determine if an individual is an employee or independent contractor, since no one factor is conclusive.

1. Instructions from the employers about when, where, and how to work. Is the individual required to comply with instructions about when, where, and how the work is to be done?

2. Training. An employee is trained to perform services in a particular manner. Independent contractors ordinarily use their own methods and receive no training from the purchaser of their services.

3. Integration of services into the business to improve success or business continuation. An employee's services are integrated into the business operations because the services are important to the success and continuation of the business.

4. Services rendered personally. An employee renders services personally. Does the person have to do the work or can he contract for someone else to do it?

5. Hiring, supervising and paying of assistants. An employee works for an employer that hires, fires, supervises and pays assistants. An independent contractor hires, fires, supervises, and pays assistants.

6. Continuing relationship. An employee has a continuing relationship with his/her employer. A continuing relationship may exist where work is performed at frequently recurring, although irregular, intervals. Is the relationship ongoing like an employee/employer relationship or infrequent and irregular like an independent contractor/business owner relationship?

7. Set hours of work. An employee has set hours of work established by an employee. An independent contractor is the master of his or her own time.

8. Full-time required. An employee normally works full time for one employer. An independent contractor can work when and for whom he or she chooses.

9. Work done on employer's premise. An employee works on the premises of an employer, or works on a route or at a location designated by an employer.

10. Order or sequence of work. An employee must perform services in the order or sequence set by an employer. This reveals direction and control.

11. Oral or written reports. An employee submits reports to an employer. This shows the employee is accountable for his/her actions.

12. Payment. An employee is paid by the hour, week, or month. An independent contractor is paid by the job or on a straight commission.

13. Payment of business or travel expenses. An employee's business and travel expenses are paid up front or reimbursed by the employer. This shows regulation and control.

14. Tools and/or materials. An employee is furnished significant tools and other equipment by an employer.

15. Investment in facilities. An independent contractor usually has a significant investment in the facilities he or she uses in performing services for someone else.

16. Profit or a loss. An independent contractor retains the risk and may show a profit or a loss.

17. Working for more than one person or firm at a time. An independent contractor usually gives his or her services to a multiple of unrelated persons or firms at the same time.

18. Services offered to the public. Most independent contractors make their services available to the public.

19. Right to discharge. An employee can be fired by an employer. An independent contractor cannot be fired so long as her or she produces a result that meets the specifications or their contract.

20. Right to terminate. An employee can quit his or her job any time without incurring liability. An independent contractor usually agrees to complete a specific job and is responsible for its satisfactory completion or is legally obligated to make good for failure to complete the job.

What The Courts Say

The following facts are generally given considerable weight by the courts: degree of supervision and control to which the taxpayer is subject, whether or not the taxpayer must devote full time to work, and whether the employer views him as an employee or an independent contractor.

Sometimes the issue is decided by whether the taxpayer is conducting his own business or the business of others.

Why All The Fuss

The IRS has recently stepped up its compliance program targeting small and mid-sized businesses as those most likely to classify what the IRS considers "employees" as "independent contractors."

The General Accounting Office estimates that $1.6 billion in tax revenue is lost annually due to worker "misclassification."

So, in summary, think about the people you consider independent contractors. Are you sure these individuals aren't really your employees. Be sure to consult your tax advisor if your have any questions.

Nitrogen In Ammonium Form Increases Yields On Poor Soils

SALISBURY, Md. — Nitrogen fertilizers with a large amount of their nitrogen in the ammonium form appear to be the most efficient sources to use on wheat and possibly corn on sandy loam soils, according to ongoing studies at the University of Maryland Lower Eastern Shore Poplar Hill Research and Education Facility.

The studies are showing that the best yields — as high as those on better soils — result when the nitrogen is combined with sulfur in fertilizers such as ammonium sulfate.

"On sandy loam soils with little organic matter, we found a definite advantage to using ammonium forms of nitrogen, tied to sulfur, particularly during tiller formation of wheat," said Ron Mulford, author of the study. "We are now looking at this relationship in corn."

Mulford has been farm manager at the University's Poplar Hill Facility for 23 years. He said the reason for the advantage is not entirely understood at the present time and that further research is needed.

"In experimenting with different nitrogen sources over the years we have tried several forms that included sulfur," Mulford said. "This is because we feel it is important to add sulfur to most Maryland soils, particularly on the lower eastern shore of Maryland — our soil tests always come up low in that element."

For the past two years, Mulford has conducted several studies comparing wheat yields on different types of soils in several growing regions in Maryland.

The highest yields on the sandy loam soils seem to be with the ammonium-sulfur based fertilizer sources. Ammonium sulfate blended with ammonium nitrate gave the highest yields in 1991. Mulford included the liquid form of ammonium sulfate (8-0-0-9S) in the 1992 wheat and barley studies. The liquid form, when blended with 30 percent UAN solution, performed the same as the dry ammonium sulfate blended with urea or ammonium nitrate.

"Our goal has been to find methods of nitrogen source management that farmers in our region can use," he said. "We have found that, just through nitrogen rate management, source management, and timing of application, we can produce similar yields on poorer sandy loam soils as on the better silt loam soils." The highest yield of all his wheat studies in 1992 was 133 bushels per acre produced on the sandy loam soil

Mulford's work has shown that sulfur is an important element in achieving high wheat and corn yields. "We feel we need 20-25 pounds of sulfur on wheat or corn as a maintenance application — and 40 pounds if you are just getting started on a sulfur program," he said. "You want enough sulfur present in the first foot of soil to initiate good root growth."

To ensure the presence of adequate sulfur, Mulford suggests that growers who have not been using sulfur apply half the fertilizer in the fall and half in the spring for the first year or two. "If you're already on a sulfur program, applying all of the sulfur in the spring should be sufficient. However, on the light sandy soils, there may be some benefit to applying some sulfur just before planting wheat or barley," he said.

How much nitrogen to apply each season depends on the type of soil being farmed, Mulford's trials have shown. A crucial factor is the amount of N carryover (residual nitrogen).

Mulford followed up on work by Dr. Fred Below at the University of Illinois showing that wheat and corn benefitted from high concentrations than normal of ammonium to nitrate N in the early growth development of these plants. Mulford found that, due to N carryover, on silt loam soils there was little difference in the form of N used. But his results did support the Illinois work on sandy loam soils — which tend to have less N carryover.

"Regardless of location, you need 100-110 pounds N per acre for 100 bushel wheat," Mulford said. "On some of our better silt loam soils, the winter N carryover has been as high as 90 pounds per acre. On many of these soils, a single application of 60 to 80 pounds of N applied at Feeks growth stage 5 is sufficient to produce 100 bushels per acre of wheat. But on most of the sandy loam soils, there is very little N carryover so you may have to apply 100-130 pounds of N." Mulford recommends applying approximately 20 pounds preplant in fall, 60 pounds at greenup or before, and 50 to 60 pounds at Feeks growth stage 5 to 6.

Mulford stresses the importance of a balanced nutrient program for every crop. "If anything is out of balance, it affects yields — which is why I am a strong proponent of soil testing.

"Our work has shown that the most efficient nitrogen source at this point is one with a large part of the nitrogen in the ammonium form tied to sulfur. Ammonium sulfate blends seem to be some of the most efficient nitrogen sources to use."

- Questions to ask before buying metal roofing & siding for your building
- What are the benefits of New Improved AZ-55 coating?
- Why is standard painted galvanized roofing fast become outdated?
- Why does AZ-55 coating last 2-4 times as long as old fashioned painted galvanized?
- Why do some metal dealers NOT sell AZ-55?
- When should I NOT use AZ-55

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING

A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

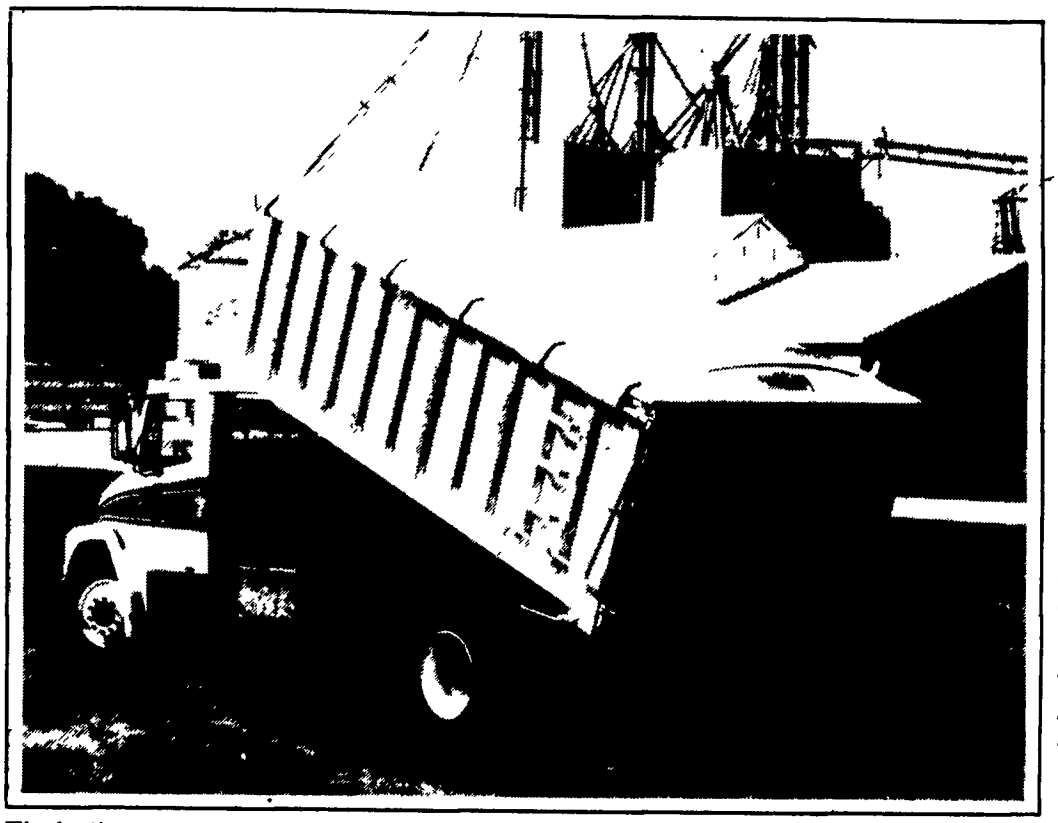
In grain bodies, aluminum makes $ense.



Eby Aluminum Grain Bodies pay off in dependable long-term service. Their all-aluminum construction means:

- Greater payload efficiency
- Maintenance-free service
- Substantially higher resale value.

EXTENDED FREE FITTING TARP THRU 12-1-92

If you think that steel is cheaper, think again. We can show you how aluminum actually saves you dollars in the long run.

Eby's time-tested design is available in lengths to 24' and a 48" standard height; optional heights include 54", 60" and 72". A long list of standard features such as tie rail, built-in steps, aerodynamic uprights and Harsh hoist is complemented by a full range of custom options, including tailgates, Wahpeton tarps and chute.

When you select your next grain body, consider the value that aluminum offers. It's a worry-free investment in your future.

American Cyanamid Reorganizes Ag Business

WAYNE, N.J. — In concert with the announcement of new corporate officers and a reorganization of its business units, American Cyanamid Company also announced the appointment of new division presidents and vice presidents in its agricultural business.

The company's agricultural business has been divided into two segments: agricultural products, which is comprised of agrichemcials for crop protection and vegetation control and animal health and nutrition products.

This new organizational structure of Cyanamid's agricultural business, which had 1991 sales of $1.21 billion, will enable management to focus on clearly identified and differentiated strategies for animal and agrichemical markets. In addition, it will allow increased focus on the company's attractive animal health and nutrition research pipeline.

Marco A. Fonseca, 50, has been appointed president of the agricultural products division of Cyanamid International, reporting to William A. Liffers, chairman of Cyanamid International and newly-appointed Group Vice President William J. Murray.

Howard L. Minigh, Ph.D., 44, has been named president of the agricultural products division in the United States and reports to Group Vice President William J. Murray. William F. R. Griffith III, 58, has been named vice president of the agricultural products division in the United States, reporting to Minigh.

Bruce I. Andrews, 46, has been appointed president of the animal health and nutrition division in the United States, reporting to newly-appointed Group Vice President David Lilley.

Robert Querido, Ph.D., 48, has been named president of the animal health and nutrition division of Cyanamid International reporting to William A. Liffers, chairman of Cyanamid International, and Group Vice Preisdent David Lilley.

Dr. Alberto E. Adam, Ph.D., 54, has been appointed vice president of animal health and nutrition products, with responsibility for the planning, coordination, and strategic direction of the global animal vaccine business, reporting to Group Vice President David Lilley. Adam remains the president of Langford Laboratories in Canada.

Murray, who has global responsibility for agricultural products, joined Cyanamid's organic chemicals division in 1967 and has held various positions in manufacturing, sales, and marketing in the chemical business. In 1985, he was named vice president of the polymer products division and in 1988 president of the Venture chemcials division. In 1990, Murray became president of the U.S. agricultural division. A chemical engineering graduate of Manhattan College, he received his master's in business from New York University.

Lilley, who has global responsibility for animal heatlh and nutrition products, joined Cyanamid in 1978 at the company's Bradford, England operation and was appointed managing director of Cyanamid of Great Britain Limited in 1988. He was appointed vice president of the Lederle division of Cyanamid International in 1990 and president of the chemicals division of Cyanamid International in 1991. He is a gradaute of Cambridge University with a master's in natural sciences and chemical engineering.

Fonseca joined Cyanamid in Brazil in 1964. He moved through a series of management positions in Brazil, Puerto Rico, and Mexico prior to being named managing director of Cyanamid Iberica in Spain in 1981. In 1985, he was appointed vice president of Cyanamid international agricultural division and president of that division in 1989. A native of Brazil, he is a graduate of the Univeristy of the State of Guanabara.

Minigh joined Cyanamid as a reasearch chemist in 1974. He rose through a series of research, management, manufacturing, and marketing positions in the animal and crop protection businesses. In 1991, he was named vice president of the agricultural division in the United States. He received his Ph.D. degree in organic chemistry from West Virginia University.

Griffith joined Cyanamid in 1978 as an agricultural group product manager. He progressed through a series of management positions and was named vice president and general manager of crop protection chemicals in the agricultural division in the United States in 1985. He received his bachelor's in animal science from the University of Arizona.

Andrews joined Cyanamid of Great Britain Limited in 1974 as a marketing manager for animal products. He progressed through a series of management positions in the company's international and U.S. animal businesses and was appointed vice president of Cyanamid international agricultural division in 1989. A native of England, he is a graduate of London University with a bachelor's in business studies.

Querido joined Cyanamid international agricultural division in 1988 as director of marketing for pesticide products and was named vice president of animal products for that division in 1989. Previously, he was deputy general manager of Stauffer Chemical Company's European operations. He holds doctorate in chemical engineering from the University of Massachusetts.

Adam joined Cyanamid in 1964 as a veterinarian. He has held various management positions in the company's internatiaonl buisness, including managing director of Cyanamid Iberica in Spain and vice president for operations in Cyanamid international. In 1984 he was named vice president of the agricultural division in the United States and in 1991 vice president of Cyanamid international agricultural division. A native of Germany, Adam holds a doctorate in veterinary medicine from Munich Unversity.

Price Support Loans Available

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Don Unangst, state executive director for Pennsylvania for the State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said price support loans are available to all wheat and feed grain producers who are participating in the 1992 farm programs.

Additionally, price support loans are available to producers of honey, soybeans, canola, flaxseed, rapeseed, and sunflower seed.

1992 Crop loan rates for Pennsylvania are:

- Barley varies by county and ranges from $1.29 to $1.39 per bushel.
- Canola varies by county and ranges from $8.27 to $8.94 per hundredweight.
- Corn varies by county and ranges from $1.84 to $1.95 per bushel.
- Flaxseed varies by county and ranges from $7.11 to $7.93 per hundredweight.
- Honey is 53.8 cents per pound for all counties.
- Mustard Seed varies by County and ranges from $6.64 to $6.79 per hundredweight.
- Oats are $1.05 per bushel in all counties.
- Rapeseed is $7.60 in all counties.
- Rye is $1.63 per bushel in all counties.
- Sorghum varies by County, with the rate either $2.86 or $2.87 per hundredweight.
- Soybeans vary by County and range from $4.98 to $5.07 per bushel.
- Sunflower, oil type, varies by county and ranges from $7.07 to $7.89 per hundredweight.
- Sunflower, other type, varies by county and ranges from $6.39 to $6.68 per hundredweight.
- Wheat varies by county and ranges from $2.27 to $2.53 per bushel.

Unangst said some producers may wish to store their crops after harvest to take advantage of future price increases. A price support loan will provide operating cash for them.

Under the ASCS price support loan program, the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) makes loans to eligible farmers.

"Loans mature on demand," said Unangst, "but no later than the last day of the ninth month following the month in which the note and security agreement is approved."

Stocks may be stored on the farm or in an approved commercial warehouse. The commodity serves as collateral for the loan.

"Farmers who plan to commingle their 1992 and 1991 harvests and request a loan must first contact their local county ASCS office," ASCS official Unangst said.

Price support loans on wheat, canola, flaxseed, honey, rapeseed, and other small grains will be available through March 31, 1993. Corn, sorghum, sunflower, seed and soybean loans will be available until May 31, 1993.

Zone-Till Enters Market

KALIDA, Ohio— Unverferth Manufacturing Company, Inc. announces that it has entered into an agreement with Rawson Coulters, Inc. of Farwell, Mich. The Rawson family pioneered and marketed this tillage practice and related products as Zone-Till™ tillage.

The Rawson products include a patented three disc coulter assembly for attaching to planters, a coulter caddy complete with fertilizer injection unit, and other residue management planting accessories which facilitate Zone-Till practices. These products will continue to be manufactured in Farwell with expanded production at Unverferth's Kalida, Ohio and Shell Rock, Iowa manufacturing facilities.

"This agreement with Rawson and the popular Zone-Till products will allow Unverferth Manufacturing to rapidly expand its line of residue management equipment to our customers and provide future product development opportunities," said Richard Unverferth, CEO of Unverferth Manufacturing.

Cart Minimizes Compaction

SHELL ROCK, Iowa — The new Brent Lightfoot Corner Auger™ grain cart from Unverferth minimizes compaction, travels smoothly, and carries a 1,000-bushel load.

The Lightfoot's exclusive eight wheel and tire configuration distributes the cart's 64,000 pound load evenly for a "light" footprint of just 14 psi. Fully castered front and rear wheels on each side allow for maximum maneuverability, turning ease, and eliminates the "berming" of soil associated with tracked vehicles. The eight independently operated wheels provide a smooth, level ride over field furrows and ridges without spilled grain.

The Lightfoot also features 1,000-plus bushel capacity and unloads in under four minutes with its computer balanced 17 inch corner auger for fast return to the combine.

Standard Lightfoot equipment also includes rear lighting package, auger mounted spotlight, twin viewing windows, drop leg jack, heavy duty spindles and hubs, Unverferth designed gearbox, and choice of tractor green or red paint.

This 1,000-bushel Corner Auger™ grain cart is also available as a two-wheeled unit with 35.5-32 tires. Scale packages are available for both units, either factory installed or as a simple retrofit.

For further information, contact Unverferth Manufacturing Company, Inc., P.O. Box 357, Kalida, OH 45853, (800) 322-6301.

Growers Want More Than A Place To Buy Herbicides

WAYNE, N.J. — According to a recent survey, growers are using their local agrichemical dealership for more than just a place to buy herbicides and insecticides.

A call-in survey of 400 DTN grower subscribers indicated that more than 95 percent of the growers use their dealer for technical information, while 90.2 percent depend on him for regulatory information. Another 88.2 percent get custom application services through their dealer and 83.2 percent take advantage of soil testing services.

The survey was sponsored by American Cyanamid Company as part of an initiative to further prepare its Cyanamid AgriCenter dealers to meet grower needs through the next century.

"In order to survive and prosper in the future, we have to do more than just sell crop protection chemicals — our dealers have to continue to offer value-added services, improve professionalism, and be environmentally responsible," said Bill Griffith, vice-president and general manager of the crop protection chemicals department of American Cyanamid.

Using an on-screen prompt, DTN encouraged grower subscribers to participate in the call-in survey. The survey pinpointed a wide variety of products, technical information, product recommendations, and regulatory information as the most important services agrichemical dealers offer their grower customers.

When asked what other services growers would like to see their dealers offer, 20.6 percent identified container collection and disposal. This indicates an increased concern for manufacturers to provide environmentally sound materials such as Lock 'n Load containers and water-soluble packaging.

The survey also indicated that the relationship between a dealer and grower is important. On a scale of one to ten, growers rated a professional relationship between them and their dealers an 8.4. Product knowledge was rated the highest among dealer attributes.

Growers responding to the survey seem to be loyal to their primary dealer. Of the 400 growers surveyed, 44.9 percent use only one agrichemical dealer, 39.4 percent use two dealers, and only 1.5 percent use more than four dealers. In addition, more than 50 percent of the growers surveyed have used their primary dealer for ten or more years.

The growers surveyed represented a cumulative of nearly 450,000 acres across the nation.

Deere Announces Special ROPS Program

MOLINE, Ill. — Deere & Company has announced a special rollover protective structures (ROPS) program to encourage the use of ROPS and seat belts on older tractors.

The program reminds operators of the benefits from having ROPS and wearing seat belts on agricultural tractors and aggressively encourages the installation of rollover protective structures for tractors not equipped with ROPS.

"We believe reducing the selling price of rollover protective structures can be an element in convincing a customer to install ROPS on an older tractor," said Bud Porter, director of sales branches at Deere & Company. "That's why we are adopting what we call 'pass-through pricing' for ROPS kits. Very simply, we will sell them to our dealers at or below our average manufacturing cost and ask our dealers to sell the kits without margin to reduce the effect cost may have on a farmer's decision to have ROPS and seat belts installed on his older tractors."

Deere also announced that its new foldable ROPS, standard on its 40- through 85-pto hp tractors, is available for older utility tractors. This enables these tractors to be equipped with a ROPS that can be folded in height-limiting situations, such as low doorways of buildings.

Porter said farmers who want more information about the new ROPS program and what's available for their tractors should contact their local John Deere dealer.

The John Deere special ROPS program encourages the installation of ROPS (rollover protective structures) and seat belts on older tractors. ROPS are available for most John Deere tractors manufactured since 1960. The company's two-post foldable ROPS (pictured) provides for low-clearance operations.

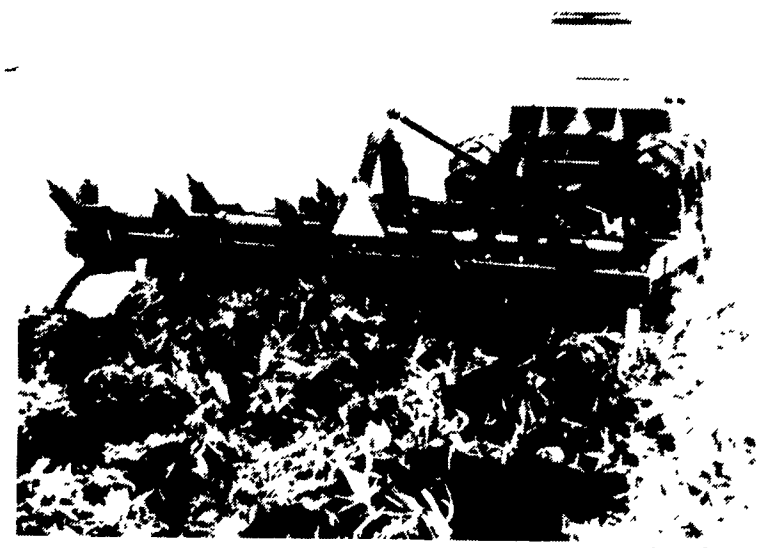
Yield Builder Delivers Total Primary Tillage

EXCELSIOR, Minn. — A rugged new primary mulch tillage implement that offers excellent residue management to reduce erosion, conserve moisture, and meet compliance has been introduced by Farmhand, Inc.

The Glencoe YB8500 Yield Builder is a combination deep tillage and conventional tillage implement that cuts and selectively incorporates residue, aerates the soil, and reduces compaction.

The Yield Builder delivers total primary tillage in all types of conditions - topsoil tillage every 15 inches and deep tillage every 30 inches. In years when deep tillage isn't required, conventional shanks can be mounted on all of the bars for topsoil tillage only. A wide range of shovels and shanks allow the operator to selectively incorporate residue to meet compliance requirements.

A weighted and all-welded frame, dependable hydraulics, a self-leveling hitch, walking beam axle, and positive depth control assure uniform soil penetration. An adjustable rear bar permits conventional shanks to be adjusted independently from the deep tillage shanks to match horsepower and soil conditions. Five models of the YB8500 are available with working widths from 6 feet 3 inches to 16 feet 3 inches.



The Glencoe YB8500 Yield Builder is a combination deep tillage and conventional tillage implement that cuts and selectively incorporates residue, aerates the soil, and reduces compaction.

Chore-Time Develops Innovative Ventilation System

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — "Ventilation has traditionally been the last thing that the producer thought about after he had selected his cages, feeding, watering, and egg collection systems," said David Newman, Northeast Agri Systems. "This created a serious problem for the producer, because as we have learned over time, ventilation is one of the single most critical factors for proper bird health, top egg production, feed conversion, and moisture content of manure."

For these reasons, Chore-Time Cage Systems, Milford, Ind., began several years ago to research and develop ways to incorporate ventilation into a total Chore-Time pullet and layer cage system.

"Chore-Time's goal was to develop a system that would be unequalled in air distribution, air quality, and temperature differential (plus or minus 2 degrees Fahrenheit)," Newman said. "At the same time, the company also felt they also needed to address the effects of ventilation on manure handling. We think the release of Chore-Time's new Turbo™ Environmental System meets those goals."

Newman added that customers using the innovative Turbo system report even more benefits than Chore-Time orginally anticipated. Chore-Time's research results so far indicate three percent higher egg production, one percent lower mortality, and manure moisture content as low as 17 percent. The lowered manure moisture content has helped cut the average time spent cleaning cage house manure from two and one-half weeks to just three days.

Two Kinds of Houses

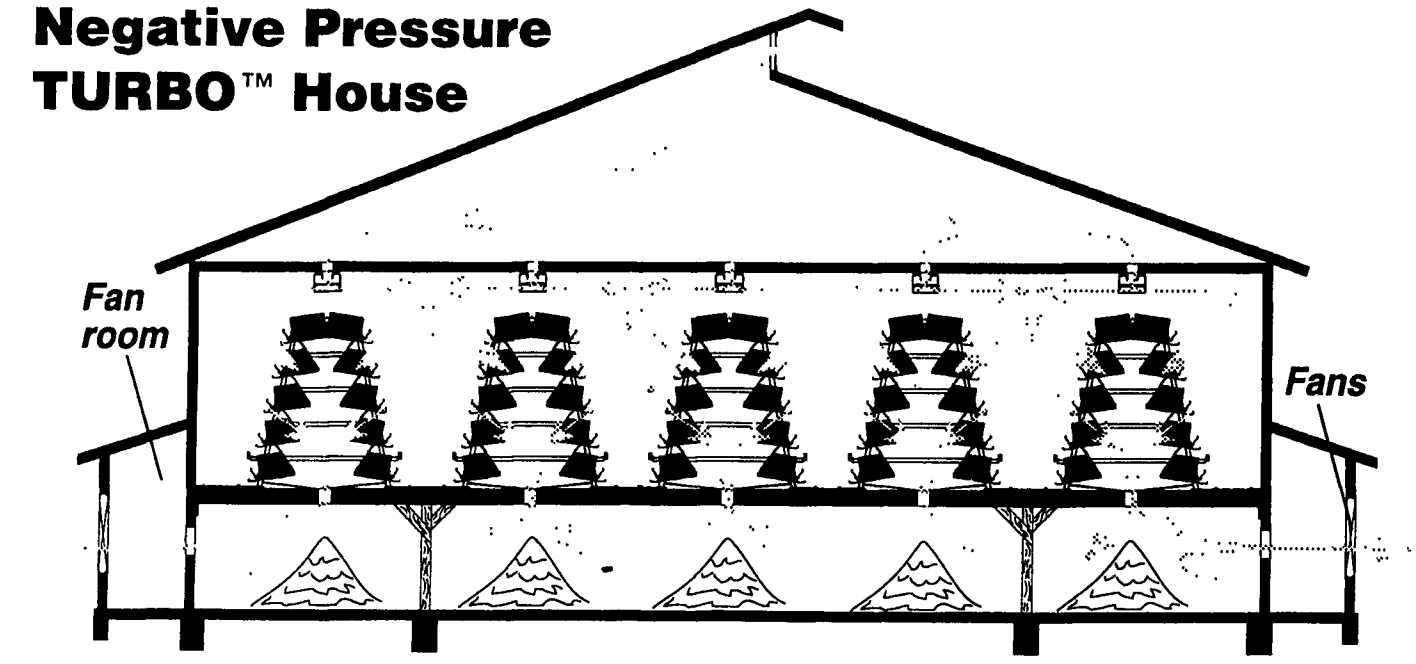
Chore-Time's Turbo Environmental System is versatile and simple. It can also be used in either negative pressure or positive pressure ventilated cage houses.

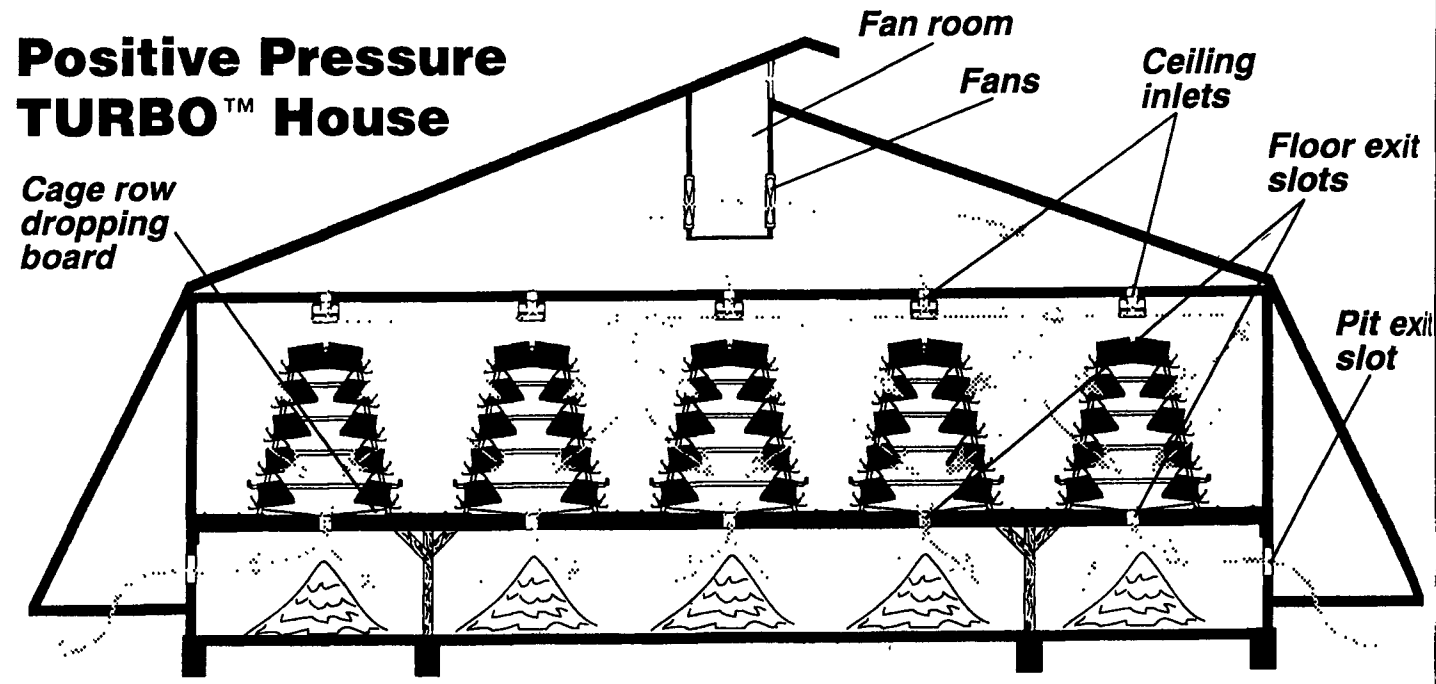
In either positive or negative pressure houses, the Chore-Time Turbo concept starts by drawing fresh air into the building's attic area from either under the eaves or through an opening in the peak of the roof of the house. The building's attic is then used as a buffer area where the air is gathered to moderate the air's temperature before channeling it into the house.

From the attic, fresh air is distributed into the bird area of the house through multiple Turbo inlets running the length of the house. The company recommends locating an inlet in the ceiling directly above each cage row in the house.

In a positivie pressure Turbo system, fans are located in the attic to "push" the air into the house (see the positive pressure Turbo house illustration). The fans are positioned evenly down the length of the house in a long, narrow "fan room" located near the peak of the building structure, Newman said.

In this approach, the fans are used to pressurize the air in the attic to help efficiently and evenly distribute air through each and every ceiling inlet. Since they are located in the attic, the fans and their shutters remain free from dirt. This helps to maximize their efficiency and minimize cleaning time, he said. Inspection and maintenance of the fans in the Chore-Time Turbo positive pressure house is also very convenient and can be done in a matter of minutes.





In Chore-Time's negative pressure turbo house, the air is drawn through the house by fans located in the pit area of a high-rise pullet or layer building (see the negative pressure Turbo house illustration). These exhaust fans are located on both sides of the house in a fan room which is attached to the pit sidewall, Newman said. Fans are spaced evenly down the outer wall of this fan room, which runs the length of the sidewall of the structure.

Having the fans located completely outside the pit area gives the producer easy access to them for inspection and cleaning, he said.

Adjustable Turbo Openings

In either a positive or a negative Turbo system, the fans cause the air to enter the bird area of the house through the adjustable opening provided by the Turbo ceiling inlets. These inlets run the length of the house above each cage row, Newman said.

Each Turbo inlet provides a steady stream of fresh air across the ceiling of the house in two directions. The streams of air from the inlets then collide with each other forcing the air down to the cages. Solid aisles and floors then cause the air to pass evenly through the cage system over the birds for better bird comfort. After passing through the cage, the air goes across the manure on either cage curtains or dropping boards for better manure drying.

The air then exists out of the bird area of the house by passing through the manure slot under each cage row. On its way out of the building, the air passes across the piles of manure from the cages above to help dry them thoroughly, Newman said.

To complete Chore-Time's unique Turbo system, one large dropping board scraper is positioned directly under each cage row, Newman said. This dropping board is used to scrape and funnel the manure from the cages into the area through the six-inch wide slot running the length of the house under each cage row.

Diagnose Stalk Rot This Fall, Prescribe Control Measure

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Unusual weather patterns in many parts of the country this growing season may have opened the door to stalk rot this fall.

The view from the combine provides corn growers with an opportunity to document the evidence of stalk rot in their fields. By carrying a clipboard and copies of field maps in the cab, growers can take notes on affected fields for reference when making crop plans for next year.

The 1992 weather patterns may have contributed to the onset of stalk rot as drought, excessive moisture, and extended cloudiness stressed plants. Other contributing factors may include overpopulation, low fertility, nutrient imbalance, frost, hail, leaf diseases, and corn borers and other insects.

John Harker, Northrup King senior agronomist, said these factors can reduce the amount of sugar produced in plant leaves through photosynthesis. When this happens during flowering, pollination or kernel development, the plant draws sugars primarily from the stalk to meet the demands of grain fill.

As a result, root and stalk tissues weaken, said Harker. A combination of fungi and other disease pathogens may then rapidly invade, disrupting the ability of the stalk to move water and nutrients to the upper parts of the plant, and preventing sugars produced in the leaves from reaching the stalk and roots. The end result is reduced yields, dropped ears, and lodged plants.

The Northrup King agronomist said the stalk rot pathogens survive in the soil and crop residue, but growers can take steps to reduce opportunities for infection. First, Harker recommends hybrids strong on standability and plant health. Next, he advocates an adequate soil fertility program, proper nutrient balance, and recommended plant populations. During the season, growers should scout and control insects and weeds and improve soil drainage, pH, and tilth. Finally, growers can harvest susceptible fields first and may implement crop rotation to break the disease cycle.

No Easy Answers To Ag Policy Choices

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Questions and choices regarding agricultural policy have no easy answers, said an expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Over the past 60 years, U.S. farm policy has emphasized enhancing farm incomes, and the support has been generous," said Dr. Milton C. Hallberg, professor of agricultural economics. "As might be expected, this support has elicited polar reactions."

Hallberg's new book, "Policy for American Agriculture: Choices and Consequences," has been published by Iowa State University Press. The book reviews the agricultural policy process, the need for agricultural policy, past policy decisions, and an economic assessment of current agricultural policy choices.

"At one pole are those who argue that farmers are indispensable because they provide for the most basic of human needs," Hallberg said. "They argue that the farming way of life must be preserved even at a significant cost to taxpayers.

"At the opposite pole are those who argue that while that is true, farmers can and should be guided by an economy that is permitted to dictate adjustments in resource use without government intervention, as is the case for many other businesses.

"An absolutely free market solution for agriculture is not likely to work," he said. "However, many of the strategies we have pursued to date may be too expensive to sustain, and may even be counterproductive."

The trick, Hallberg said, is to find a reasonable middle ground a compromise consistent with values held by both sides. "To achieve this, we need a clear vision of the nature of the agricultural sector," he said. "We must assess the impact of policy decisions on many different people, resources, and nonagricultural interests."

The role of government in regulating agriculture must be carefully thought out. "The expression that policy is whatever governments choose to do is partly true, but it's a gross oversimplification," Halberg said. "How and why do governments make their decisions? Who participates in the process? Why do we need policy, and what issues are amenable to policy treatment? And finally, is agriculture somehow unique so that it needs special policy treatment?"

The frist section of Hallberg's book provides a brief review of the policy process, a summary of past agricultural policies, and a discussion of characteristics of the farm sector relevant to agricultural policy. The seocond section explores costs and benefits of price and income support for agriculture.

The third section details the merits and demerits of policies focused on expanding domestic demand, providing price support to farmers, controlling farm output, providing various forms of market control, restricting or expanding international trade, conserving farm resources, and stabilizing farm prices and quantities.

The book concludes with a guide to policy choices for the agricultural sector in coming years. "It examines some of the issues in analyzing policy choices and objectives," Hallberg said. "It reviews agriculture's capacity to adjust to economic incentives and changes and it contemplates the likely need for future policy. It also outlines and discusses some additional issues that must be decided as we choose future farm policy objectives."

"Policy for American Agriculture: Choices and Consequences" is available from Iowa State University Press, 2121 S. State Avenue, Ames, IA 50010-8300.

USDA Farm Income Estimate Questions Abound

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Questions raised by a Farmers Union member during a recent legislative "fly-in" in Washington have resulted in an examination of the methodology used by the U.S. Department of Agriculture in estimating farm income.

The net farm income estimates have historically been a barometer of the financial health of rural America. But farmers say the estimates have been skewed in recent years in a way that misleads policymakers and the public.

Nebraska Farmers Union Secretary John Dittrich raised the questions after noting a wide disparity between USDA's estimates and Internal Revenue Service Schedule F totals for farm income. The problem, said Dittrich, centers on a category called "nonmoney income."

"They're adding things like the value of homegrown food and the possible rental value of the farm," said NeFU President John Hansen. "Those items don't represent income at all, and make the estimates over 12 percent higher than they should be."

USDA uses a category defined as the "value of home consumption of self-produced food and imputed gross rental value of farm dwellings" in determining net farm income.

That was one of the problems the Farmers Union leaders pointed to when they met with top USDA economists in Washington recently. That meeting got the attention of U.S. Senator Robert Kerrey (D-Neb.), who is examining the way USDA arrives at its estimates and has asked "whether the department would consider deleting" the category.

National Farmers Union President Leland Swenson had sharp words for the Department's Analysis, calling them "politically motivated to make things look much better then they are in rural America.

"Farmers continue to wonder why, when they're struggling like they are, the USDA's farm income estimates are reported to be record high. Now we know it's because they're using inflated estimates and artificial categories," he said.

Swenson called the "imputed gross rental value" category "nonsense," that gives the public a false impression of farm finances. "If I own a house and live in it, I don't consider the income I could get by renting it out part of my annual income," he said. "Yet USDA wants us to believe that, for farmers, potential income is just as valuable as real money."

NFU wants the category eliminated, a move that presumably would reduce net farm income estimates by approximately six billion dollars a year.

Rectangular Baler Produces Bales To 98 Inches Long

ATLANTA, Ga. — AGCO Hesston's new 4750 mid-size rectangular baler is the perfect equipment addition for the farmer who wants to produce high quality large bales while making most efficient use of crop transport time.

The 4750 is designed to produce bales sized to meet the custom operator's requirements as well as the needs of other livestock operations. With its 31.5x34.4 inch bale chamber, the 4750 can produce a bale up to 98 inches long and up to 1,000 pounds.

This package size optimizes the load capacity of flat bed trucks, reduces the number of bales that are handled and stored, and, as a result, lowers transportation and handling cost.

In designing the 4750, Hesston has paid the same attention to crop quality that has made the manufacturer a 14-year leader in the large-baler category. The 4750 produces bales that maintain the desired high density without massive leaf loss or diminished nutrient levels.

A key ingredient is the 4750's prepacker chamber, where sensors assure the crop is handled gently and the leaves are uniformly distributed in each flake so they don't fall from the bottom of the bale during handling and storage.

The operator sets the desired density for the type of crop in this precompression stage from the in-cab control/monitor. When that level is reached, the stuffer fork moves the crop into the baling chmber in consistent weight and density, ensuring uniformly perfect shape and high density in each bale.

Pre-set hydraulic pressure in the bale chamber remains constant during compression. The moveable top, left, and right sides of the bale chamber are driven by Hesston's two-cylinder system that forces the sides to move with uniform pressure while using less hydraulic pressure. The system uses short, compact cylinders for less stress on the cylinder rods in the extended position.

Hesston's patented "double knotter" typing system produces perfect knots every time, eliminates pulling the twine through the compressed hay and reduces stress and wear on the knotter. The in-cab monitor gives the operator convenient control over the knotter and needle performance as well as plunger load, baler chamber tension pressure, bale count (field and total), flakes per bale, driving meter, stuffer cycles, feeder system slip, and other functions.

The extra-wide (77.5 inch) pickup gives the farmer more control during windy conditions. It is chain-driven, equipped with two-gauge wheels, can be seen easily from the tractor seat, and is protected with a slip clutch and an overrunning clutch that prevents tire damage during backups.

With its 31.5 x 34.4 inch bale chamber, the 4750 can produce a bale up to 98 inches long and up to 1,000 pounds.

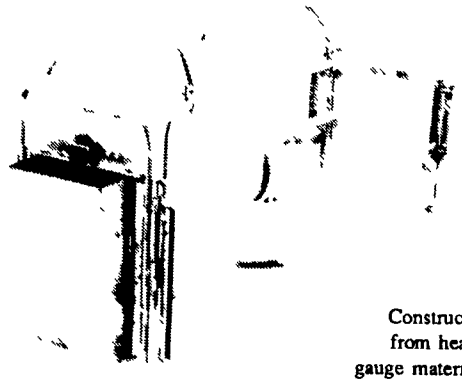
PREVENT PIGLET CRUSHING

B-SM Model 90 Farrowing Crate



GALVANIZED!

Constructed from heavy gauge materials this crate is designed to reduce crushing, with sow comfort in mind. The bowed bottom bars makes for a comfortable 33" crate width when the sow lays down, yet the adjustable anti-crush bars eliminates the sow from carelessly dropping in the piglets.

This movement restriction does not hamper the sow as she lays down, or wants to stand up, as the bars slide up and out of her way.

7120-150 HP 7140-195 HP

Case IH put more into the new MAGNUM tractor line than any farm tractors developed in over twenty years. Here's why you'll get more out of it.

MAGNUM means more. Outstanding field performance from a new 505 cubic inch turbocharged engine with reserve power. MAGNUM power.

The MAGNUM tractor's powershift puts 18-speeds of shift-on-the-go workpower at your fingertips — standard. And only MAGNUM tractors offer a full powershift creeper transmission with six additional speeds from .5 to 2.1 mph for more control and performance. MAGNUM performance.

The MAGNUM tractor's new larger cab has 48 square feet of window area, virtually unobstructed visibility, more room and more seating comfort. MAGNUM comfort.

It all adds up. Case IH MAGNUM tractors are setting new standards for the 130-195 PTO hp power range and for you. See us for details.

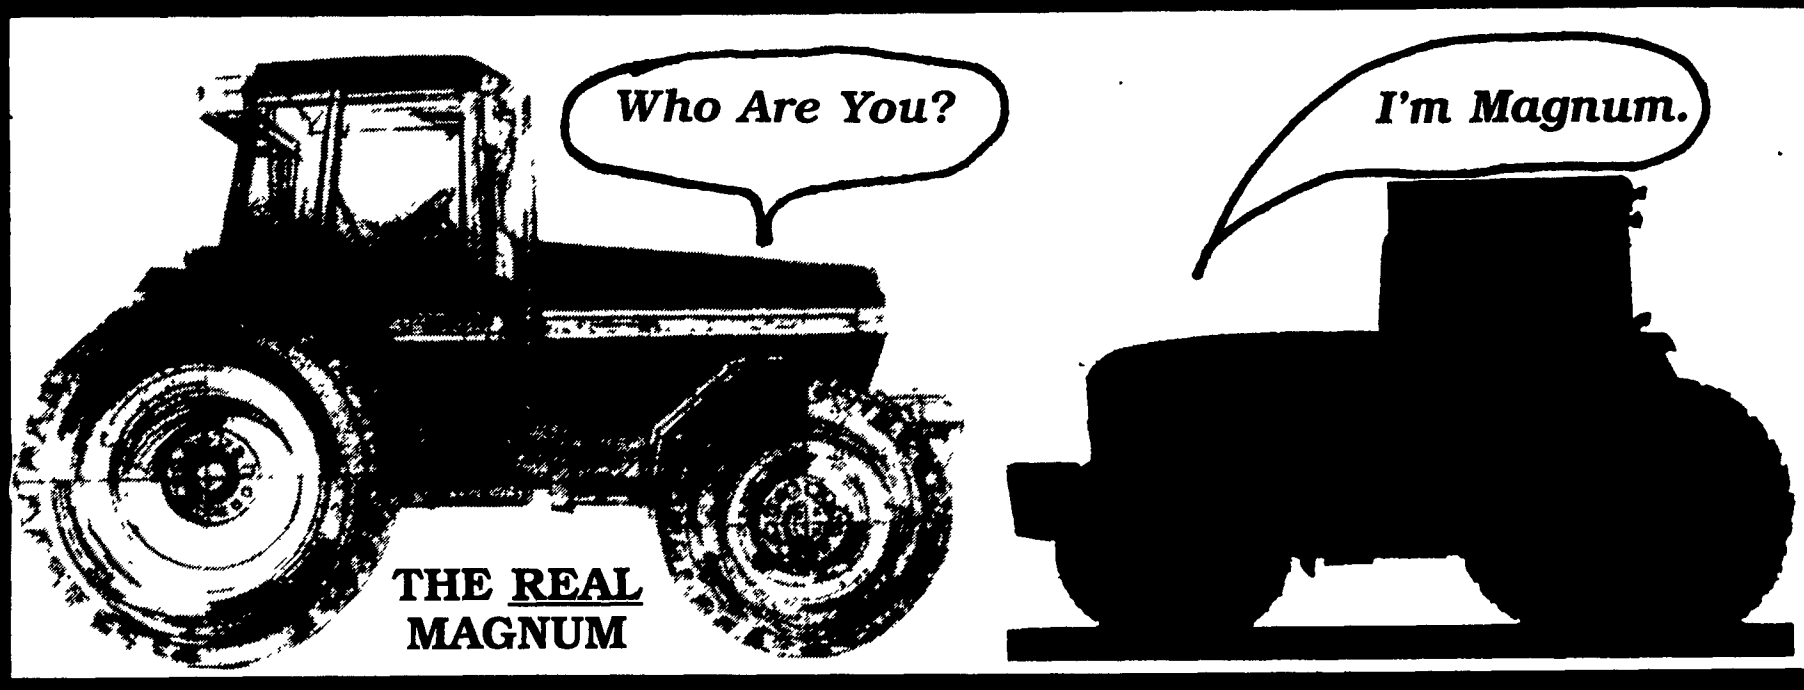
WHO'S THE LEADER



IN TRACTOR TECHNOLOGY?

MAGNUM IS THE LEADER - OTHERS ARE JUST COPIES!

The CASE IH MAGNUM Was Introduced In 1987...

The Rest Are Trying To Catch Up!!!

■ PFC HYDRAULICS (Since 1979)

1. Pressure/Flow Compensating Means Variable Pressure And Flow To Fit Your Requirements

■ POWERSHIFT TRANSMISSIONS (Since 1987)

1. 18 Speed, Full Powershift Is Standard
2. Does NOT Use Electronics To Shift
3. Designed/Built For Rugged Ag Use- No Compromises!!
4. Helical Cut Gears (Since 1981)

■ ENGINE DESIGNED FOR ECONOMY

1. 505 Cubic Inch Designed For Hi-Torque Usage
2. Totally New Technology In 1983 - Not A Rework of 30 Year Old Technology

■ LARGE COMFORT CABS (Since 1987)

1. Easy Entry, Roomy Operator Environment
2. Excellent Visability All Around - Exhaust At Cab Corner
3. Easy Access Controls All On Right Side Within Easy Reach - No Compromise Location For Optional Right Side Door

■ RUGGED RELIABILITY (Since 1987)

1. 5 Year/5,000 Warranty
2. No Problem, Trouble-Free Design
3. Heavy Cast Side Rails For Stability

■ ELECTRONIC HITCH (Since 1987)

1. Rocker Switch Automatically Lowers Hitch To Pre-Set Level
2. Rotary Load Control Knob To Control Implement Depth
3. Complete Control From Inside The Cab

With this concentrate feeding system LESS MEANS MORE

Dairymen report a 7-8% increase in milk yield with 5% less concentrate input with the new VA 500.

Each cow's ration is fed automatically according to her individual lactation curve. Feeding for production means high producing cows get more. Every cow pays her way. The whole herd can be housed together and you don't need complicated computer support systems for operation.

Make your concentrate work harder.

NEW

OSWALT
Mixers by J-STAR

The Feed Room Mixer... That's Big On Performance!

The Model 150 Stationary Four Auger TMR Ruffage Master Mixer is a new addition to the family of bigger stationary and trailer 200 and 250 cu. ft. capacity mixers... mixers that are setting a new standard for excellence. Its 150 cu ft capacity sizing, rugged construction, reliable J-STAR electronic scale and superior mixing action make it the ideal four auger mixer for stationary feed room TMR setups.

in addition to haylage, corn silage, high-moisture corn, grain, and other more common rations.

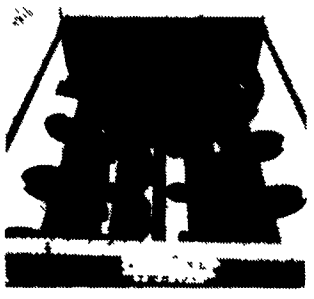
Also keep in mind that proper mix may have to assure only a trace of calcium, phosphorus, selenium, or other feed materials in each cow's daily ration. Oswalt's superior mixing action gives you that assurance, with an unmatched "quality of mix."

Dry hay capability

With a Model 150 mixer, hay is processed and evenly and aggressively mixed throughout the ration, while all ration ingredients are being mixed. That means tearing the hay apart and reducing fiber length during the mixing process

Superior Mixing Action Features Dry Hay Capability And Exclusive Tuff-Glide® Liners

Oswalt's aggressive notched 20" diameter full-pitch four auger mixing pattern produces a consistent, balanced, uniform ration that will benefit even the highest-producing dairy and beef animals. Superior mixing action is why the Oswalt Stationary Model 150 TMR Ruffage Master can handle those hard-to-process feeds such as baled hay, brewers grains, cottonseed, animal fat, canola, produce and industrial by-products,



Full Tuff-Glide® Liners

Low-friction, self-lubricating Tuff-Glide mixing chamber liners are one of the "secrets" of Oswalt's superior mixing action. Oswalt's mixing pattern, and self-lubricating Tuff-Glide liners help feed material flow more freely, reducing horsepower requirements and virtually eliminating material hangups and dead spots. Tuff-Glide liners also reduce mixing pressure as much as 25%. The end result is an unmatched quality of mix in less time.

An added plus is you may never have to replace a side because Tuff-Glide is not affected by acid and moisture and it resists abrasion.

A rugged stationary feed room mixer designed to process and mix all feeds, including baled hay, into a fully-blended TMR.

Purina Calf Startena: For over 50 years the leader —but never more so than today.

When Purina introduced Calf Startena back in the 1930's, it was widely recognized as the most advanced calf starter ever made up to that time. Over the years, Startena has changed dramatically as researchers have discovered new information about the calf's digestive system, the onset of rumen changes, and nutritional requirements for proper rumen wall development.

Why no hay.

Since 1949, Purina researchers have recommended against feeding hay (or any other forage) to calves under two months of age. For years, this "no hay" premise was in dispute, but today most nutritionists agree. However, many dairy operations still include hay in their feeding programs, even though tests show it is an unwise practice.

Performance of Dairy Calves On Hay vs. No Hay Regimens

	Hay (Ad Lib)	No Hay
Total Weight Gain (lb)	58.20	69.50
Daily Intake Startena (lb)	1.71	2.10
Daily Intake Alfalfa Hay (lb)	.41	—

Duration of trials: 4 days to 2 months of age.

An extra 11.3 pounds of gain, as averaged by calves that did not receive hay, is especially valuable in the early weeks.
